NORTH YARMOUTH.

(By Rev. JOSEPH STOCKBRIDGE, U. S. NAVY.)

This paper is offered as a supplement to the one prepared by Dr. N. T. TRUE, and printed on pp. 274-82, OLD TIMES.

I ought to say that my memory runs back to 1817. I will follow Dr. True's trail.

The first building on the right, starting at the lower falls bridge, was a one-story store on the site of the present brick store, and kept by Oakes & Mitchell (Nathan Oakes and Daniel Mitchell.) The next building was the two-story house of Capt. John Hale. When the firm of W. R. & C. Stockbridge was dissolved, W. R. Stockbridge took the Oakes & Mitchell store, having Jacob G. Loring as clerk. After Capt. Hale moved to Portland, W. R. Stockbridge purchased his house and altered the first story into a store, and moved the other store into the rear, for the storage of heavy goods.

Beyond Dr. David Jones' house, and very near it, was a one-story house occupied by the doctor's farmer. That house was purchased by Master Pratt, who moved it nearer the street and added a story.

The Maj. Mitchell house was originally a gambrel-roof house, owned by the widow Ames, and stood on the site of the house of W. R. Stockbridge.

David True had many buildings on his premises. South of his house, was a shop in which cloth was finished, he being a clothier as well as farmer. North of his house, was a corn-crib, then the "little barn," then a capacious carriage-house in which he stored his farming-tools, then a very large barn, to which was attached a long shed and fold for his sheep.

Stockbridge 50.00 (8 1/2)

The old school-house, in the corner of "Uncle True's" pasture, was the next building. It had a porch in front, with a door facing south. On entering the school-room, a wide chimney confronted you, and, on going around it, you found a big fire-place, and, in winter-time, a roaring fire. A brick hearth extended two-thirds the length of the room, and near the end of it was a brick stove, with an iron top, in which was another fire. On each side of the room were four tiers of desks and seats, one rising above the other; the boys on one side and the girls on the other. In the rear end of the room was an immense desk for the teacher. In those days the boys took turns in building the fire, and the girls in sweeping the house. When school was "half done," and the boys out at play, if a strange carriage came along, the boys would form a line, take off their hats and bow to the stranger. I suppose that "Young America" would now turn up his nose at such a display of rustic manners. In the long-ago days, Miss Elizabeth D. Bailey was the teacher in summer-time, a male teacher being employed in winter. Miss Bailey is still living in Portland.

It was in this school-house that we had our first Sunday-school, in June, 1818. The schools were not denominational then; all the children in the district came. I can remember the first lesson: the 139th Psalm, and I never read that scripture without peculiar emotions. Opposite the school-house was a mile-stone giving the miles to Boston. The stage-road ran through our district, and a short distance above the school-house was the stable, where the horses were changed, at Capt Larrabee's tavern. Near the stable, and on the corner of the road leading to Brown's Point, was a very large barn, in which, perhaps in 1816, I saw for the first time an elephant.

The next house was that of a master ship-builder, Mitchell. The name of his wife was Martha; and after his death we used to speak of the place as "Aunt Mattie Mitchell's."

We next came to a two-story shop bearing the sign, "N. Oakes, Chair-maker." Mr. Oakes also made window-blinds.

The next house was a very small one, and was occupied by the Videto family.

We now come to a house that must be one of the oldest in that part of the town. It has been occupied by a Lovell family. I remember going to a general muster that was held on this farm.

We now return to the bridge, and on the west side find a saw-mill on the site of the first one built in the town (about 1674.) Adjoining it was the grist-mill, then run by Jacob Jones. The people living on the islands brought their grists to this mill. On these occasions, the islanders brought fresh fish, which they sold and invested the money in groceries, and such other goods as they needed. The price of cod-fish was seventy-five cents a hundred pounds, and of halibut two and one-half or three dollars.

At the side of the saw-mill was the fulling-mill, owned by the True family. In those days some of the young men who "followed the seas" remained at home during the winter, and a class of them was taught navigation, in the fulling-mill, winter nights.

Just above the mills, there is a road-way to the river. At that point the first bridge was built, landing on the intervale. Here now are Col. True's tenter-bars, and just there, at the upper end, stood Lebbeus Bailey's foundry, where he cast his clock-movements and sleigh-bells, and anything else that came in his line. Uncle Bailey was skillful in his art, and could make out of metal any article called for. He always had the best garden in the neighborhood, and the best fruit.

The Stockbridge house was built in the latter part of the 18th century, by Joseph Stockbridge, who established the mercantile house that continued till the death of his brother, William R., in 1850. In early times, the stable stood 150 feet back from the street, in line with the elm-tree, and from the side of the stable a shed and back store extended to within a few feet of the corner of the house. The store was in the north half of the house. The hay-scales stood under the elm-tree. There was a long, two-story, extension to the house, which was purchased by James Field, Jr., and hauled to a lot north of his father's house. The next house, now owned by Mrs. True, was owned and occupied by Capt. Buxton, whose son, David Buxton, will be remembered as a faithful book-binder in Portland.

At the corner of the road leading to the paper-mill, was Samuel Warren's tannery. In those days every shoe-maker had a little tan-yard of his own.

The first building above Mr. Kinney's house, was Chesley Hatch's black-smith's-shop. Here was made the iron-work for Hiram Hatch's carriages and wagons. Beyond Hiram Hatch's house, was a two-story building in which Joseph Barstow trimmed the carriages made by Mr. Hatch.

The shoe-maker's-shop of Samuel Warren stood on the line of the street, next to Capt. Larrabee's garden. And just here is one of the greatest institutions in our school-district,—the never-failing well. There was the old-fashioned well-sweep, and would have been "the moss-covered bucket," if the bucket had time to gather moss.

On the premises of Uncle James Field, was his shoe-maker's-shop, for he was a cord-wainer, as well as farmer. How well I remember his hoary head and smiling face, as he sat in the corner pew at church. In front of Uncle Field's house was a large lawn, on which I have often seen the Light Infantry parade. That was a crack company, always handsomely uniformed and well commanded.

The next building above the Isaiah Mitchell house was a very old one, two stories high, and commanded a magnificent view of Casco Bay and the islands. In my childhood the house was occupied by "Aunt Jenny Mitchell," a little old woman who wore a red cloak when she came to visit my Grandmother Ames. Possibly she was the mother of D. Mitchell who lived across the road, and whose son, after the death of the old lady, tore the house down and built a smaller one.

Returning now to the bridge, we go up into the Jenks neighborhood. The oldest store there was between Thomas Chase's and the tavern, and was occupied for a long time by Samuel Sweetser. The post-office was in that store for many years, Maj. Mitchell being post-master.

Opposite Mr. Woods' house was a low, gambrel-roofed house which was occupied by Solomon Winslow.

The house at one time occupied by Thomas Chase was built by John Sargent, the tailor, and he resided in it till he moved to Bangor.

Samuel Gilman, son of "old Parson Gilman," occupied the house that is now owned by Paul Blanchard.

The house on the brow of the hill, once occupied by Samuel Sweetser, was for a long time the residence of Dr. Gad Hitchcock; it is my impression that it was built for him.

Down the Portland road, the house of Col. Seth Mitchell was a famous hotel in its day. It had a large hall for dancing-parties. When the "west end" of the town became Cumberland, there was a great law-suit about it, and the trial was held in that hall.

One of the oldest stores at the Falls was at the head of Long Wharf, and in my childhood was kept by Capt. David Drinkwater. For a time the post-office was kept in that store, Capt. Drinkwater being post-master.

Passing along the road to the "old ledge," and just before the turn of the road to the left, we find, on the right hand, an old, two-story house, that was owned by Capt. D. Drinkwater, and afterwards by his son-in-law David Gray. That was a garrison-house; and its defense was a barricade of logs placed at a convenient distance from the sides of the house.

Further along towards the ledge, out in the field stood a house that must have been very old from the fact that my Grandmother Ames was born in it March 26, 1753. The family name was Mitchell, and the house was occupied by a tall man who was always called "Cash Jerry."

Now to come to personals: in my childhood there was a harmless lunatic, "Crazy Butler," who was received into people's houses, and was permitted to indulge in the queer freaks that his disordered brain suggested. Some of these freaks were to turn the chairs to face the wall, stand the fire-shovel, tongs and hearth-brush top-end down. His insanity was caused by the sudden death of two children, while he was absent from home.

The succession of lawyers was as follows: W. Barrows, whose office stood just above the Grand Trunk Railway station, near the spot on which Dr. Lewis Whitney built a house. This office was the same that was afterwards occupied by Grenville Mellen, near the academy-lot. John W. Mellen followed Mr. Barrows. Then came Grenville Mellen, Philip Eastman, Joseph Stockbridge and Barnabas Freeman.

It seems to me that a description of "old times" would be imperfect without some reference to the way the young people found enjoyment. The singing-school took the place, in large part, of the modern party and ball. We had parties, but seldom; and all our pleasures were of a wholesome kind. The winter singing-school gave us a good sleigh-ride; and occasionally we drove to a school miles away from our village. Once or twice in the winter, we had a sleigh-ride,—usually to Freeport Corner,—on a moonlight night. We always had a good time, kept good hours, and the health of no one was put in jeopardy. Once or twice during summer, we sailed down among the islands and had a chowder-party. Not one of the young men among my associates, relapsed into dissipated habits.

It is said there is just as much drinking in Maine as ever; the Maine law has not changed the habits of the people. Let us see: In my boyhood, spiritous liquors were kept in every house in town. In our house, there was the best liquors the Boston market could supply; and such liquors were invariably offered to visiting clergymen, and I never knew or heard of one declining to take something. Ship-builders, farmers, and other employers, furnished their workmen with grog. Rum was a part of every ship's stores. There was not a man in town who sold groceries, who did not also sell spiritous liquors. It was not an unusual thing for boys when playing base-ball, to play for rum. Ten cents would buy a quart of rum, with enough molasses to sweeten it, and of that we made grog. I have frequently purchased that mixture for the boys, that being part of the duty of the boy who "kept tally" by cutting notches in a shingle. In those days there were a few habitual drunkards in town, and not a few more who were occasionally intoxicated.

Are any of these customs in existence in the Yarmouth of today, or in any territory that was once a part of North Yarmouth?

From the "Portland Transcript," Sept. 13, 1879.

BY CASCO.

Bright, lovely Casco Bay!
My heart with thee to-day,
Basks in the summer smiles
That light thy greenwood isles,
And crown each rock and wave.

To-day, behind I cast
The years that gather fast;
Forget the world and care
Thy restful ways to share—
The joy and calm I crave.

Dear to me still, fair Bay!
The haunts of boyhood's day,
When, like yon "little man,"
Barefoot and brown with tan,
I pattered by thy side.

How oft, with rude sail reared,
From isle to isle we steered;
With wonder saw expand
Each unknown sea and land,
And ocean far and wide!

White Head, August, 1879.

With rapture still I view
These scenes so old, so new,
And climb yon seaward height,
Where, loud and fierce and white,
Old ocean's surges roar.

O wondrous, mighty sea,
So boundless and so free!
What were the crag, the rock,
Without the wave, the shock,
That thunders on the shore?

Lov'd Bay, how sweet doth close
The hour that brings repose,
When o'er thy waters fair,
Like holy breath of prayer,
Falls evening's robes of balm!

What if to-morrow bring
Sorrow and suffering?
My soul in strength shall rest
Upon thy shores so blest,
And build anew in calm.

SAMUEL DORRANCE SEABURY.

PROPRIETORS' RECORDS, NORTH YARMOUTH, MAINE.

COMMITTEE MEETING Att a meeting of the Committee for re-
MAY 16, 1727 settleing the township of North Yarmouth, in Casco Bay, May 16, 1727, at the house of M^r James Parker, Innholder at North Yarmouth aforesaid :
Present: William Taler, Esq^r, Elisha Cook, Esq^r, John Smith, John Powell, Committee, and several of the Proprietors.

The Committee haveing at Sundry times heretofore given Public Notice to all Persons, by Printing Advertisements & dispersing them through the Country, of their meeting at Boston to receive the Claimes of any that heretofore had lotts assigned them in North Yarmouth by the Committee impowered by the Governour & Company of the Massachusetts Bay, in 1681, or by the Selectmen of the said town of North Yarmouth, agreeable to the power committed to them, as well as to admit such others as were desirous of having lotts assigned to them in that township, & did design to bring forward & perfect the Intended Settlement there, in a regular & defensible manner as should be directed and appointed by the Committee, And that the Ancient Proprietors may bring in or send their Grants or Claimes to any land att North Yarmouth, aforesaid, to their Clerk att Boston, that so no one might be Abridg'd of their former Grants or Allottments, and all future Controvercies prevented as far forth as the Committee could, and whereas several did appear in Person and shew forth that they had grants of land made to them in the years 1681 to 1685-6, together with others the representatives of Such, in order to Settle that town, All which appeared to us by the town book of North Yarmouth: Many others altho' they could not produce their Grants from the town book, and the allottments thereof, Yet by Sufficient witnesses proved that their Ancestors had such grants made them by the then Selectmen and a Committee appointed for that purpose, and improved the Same untill forced off by the Indian War, Some of whom had their houses destroyed, their papers & other things consumed by fire, the whole amounting to thirty six families, many others also appearing to be admitted and joyn in resettleing these lands. The Committee having informed themselves of the Scituation & Circumstances of the Lands there, determined to receive so many new Settlers as would make up One hundred with the former Proprietors, which the tract of Land would sufficiently accommodate, besides a Ministry Lott, a Minister's Lott and another lott for the School. All which being done, the Committee, the 15th of September last, Ordered & Appointed the bounds of the town to be Run, and to Survey, platt, & lay out, fifty home lotts on a certain tract of land within the township, on a neck of land formerly called Maine's Neck, now called Yarmouth Neck, lying on the west side of Royall's River, to be performed by Cap^t Jeremiah Moulton and M^r Benjamin Flagg, And upon reading and Considering their Return, The Committee Apprehended that the whole number of Settlers might be accommodated with home lotts, on the aforesaid neck of land now called Yarmouth Neck, and accordingly, the 22d day of April last past, directed the aforesaid Surveyers to repair to North Yarmouth to Survey & platt fifty-three house lotts more, of the Same Contents of the first fifty, in the most Convenient places on the aforesaid neck, & to perfect the platting and laying out the Same, & then to Survey and platt the whole towship.

The Committee haveing on the 23d of March preceeding directed a Printed Advertisement to give Publick Notice that they intended to meet at the house of M^r James Parker, Innholder, att Yarmouth, the 10th Instant, in order to finish & fix the several lotts, as also to agree upon such orders and rules as should be thought most conducive to perfect the Settlement. And now upon reviewing what the Surveyer, Benjamin Flagg, hath done, and finding that he hath not perfected the laying out and platting the whole number of the lotts, the Committee deferred Drawing the same for the present. Upon Thirsday, May 18th, the Surveyor laying before the Committee a Draught of the One hundred and three lotts by him Surveyed & marked on the aforesaid tract of land, now called Yarmouth Neck, the first lott, Number One, beginning at Holman's Point, near Broad Cove, on the easterly side thereof, at North Yarmouth, in Casco Bay aforesaid, & from thence the other lotts extending north-easterly by the bay to a point of land heretofore called Maine's Point, where James Parker now improves, & from thence up Royall's River, on the south-west side thereof, near to the first falls in said river, with some lotts on the back of the aforesaid Lotts bordering on the bay & river aforesaid, and some on Broad Cove.

The Committee proceeded & agreed upon the method for drawing Lotts, for such home lotts as were not heretofore assigned to the former Proprietors, and some few that were allowed to fix upon their lotts before any were drawn for: And then those that appeared by themselves or Substitutes were once & againe informed that none would be Intitled to a lott in North Yarmouth altho' he was admitted then to draw, unless he would punctually do and Perform such things as the Committee should direct & order for the more Effectual, Speedy & Sure Settlement of the township, which no one gainsay'd, they began upon the drawing out the several lotts, each man's name that was to draw being wrote upon a single piece of paper, folded up and then putt into a hatt, amounting in the whole to sixty-four, and then the Same Number of Papers folded with a Distinct number on each one & putt into another hatt, and as the Names of the persons were Severally & distinctly taken out the numbered [paper] that followed each man's name determind his lott. These sixty-four with the affixed lotts making up the amount of One hundred and three lotts; Each man's lott as well as the Ancient Settlers', as those now taken, are in the order following: the number of the fixed lotts being interspersed with the others now drawn for, tho' none of them were putt into the hatts.

Home-Lots, North Yarmouth, drawn May 18, 1727.

A highway shall be laid on the front thereof of the Second Lotts, four rods wide at least: these ways to be taken out of the Common Lands, and none of the lotts curtailed or lessened thereby. That

That a Convenient house for the Publick worship of God be Erected & built in three years from the first of June, of fifty foot long & forty foot wide & twenty two foot stud, at the charge of the Community, at or near the head of lott Number One hundred and one, or the west side of One hundred and two, or as may be best and most suitable. And that a sufficient Quantity of land adjacent for the place for the meeting-house, be left and not lotted out, but reserved for a Burying-Place, Common or Training-Field, Pound, and other Publick uses, as may hereafter be thought needfull and adviseable.

[p. 42-3]

That a Ministerial House shall be Built as the Committee shall hereafter order, the Charge to be borne as aforesaid. That a Good Orthodox Minister be provided to reside there forthwith, and for his Incouragement shall be paid after the rate of One hundred and fifty Pounds Pr Annum, till such time at least as the undertakers shall have performed the conditions of Settling and Obtained Good & Sufficient deeds or Conveyances in the law for their several home lotts and after divisions. THE OAKES FAMILY.

[Dr. CHARLES E. BANKS.]

Assistant-Surgeon, Marine-Hospital Service.

The following skeleton sketch of this family, so well known in North Yarmouth, is offered to OLD TIMES with the hope that some interested descendant of these worthy progenitors may continue the work. No attempt has been made to elaborate the biographies of individuals or even to ascertain any trusts they may have held in public or private, civil or military life.

The time of the arrival of the two emigrants, the brothers Edward¹ and Thomas¹ Oakes, is not known, but they first appear in Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1640, and in May, 1642, were made freemen together.

1 EDWARD OAKES, the elder brother, was born about 1604, in England, and died, 13 Oct. 1689, in Cambridge. By wife Jane, who was living 24 Dec. 1691, he had the following children:—

4 EDWARD OAKES². Nothing is known of him except that he was living in 1658, and may have been a constable in Boston, 1702, or a retailer of spirits in the same place, 1714, as persons of that name are found in the Records.

5 Dr. THOMAS OAKES², b. 18 June 1644. Graduated at Harvard College, 1662, and died 15 July 1719, aged 75 years. ON THE HILLS.

BY S. D. SEABURY, YARMOUTH, ME.

Come forth upon the lifted hills,
O hearts that feel, O eyes that see!
And learn of Him who grandly fills
The earth and sky with beauty free!

* * * * *

'Tis sunset's hour! Along the sky
In streams the golden splendors fly,
Then fade, and slowly, slowly die.

Earth's shrines! upraised by God's own hand,
The gray old heads of mountains grand,
Sun-crowned, in radiant glory stand.

The wildwood, with its dark green sweep,
Wraps all the vales in shadows deep,
And woos the song-bird home to sleep.

In yonder grove of softest green,
When lifts the willow-curtain's screen,
The dead's embowered shafts are seen.

Beyond, the hamlets, old and staid,
Nestle amid the elm-tree's shade,
Or peep from out some woodland glade.

Far down, where gleams the shim'ring bay,
Lingers the sun, with loving ray,
Watching the white-veiled surges play.

Yon feath'ry cloud, from darkness sprung,
That o'er the distant waters hung,
Hath on a crimson mantle flung.

The wild flower and the fragrant fern
Sudden with pale gold jewels burn,
That soon to star-like spangles turn,

As from the east, with steady flight,
Come on the peaceful shades of night,
To light her twinkling candles bright.

Then from the deep the moon doth greet
The gentle scene, and, smiling sweet,
Sports o'er the waves with silv'ry feet.

In love bend low the star-lit skies;
The grateful hills responsive rise,
And twilight's glory calmly dies.

Now from the vale where winds the stream,
And plumed alders nod and dream,
The tiny firefly torches gleam.

O wild flowers gemmed with pearly dew!
O woods with moon-beams dancing through!
My heart is on the heights with you.

* * * * *

God of the hills and mountains high;
Of moon and star and wild, wide sea;
Of flower and fern and shining sky;
My soul to-night gives praise to Thee!

POT-POURRI.

Under this head, short, disconnected paragraphs, too long, or unsuited for "Notes & Queries," will be given from time to time.

BAPTIST CHURCH—In the article on building the Baptist meeting-house, page 430, OLD TIMES, there is a charge for making the "cannipy" and for iron-work. The "cannipy" was the sounding-board that was suspended over the pulpit; the iron-work was for the rod and fixtures that held it in place.

Another charge is for work on the "ballustrade," and "for corking the meeting-house steeple." The entrance to the old meeting-house was through a square tower, which was somewhat higher than the ridge-pole of the house. The top of the tower was flat, and was cauked like the deck of a ship. The "ballustrade" surmounted this tower. It was from the top of this tower a daring sailor sent up a kite, and then walked around the balustrade, holding the string.

OLD CHURCH—A writer for OLD TIMES says that the meeting-house below the ledge had no steeple. This is an error. It had a steeple that bore aloft the vane and rod that are now on the ledge.

MINISTER'S TAX—In old times, "the standing order" enforced the payment of the minister's tax, though the citizen was not of that denomination, and never attended meeting. Sometimes a cow was sold to pay this tax. Who can give a well authenticated case of this kind? (08. 21 L) J. S.

NORTH YARMOUTH—The following additions, alterations and corrections for the article on pages 607-11, of this magazine, are furnished by Chaplain Stockbridge:—

Page 607: Second paragraph, after "Master" insert David, so it will read "Master David Pratt." Third paragraph, after word "widow" insert Hannah L. [relict of Nathaniel, see page 132.], and add to the paragraph that my mother was born in that house, and that she might always live on that spot, my father bought it and built on it. The house has for many years been occupied by Sheriff Daniel L. Mitchell.

Page 608: Third line, insert David after "Uncle." Third line from bottom of first paragraph, after "Miss Elizabeth D. Bailey".

add, daughter of Lebbeus Bailey. Second paragraph, should read "Capt. Samuel Larrabee's tavern." Fourth paragraph, add after "Mr." Nathan. First line of last paragraph, for "west" read east.

Page 609: Second paragraph, insert Nathaniel after "Colonel," and the same in the third after "Mrs." Fifth paragraph, read Mr. Samuel Kinney. Sixth paragraph, read Capt. Samuel Larrabee.

Page 610: First paragraph, third line from bottom, read Daniel Mitchell, and the same after "Major" in the second. Third paragraph, first line, read Mr. Joseph Woods. Ninth paragraph, read Capt. David Drinkwater. Tenth paragraph, after "Cash Jerry" add Mitchell.

Page 611: First paragraph, read William Barrows, and after "academy-lot" add, Grenville Mellen was a son of Chief-Justice Prentiss Mellen of the Supreme Court, and a famous man of the old-school gentlemen.

INGERSOLL—Vide page 5, OLD TIMES. This was William⁵, the son of Benjamin⁴ and Mary (Hunt) Ingersoll, of Falmouth. His ancestor, Richard¹ Ingersoll, or Inkersall, a Bedfordshire man, was sent over to Salem, in 1629, by the Massachusetts Company, of London, and from him, by his wife Anne, have descended a numerous family. Lieut. George², the eldest son of Richard, was a prominent man in Falmouth and the pioneer of the family in this region. By his wife Elizabeth, he had Joseph³, born 14 Oct. 1646, who married a daughter of Matthew Coe, and among the issue of this alliance was Benjamin⁴, above-noted, the father of William⁵, who died 13 Nov. 1739. Ensign Benjamin, during the Indian troubles, resided in Gloucester, where, in 1711, he married Mary Hunt, of Ipswich. He returned to Falmouth in 1726, and finally removed to North Yarmouth, certainly before 1735. William married Sarah [35, 1st Ch. Cat.], widow of James Parker.

BUCKNAM—Samuel Bucknam, [perhaps captain of Henley's Sloop Speedwell, 1738], of Malden and North Yarmouth, born 7 April 1699, married Elizabeth [Richardson] Wyman, the widow of Aaron, and daughter of James and Elizabeth [Arnold] Richardson, born 1707. Samuel was eldest son of Samuel and Deborah [Sprague] [Mellen] Bucknam, as per page 111, OLD TIMES.

MASON—Jonas Mason was a hatter. He became a member of the Church in Charlestown, 21 June 1727-8.

CASCO BAY—Report of the Royal Commissioners about New-England, in 1665. "Mayne. * * * * But in this province there is a bay, called Casco bay, in which there are many islands, two outlets to the sea, many good harbours and great store of ffish and oysters, crabs and lobsters. In this province, as in all the rest, there are great store of wild ducks, geese and deer in their seasons, strawberyes, rasberyes, goosberyes, barberyes and severall sort of billberyes, severall sorts of oakes and pines, chestnut trees, walnut trees: sometimes four or five miles together: the [more] northerly the country, the better the timber is accounted."

WHITE—From York County Records, 1667: "Margery White and the wife of Thomas Stanford are p'sented for breach of the Sabbath for rayleing one against the other. Nicho: Whitte and Thomas Stanford appeared in Courte in behalf of y^r wives and were fined 10s each and paying 10s cost, are discharged."

Nicholas White was an early settler, living at Mare Point Neck. His daughter Margery married William Haynes. [Vide page 219, OLD TIMES.]

INTENTIONS OF MARRIAGE—Timothy Mallony, of North Yarmouth, and Hannah Woodman, of Falmouth, 27 July 1753. Humphrey Merrill, of Fal., and Elizabeth Merrill, of No. Yar., 29 Aug. 1741. Benjamin Merrill, of Fal., and Mrs. Sarah Brown, of No. Yar., 1752. John Manchester, of Fal., and Comfort Bunkar, of No. Yar., 26 June 1756. Joseph Pomeroy, of Fal., and Huldah Stubbs, of No. Yar., 26 Nov. 1759. Benjamin York, of Fal., and Elizabeth Washburn, of No. Yar., 25 June 1752.

SUBMISSION TO MASSACHUSETTS—"13 July 1658. We the inhabitants of Black Point, Blue Point, Spurwink and Casco Bay, with all the Islands thereunto belonging, do own and acknowledge ourselves to be subject to the Government of the Massachusetts Bay, in New-England, as appears by our particular subscriptions."

"Nicho : White. Nathaniel Wallis."

This petition is signed by about thirty of the settlers in the regions enumerated, but only two appear from Westcustoge, by which it is to be inferred that all but Wallis and White preferred the regime of the Gorges. [See p. 508.]

TREATMENT OF INDIANS—In 1636, the Court at York passed an order, "That every planter or inhabitant shall do his best endeavour to apprehend or kill any Indian that hath been known to murder any English, kill ther cattle or in any way spoil their goods or do violence, and will not make them satisfaction."

That this order was not indicative of any vengeful spirit among the settlers, may be seen in an order from the same court the next year, which directed Arthur Brown and Mr. Arthur Macworth to make John Cousins give full satisfaction to an Indian for wrong done him.

This is an interesting fact, as it reflects the spirit of justice that had not entirely deserted the colonists in their new homes, and their desire to deal squarely with the natives. It also establishes the early appearance of John Cousins in this region, and we may with considerable propriety say that he occupied his island at least ten years before he formally purchased it, in 1645, of the agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges.

VINES ELLICOT—In the Massachusetts Archives is a petition to Sir Edmond Andros from Vines Ellicot, praying that he may be put in possession of "Cozens' Island, in Casco Bay," styling himself the grandson of Capt. Richard Vines.

GEORGE CLEAVES—Letter from George Cleaves, of Saco, to

_____, 1645. "I Georg Cleeve, do affirme that about the 25th day of the third month last [16]45 that 3 of Andrew Algars men, of Stratton's Island, came to my house in a botte to borrowe scales and waits to way there fish, and I questioned them about all that shuting which trubled all the people in several plantations, and they tould me that M^r Nash shot them, & given them powder to answere him again. And I allso demanded of them if they were all drunk, and they said that they were all merie, and farthar I affirm that I went, & M^r Tucker with me, to the howse of John Cussens & Thomas Smith, in Cascoe Bay, and about 3 leages from my howse, to have tacken there testemony consarning Nashes slandering your Genarall Court, but could not prevail with them to take ther oath, they being refractory, & saith that Nash is in ther de'pt: but confessed verbalie to us, as they had formalie tould M^r Holland, of Dorchester, that Nash said that the Court had doon great wrong to a pore woman about a sowe, and that none could have justiee from you but such as were members of the Church, and tould them they weere as good live in Turkie as under such a government, and told them that there were 19 witnessess sworne against M^r Cane, that he being a membar, carried the mattar against the poore woman, and other words to this efecte; and this is in the mouthes of all our malignants; it being reported say they, by thouse that live amongst them, and therefore undoubtedlie treu. Your humble sarvant.

GEORG CLEEVE."

Accompanying this explanatory letter were several affidavits of Cleeves' neighbors, who seemed to have been dreadfully frightened because this Capt. Robert Nash, with a few boon companions, got drunk and discharged their fowling-pieces "over seventy tymes." One man was so scared that he "thought y^e ffrench were down upon us." The affair of the cow, which produced such excitement in the Colony, may be found at length in the Winthrop papers.

NORTH YARMOUTH LIBRARIES—Miss Phebe M. Buxton, Bethel, Maine, writes that she has in her possession a book, on the fly-leaf of which is this inscription: "No. 62 | Belongs | to the | North-yarm^o Social Library | 1789. | Purchased of Rev. Eben Williams." Probably this was the first "Social Library," and the "Second," mentioned in last "Notes & Queries," (see p. 394), was the next in order of foundation. This is a good structure for some one to use in a sketch of these institutions.

DEPOSITIONS OF JOHN LANE—"The Deposition of John Lane, aged seventy eight years, who testifieth and says that he well remembers that M^r John Cousens Possessed a Neck of Land in Casco Bay, lying between a Creek called Reding's Creek and Royall's River, and that he the s^d John Cousens had a House and Barn upon s^d Neck of Land for sixteen or eighteen years w^{ch} he peaceably enjoyed until he was driven off by the Indians, which is about fifty years ago that s^d Cousens was driven off s^d land, and the said Deponent well remembers that his Father mowed Hay upon the s^d Farm in the Right of the s^d John Cousens, being Meadow near the Creek belonging to s^d Farm, and the s^d Cousens claimed and enjoyed an Island in the s^d Bay, called Cosens' Island, peaceably all the time he lived at Casco Bay, which was as was said before about sixteen or eighteen years, excepting one Half of s^d Island which I heard he had sould to one Richard Bray." 21 Oct. 1730.

NORTH YARMOUTH MINISTERS.

Assistant-Surgeon, Marine-Hospital Service.

Nothing more truly reflects the social and intellectual condition of a community than the character of its ministry. The prominence and influence of the religious instructors in colonial days can hardly be appreciated at this distance; but when we say that they were considered but a grade lower than the chief magistrate we shall have but fairly stated their position. They were indeed local autocrats, and like their temporal analogues were chosen by their flocks for intellectual worth, social prominence, as well as sound doctrinal opinions. In looking at the names of the honored and worthy stewards of God who have in years long past preached the Word in the Old Church under the Ledge, we can but confirm and be proud of the choice of our ancestors.

All of these men belonged to families that were noted in political, professional or mercantile circles, or have become famous since; and the early ministry of North Yarmouth rises far above any of its neighbor towns in Maine in social prominence. By this standard we can also judge of the status of the inhabitants, and contemplate with satisfaction their superior position among the colonists.

It will be interesting to the sons and daughters of North Yarmouth to know more fully from what sterling stock their spiritual pastors derived descent, and the family history of the first four is here subjoined.

REV. AMMI RUHAMAH CUTTER.

Of the English ancestry of the Cutter family of this country little is known. A brother of Richard, the emigrant, returned to Old England, resided and died at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, from which one might build an hypothesis of nativity in the County of Northumberland.

RICHARD CUTTER¹, born in England, 1621. Emigrated to Cambridge, Mass., 1638, with his widowed mother. He married Elizabeth ———, about 1644, who died Mar. 5, 1661–2, aged about 42 years. He died 16 June 1693. They had,—

WILLIAM CUTTER², born 22 Feb. 1649–50. He married Rebecca, daughter of John and Mary (Scullard) Rolfe, of Newbury, Mass., who was born 9 Feb. 1662 and died 13 Nov. 1751. He died 1 Apr. 1723. They had,—

AMMI RUHAMAH CUTTER³, (Rev.), born 6 May 1705. He graduated at Harvard College, 1725. The events of his busy life are too well known to require repetition. He married Dorothy, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Stockman) Bradbury, who was born 1708 and died 17 June 1776. She is a lineal descendant of Robert Bradbury, 1400, the progenitor of the fine old county family of that name in Wicken-Bonant, Essex. Among the celebrated persons in her ancestral tree may be mentioned the eminent Archbishop Whitgift, of Canterbury. Primate of all England, Edward Hutchinson, Sheriff, Alderman and Mayor of the City of Lincoln, England, 1515, the famous divine, Rev. John Wheelwright, and the “most Worshipfu¹¹ Major Robert Pike,” of Newbury.

REV. NICHOLAS LORING.

According to family tradition the English residence of the Lorings was in Axminster, County of Devonshire. This is one of the aristocratic counties in the southern part of England, from which many of our most prominent pioneers came during the colonial days.

THOMAS LORING¹, the emigrant ancestor, landed at Hingham, 1638; removed to Dorchester, but remained there only a short time, for in the same year he was a freeman of Hull, Mass., the residence of the Prince family. He died there, 1 Apr. 1661. He married Jane Newton, who died 25 Aug. 1672. They had,—

JOHN LORING², the “Elder,” who was born in England, and was brought to this country with his parents when quite young. He was Representative to the General Court of Massachusetts, 1692. He married, 1st, Mary Baker, 16 Dec. 1657, and after her death, the widow Rachel (Wheatley) Buckland, daughter of John Wheatley, of Braintree, 22 Sept. 1680. She died 20 Sept. 1713. They had,—

JOHN LORING³, born 28 June 1681, at Hull, Mass. He married Jane, daughter of Nicholas and Experience (Collier) Baker, 2 Sept. 1703, who was born 1687 and died 1 Dec. 1724. They had:

NICHOLAS LORING⁴, (Rev.) born 1 Sept. 1711. He graduated at Harvard College, 1732, and married Mary, daughter of Sylvester and Elizabeth (Rogers) Richmond, of Little Compton, Rhode Island. She was a descendant of John Richmond, one of the earliest Attorney-Generals of that State, and was born 29 Nov. 1713. Mr. Loring died 31 July 1763, at North Yarmouth.

REV. EDWARD BROOKS.

The ancestors of the third pastor are supposed to have belonged to Suffolk County, England, but nothing definite is yet known. In this country many prominent men of the name are descendants of the ancestor of this sketch.—Gov. John Brooks, of Massachusetts, being one.

THOMAS BROOKS¹, emigrated to this country and located at Watertown, in 1631. In 1638, he was of Concord, Mass., in the capacity of constable, and later, in 1660, he purchased a homestead in Medford. His wife was Grace ———, who died 12 May 1664. He died 21 May 1667. They had,—

CALEB BROOKS², born 1632. He married Hannah, daughter of Thomas and Susanna Atkinson, of Concord, who was born 5 Mar. 1644 and died 10 Mar. 1702. He moved to Medford, 1679, and died 29 July 1696. They had,—

SAMUEL BROOKS³, born 1 Sept. 1672. He married Sarah, daughter of Dr. Thomas and Mary (Gardner) Boylston, of Brookline, who was born 1680 and died 16 Oct. 1736. He died 3 July 1733. They had,—

SAMUEL BROOKS⁴, born 3 Sept. 1700. He married Mary Boutwell, of Reading, a member of the family from whom descends Hon. George S. Boutwell, Governor of Massachusetts and since Secretary of the United States Treasury. She was born 1698 and died 25 May 1772. He died 5 July 1768. They had,—

EDWARD BROOKS⁵, born 4 Nov. 1733. He graduated at Harvard College, 1757, and was Librarian of that institution for some time after. He was ordained pastor of the First Church North Yarmouth, Maine, 4 July 1764 and was dismissed 21 Nov. 1769. His connection with this church was severed on account of his having imbibed less stringent Calvinistic sentiments than some of his parishioners. He returned to Medford, and preached there occasionally, but did not take any pastoral charge. During the Revolutionary War he was chaplain of the U. S. Frigate Hancock, Capt. Manly, and was captured in 1777, taken as a prisoner of war to Halifax where he had the small-pox. He died at Medford, Mass., 6 May 1781. He married, 23 Sept. 1764, Abigail Brown, who was born ——— 1732, and died 29 Nov. 1800. She was a daughter of Rev. John and Joanna (Cotton) Brown, of Haverhill, grand-daughter of Rev. Roland and Elizabeth (Saltonstall) Cotton, great-grand-daughter of Rev. John Cotton, the celebrated Puritan divine, and sixth in descent from Sir Richard Saltonstall, Knight, Lord of the Manor of Huntwick, County of Yorkshire.

Their children were none the less celebrated, Hon. Peter Chardon Brooks being known as a distinguished politician, and two of our minister's grand-daughters married Hon. Edward Everett and Hon. Charles Francis Adams.

REV. TRISTRAM GILMAN.

The Gilman Family of County Norfolk, England, is of great antiquity, as may be inferred from their coat-armor. It is an axiom of the heralds that the age of a given crest or bearing is known by the simplicity of its tinctures. The Gilman arms, being black and white, are consequently the relics of a very early age of chivalry, and gives evidence of ancient nobility. The blazonry of the arms is as follows:—

Shield: Arg. a leg couped at the thigh, sa.

Crest: A demi-lion issuing from a cap of pretence.

EDWARD GILMAN¹, of Caston, County of Norfolk, England, married Rose Rysse, 22 June 1550, and had,—

ROBERT GILMAN², who was baptized at Caston, 10 July 1559. He married Mary ———, and had,—

EDWARD GILMAN³, who married Mary Clark, of Hingham, County of Norfolk, England, 3 June 1614. With his family he embarked from Hingham for the hardships of New-England life, in 1638, and landed at Hingham, Mass., the same year. He died at Exeter, New-Hampshire, whither he subsequently removed, 22 June 1681. Among others, he had,—

JOHN GILMAN⁴, born 10 Jan. 1624. Councillor of New-Hampshire in 1680. Speaker of the New-Hampshire Assembly, 1693. Died 24 July 1708. He married, 3 June 1657, Elizabeth, daughter of James and Catherine (Shapleigh) Treworthy, who was born 1639 and died 8 Sept. 1719. He had,—

NICHOLAS GILMAN⁵, born 26 Dec. 1672. Judge of the Court of Common Pleas and, later, of the Superior Court of New-Hampshire. He married, 10 June 1697, Sarah, daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Somerby) Clark, who was born 12 Jan. 1678 and died 25 Aug. 1741. He had,—

By a comparison of the above with the article further on, headed "Marriages," it will be seen that the most of these parties were duly married. Several gross errors in dates will be discovered in the lists. Several of the "published" seem to have changed their minds and have taken other partners in life than those coupled with their names in the foregoing "Intentions," and many in each list cannot be found in the other. THE WYMAN FAMILY.

[Dr. CHARLES E. BANKS.]

Assistant-Surgeon, Marine-Hospital Service.

The incomplete article in relation to this family, on page 161, OLD TIMES, seems to warrant enlargement, and I subjoin such facts as have come into my possession since its appearance.

The name of Wyman is of German derivation, and was originally spelled Weymann * * * *. The first mention made of them is in Charlestown, 18 Dec. 1640 (vide Frothingham, page 106), as signers of the "town orders, coeval with the settlement of Woburn." (Genealogical Register, Vol. 3, p. 33.)

1 FRANCIS WYMAN, the emigrant ancestor, was born in England in 1617, and came to this country in 1640, settling at Woburn, Massachusetts. He married, 2 Oct. 1650, Abigail, daughter of William and Mabel (Kendall) Reed, of Woburn. Francis died 30 Nov. 1699, leaving, among other children,—

2 WILLIAM WYMAN, born in Woburn, ——— 1656, who married Prudence, daughter of Lieut. Thomas and Ann (Holyoke) Putnam, born 25 Feb. 1662. William died in 1705, leaving, among other children,—

3 FRANCIS WYMAN, born in Woburn, 10 July 1691. He emigrated to North Yarmouth, Maine, very early, buying of Job Lane a parcel of land "containing a Neck of land lying betwene Cousens his river and Harriseckit. Also an Island lying over against said land, called Long Island." He was assigned Lot No. 11, and was apportioned to William Scales' garrison. He married, about 1726, Jane Pomeroy, who was born 12 Feb. 1702, and, with his wife, was received into the First Church, 27 Feb. 1732. He died 7 June 1775; his wife died 12 Apr. 1784. His will, dated 23 Apr. 1769, was proven 4 June 1776. Children:—

1 Hester; b. 3 July 1727; m. ——— Boynton.

2 Francis; b. 8 Aug. 1728; m. Sarah Blethen.

3 Peter; b. 15 Nov. 1729; d. 28 Nov. 1729.

4 Jane; b. 23 Oct. 1732; m. Andrew Bennett; m., 2d, Capt.

William Sweetser; m., 3d, ——— Danford.

5 Nathaniel; b. 17 Sept. 1734.

6 Peter; bapt. 20 July 1738.

- 7 Sarah ; b. 14 June 1739 ; d. 20 Nov. 1804 ; m. — Rogers.
 8 William ; b. 12 May 1741 ; lost near Cape Cod, 20 Nov. 1767.

Francis, the emigrant, left another son, whose descendants appear in North Yarmouth. THOMAS, b. 1 Apr. 1671, who married, 5 May 1696, Mary, daughter of Nathaniel and Mary Richardson, by whom he had,—

4 AARON WYMAN, b. 6 Dec. 1709, in Woburn. He married his cousin, Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. James and Elizabeth (Arnold) Richardson, 27 Dec. 1731. Aaron died soon after his marriage, leaving two children certainly, and his widow married, 19 Sept. 1738, Samuel Bucknam. This marriage satisfactorily explains the following entry in the church records: "Baptized, 6 Sept. 1741, John and Ame Wyman, children of Samuel Bucknam's wife." John, b. 6 June 1733, was a "coaster," and by his wife Mercy Johnson, m. 8 June 1758, was the father of William, Josiah, et als, enumerated on page 162, OLD TIMES, in Mrs. Louisa F. Wyman's sketch. Amy, born 25 Nov. 1734, married Nathan Oakes, 7 Oct. 1751, and died 11 July 1775.

BY THE RIVER.

(Written for the Portland Transcript.)

Oh, who does not love the river,
With its shadows and its sheen,
Where the oak trees' branches quiver,
Sunbeams dancing down between.

Oft at twilight, rare with hours
Of the glory born on high;
Rich with wealth of fragrant flowers,
And the balm of summer sky,

Have I found a resting cosy,
On a gray and lincened ledge,
Where the rippling waters rosy
Purl among the rustling sedge.

Ne'er was sweeter spot than this is,
Ne'er was fairer stream to grace,
When the cooling zephyr kisses
Soft the sunbeams on its face.

Shadows creeping, shadows sleeping,
Linger here the livelong day;
Wild birds fleeting, shyly peeping,
Flutter in and flit away.

Sweet, from yon coppice ringing,
Falls the wood-thrush's song of love;
Soft the minstrel brook is singing
To the flowers that dream above;

And the twilight faint and fainter
Tinges stream and wood and hill.
Till like limning of a painter
Grows the scene, so fair and still;—

And there falls a glory lavish
On thy placid breast, O stream!
That might soul of Raphael ravish,—
Brighter than a poet's dream.

Softly thus the eve came stealing
To my shadow-haunted bower;
Sweetly thus o'er every feeling
Fell that blissful, balmy hour.

All my heart had known of sadness
Seemed so far, so far away;
All my soul e'er knew of gladness
Light within my bosom lay.

Deep I lingered o'er the story
Told by wood and stream and sky;
For I knew alas! such glory,
And the summer, too, must die.

Yarmouth, June, 1879.

Soon—ah yes, how soon! the even Bore away fair Royall's gleam;
But the gracious, star-eyed heaven
Jewels lent the ravished stream;—

And I heard the brook's low murmur
To the wild flowers in the dell,
But the soft sweet song of summer
No more from the fir tree fell.

'Twas an evening rare with flowers,—
Deathless flowers, that bloom on high;
Loving wreathed in memory's bowers,
They will never, never die.

SAMUEL DORRANCE SEABURY.

WILLIAM LARRABEE.

The New-England Historical & Genealogical Register, Vol. 19, (1865), page 128, has the following:—

William Larrabee (written "Leraby" on the Malden records), was married by Richard Bellingham in Nov. 1655, to Elizabeth Felt, perhaps daughter of George Felt (born in 1600), who as early as 1640 "lived in a stone garrison at Broad Cove" in North Yarmouth, Maine, "on land which he purchased of John Phillips, a Welchman, who had probably before occupied it, and which in 1643 he repurchased of an agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Proprietor of Maine. Here he reared a family. He had two sons: George, killed by the Indians on Munjoy's Island, 1676; and Moses, born in the year 1650, and living at Chelsea in 1733. George Felt, Senior, died at Malden, after 1688." So says Shepley, in his Historical Notices of the Church and of the Town of North Yarmouth.

What became of William Larrabee, of Malden, or his wife, we know not. There was a Stephen Larrabee who had wife "Izebel" and two children, born in Malden, viz: Abigail, in Sept., 1694, and Benjamin, Feb. 11, 1696-7. Possibly, Stephen may have been a son of William. We have no evidence of it, however. In the History of North Yarmouth (Maine Hist. Coll., Vol. 2, page 173), it is stated, that Feb. 24, 1685, land was granted to the settlers. Among the names mentioned are those of William, Samuel, Isaac and Benjamin Larrabee. It is possible that William, of Malden, is the above mentioned, and that the four were brothers. If so, William probably returned to Malden, where George Felt, his supposed father-in-law, died. There was a William Larrabee, of Malden, made freeman, Mar. 22, 1689-90. Was this the William who married Elizabeth Felt, as Mr. Savage has it? Willis, in his History of Portland, 2, 27, 299, states, that Benjamin Larrabee, the companion of Major Moody, and the second in command at the fort at Casco, was born in 1666, and died in 1733, aged 67. "His father" (whom Savage calls Isaac) "was one of the early settlers of North Yarmouth, who, with others of the name, having been driven by the war of 1688 from that place, removed to Lynn. Some of the family returned and occupied their former possessions, where their posterity still remain."

This Benjamin the second, married Deborah, daughter of John Ingersoll, and had also, brothers Samuel and Thomas. Benjamin, the third, son of Benjamin and Deborah, was probably the one to whom the following letters were written. He was born in 1700: married Amy Pride, of Back Cove, about 1730, and had a sister Elizabeth who married Joshua Cromwell. Benjamin and Amy (Pride) Larrabee had:—

1 Elizabeth, who married John Webb, in 1753, and died in 1827, aged 95.

2 Benjamin, 1735. died 1809.

3 Mary, 1737, married Thomas Tuckfield.

4 John.

5 Abigail, 1747, living in 1833. unmarried.

6 Anna, 1751, married David Ross.

7 Sarah, unmarried.

8 William, died young.

Sir,—Upon a Representation laid before me of the great Advantage it would be to His Majesty's Service and Honour, and to the Benefit of His People in this Province, That there be a fair and good Communication among the Frontier Towns of this Province, and that the Gentlⁿ concerned in the Lands in and about Brunswick had some time before the War cut a Road the greatest part of the way from Brunswick to North Yarmouth and which by the Interruption of the late War with the Indians is overgrown—as I therefore Judge it would be for the Publick Service to have this Road well cleared, It is my Order, That you employ the People under your Command (this Winter) to open the Communication betwixt the said Towns in the best manner you can, for the Safety and Encouragement of the Inhabitants in Case of any Rupture thereafter with the Indians, and the Gentlⁿ concerned with the Lands there will furnish Liquor, &c., for the better comfort of the Soldiers in their Service. Given under my Hand, at Boston, Nov. 25th, 1731.

JONATHAN BELCHER.

To Cap^t Benjⁿ Larrabee, of Fort George, Brunswick.

After this follows several other letters from Governor Belcher to Captain Larrabee, in one of which, under date of Feb. 11th, 1733-34, he refers to a letter from him dated January 16th, by Mr. Cutter. (94)

Written on the banks of the Niagara, between the Rapids and the Cataract.

BY GRENVILLE MELLEEN.

Their roar is round me. I am on the brink
Of the great waters; and their anthem voice
Goes up amid the rainbow and the mist.
Their chorus shakes the ground. I feel the rocks
O'er which my feet hang idly, as they hung
O'er babbling brooks in boyhood, quivering
Under the burst of music. Awful voice!
And strong triumphant waters! Do I stand
Indeed amid your shoutings. Is it mine
To shout on this gray summit; where the bird,
The cloudy monarch bird shrieks from his crag,
O'er which he's wheeled for centuries. I lift up
My cry in echo; but no sound is there,
And my shout seems but whisper. I'm afraid.
To gaze and listen! Yet my eye and ear
Are servants to a necromance that God
Alone can hold o'er nature! Ministers
At this immortal shrine of the great King!
Ye never tiring waters! Let me pass
Into your presence, and within the veil
That has no holy like it—a great veil
Within which the Omnipotent outspeaks
In thunder and in majesty; within
The shadow of a leaping sea, where He Opens the lips in wonder—and His brow
Bends 'neath his crown of glory from the skies;
Tell not of other portals. Tell me not
Of all the awfulness of power, but stand Within that curtain of Charybdis. If You've seen and heard the far-voiced flood above,
Clapping its thousand hands and heralding
Seas to a new abyss—you have seen all
The earth has of magnificent like this—
You've stood within a gate that leads to God,
Where the strong beings of His mercy bend,
And do His will with power—while they uphold
Our steps that grope the footstool—Niagara.

CAPT. CHARLES SMALL.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

We take pleasure in publishing the following correspondence between the Underwriters in New-York, Philadelphia and Boston, and Capt. Small, the heroic commander of the bark Glen. The Underwriters have also presented Mr. Waite, the first mate, $500; to the mother of Mr. Havens, the second mate, who was murdered, $500, and a sum of money to each of the three seamen who refused to join the mutineers.

We append a letter from Capt. Paulsen, of the Helena Sloman, acknowledging the receipt of an elegant silver pitcher, presented by some liberal gentlemen of this city. The same parties also presented a silver trumpet to Capt. Hovey, of the Devonshire, whose letter we have before published.

NEW-YORK, May 27, 1851.

To Capt. CHARLES SMALL :

Dear Sir :—It appears that on your homeward passage from the North West Coast to this port, as master of the bark Glen, having on board a cargo of great value, exceeding $300,000 in amount, a part of the crew rose upon the officers and in their efforts to gain their wicked purposes, after obtaining possession of the ship's fire-arms, these desperados, bent on butchery and death, shot the second mate with a musket-ball, wounding him so severely that he died a few hours afterwards.

You attacked the mutineers, who had control of the deck, and aided by your first mate, in a most fearful and unequal conflict, (during which, the courage of yourself and first officer was signally conspicuous), the mutineers were overpowered, and you succeeded in regaining the command of your vessel, and thereby securing to the owners the valuable property on board.

Unwilling that such bravery and courage should pass unnoticed, the undersigned underwriters, interested in the rescued property, ask your acceptance of the enclosed check for ($1500) Fifteen Hundred Dollars, as a testimonial of their approbation of your good conduct and success in regaining the command of your vessel and the control of the property placed under your protection.

Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

YARMOUTH, June 13, 1851.

Dear Sir:—Through the politeness of Capt H. S. Soule, I received yours of the 27th ultimo, enclosing a check for Fifteen Hundred Dollars, which you ask me to accept as a testimonial of your approbation of my conduct during my recent homeward passage on board the bark Glen.

In return, be pleased to accept for yourself and all the underwriters interested, my sincere acknowledgments for their very kind notice and liberal present.

The perils of that ill-fated night of the 17th of September last, are passed. The reflections will be solaced by your sympathy and approbation.

With due regard, I remain your obd't servant,

DRINKWATER FAMILY—In the revision of this genealogy [see page 386, OLD TIMES], the author must have neglected to consult the town records of births, deaths and marriages, for there I find the following data relative to the early settler and his family, of whom Mr. Drinkwater gives but little information, and that erroneous:—

Joseph Drinkwater was married to Jane Latham, 18 May 1732, and had the following children:—

1 Thomas; b. 16 Apr. 1734.

2 Joseph; b. 27 Aug. 1736.

3 John; b. 24 Apr. 1738. Married Susanna, daughter of Jos. and Sarah (Stubbs) Brown, 4 Mar. 1761, who was born 10 Mar. 1742.

4 Micaiah; b. 25 Jan. 1739.

5 Anna; b. 4 May 1742.

6 Samuel; b. 24 Feb. 1743.

Phineas and Daniel were baptized 14 July, 1754, at the First Church. There was also a George Drinkwater who lived in North Yarmouth contemporaneous with Joseph. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. James and Sarah Parker, of the same place, who was born 21 Apr. 1718. One child only is recorded as born to them, Elizabeth, born 5 Mar. 1734–5. Perhaps Mr. Drinkwater can tell us something about this branch of the family. As a further help to him in determining the parentage of his ancestor's wife, Jane Latham, I conclude with this extract from the town records: "Jonathan Latham, by wife Mary, had John Lawrence, born 3 Mar. 1759."

It is to be hoped that, hereafter, the town records will be consulted by all who contemplate the compilation of family histories, as they are exceedingly complete and accurate. No genealogy can be considered finished without their aid. C. E. B.

CORRECTIONS—In "Baptisms," on page 667, OLD TIMES, under date of May 6, 1759, Mary Will[?] should read "Will^m." July 29: read "son of Mark." Aug. 20: read "Aug. 26" and add at end "(for Mr. Wiswell.)" erasing the same from the next item below. Oct. 28: for [illegible] read "Nathan." Apr. 13. 1760: erase (for Mr. Wiswell) and add to item next above.

MELLEN—George Mellon, 335 East 16th Street, New-York, N. Y., is collecting material for a genealogy of the Mellen Family of America. He would be glad to hear from some relative of Mary K. Southgate, wife of Grenville Mellen, the poet. Also from any person who can give information as to where the mortal remains of Grenville Mellen were finally interred (he died in New-York City, 5 Sept. 1841), or those of his brother Frederick Mellen, painter and poet, who died in Boston, about the year 1836.

CATALOGUES—Wanted, copies of the annual catalogues of the North Yarmouth Academy, Yarmouth Institute or High School, for which a fair price will be paid. Address, stating price and year of issue, "CATALOGUE," Box 261, Yarmouth, Maine.

GILMAN—In the article on page 652 of this issue, Mr. F. B. Gilman, of Boston, Mass., grandson of Rev. Tristram Gilman, notes the following errors: In the ninth line of the article, for "pretence" read "maintenance." In the line next to the bottom, change the dates to read Sept. 12, 1747 and Nov. 20, 1790.

WORTHLEY—John Worthley's will, (among General Edward Russell's papers), dated 24 Oct. 1803, was apparently never probated. It reads:—"All personal estate to my wife Martha, and use of real estate so long as she remains my widow: at her death all my real estate to be equally divided between my children, viz: my sons John, Asa, Thomas, Justin & Timothy, & my daughters Mehitable, wife of Jonathan True, Rachel, wife of John Allen. Molly, wife of Abner True, Hannah, wife of William Todd, and Martha, wife of Samuel Griffin."

John Worthley and Martha Bailey were married Nov. 9, 1758. In his "intentions," Oct. 7, he is called "of Hale Town."

WELLCOME—Mrs. M. D. Wellcome was born in Augusta, Me., Aug. 29, 1823. She was the child of Isaac and Lucy (Robinson) Decker, and, in her fourth year, removed with her parents to Gardiner, where she lived until her marriage, Dec. 25, 1845, when Hallowell became her home. She afterwards resided for five years in Richmond, and in 1862 removed to Yarmouth, where she still remains. In 1867, she became a regular contributor to the Portland Transcript, which relation has been sustained to the present time. Her contributions to this paper have been chiefly reviews and notices of new publications. Hundreds of volumes have in this way, passed under her pen. For more than thirty years she has been a writer for the press, contributing to various weekly and monthly periodicals, mainly articles of a religious character.

Mrs. Wellcome has for many years been connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and, in 1874, was requested by her Presiding Elder to go before the Ministerial Conference, about to hold a session in Portland, as a candidate for a local preacher's license. She was reluctant to take this unusual step, but at last consented and presented herself for examination, which proved eminently successful. The matter occasioned warm discussion among the ministers, but with this result: "That for the first time in N. England, and probably within the limits of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a woman was granted by a Quarterly Conference of ministers the rights and freedom to exercise her gifts as a local preacher." From that day to this, there has never been the slightest trouble as to the renewal of the license.

SMALL—The Portland Transcript, July 6, 1878, contains the following item relative to a young lady resident of this place: "In Schumakers' window is a spirited crayon of a handsome boy of sixteen, executed by his cousin, Miss Leila L. Small, of Yarmouth, who is developing a remarkable talent in this line of art." And in a notice of the County Fair, Oct. 12, 1878, there is this reference: "The art display was not large, but there was a creditable crayon copy of a landscape by S. D. Seabury, of Yarmouth, and a well-executed crayon head of a child, by Miss Leila L. Small, of Yarmouth."

Miss Small is at present devoting herself to conscientious study of her art, in Boston, under the best instruction. Her intuitions and perceptions are unusually quick, hence her progress is rapid, and there is good promise that she will develope into an artist of genuine power. She was born in Lisbon, Me., Mar. —, 1859.

Miss Small's mother was Miss Jane Small, daughter of Daniel Small, of Freeport, and sister of Capt. Charles and Capt. Alfred Small. She married Thomas Small, of Lisbon, a very able and energetic man, from whom (the modest little mother says) Miss Leila derives her quick and ready brain.

FELT—Essex County Registry of Deeds (at Salem, Mass.), pp. 32-138. Moses Felt, aged 63, deposes about land near Mussel Cove and the Three Brothers Islands and Little Chebeague Island, "which my Brother George Felt, late of Casco Bay, possessed without molestation these fifty years, unless it was by the Indians driving them away." Sworn to 4 Mar. 171 $\frac{3}{4}$.

The above George Felt was killed on House Island, in 1676, as narrated by Willis. These two depositions show that he owned land within the limits of old North Yarmouth. Little Chebeague is now in the town of Cumberland.

Ibid; 32, 139. Moses Felt deposes: "that my Brother George Felt, late of Casco Bay, deceased by y^e Indian War. bought a tract or neck of land of William Hinds, late of Casco Bay, which is about 2 miles or thereabouts & butts against Tobacco Point Cove on one side & Little River on y^e other side, with all y^e marsh belonging, which my brother George Felt bought of said Hinds all his right, &c, to y^e tract called Pine Point & quietly possessed it till y^e Indian war drove them away."

"Tobacco Point" was the Little Flying Point, as laid down on the United States chart. Who was the above William Hinds?

MISS OLIVE GRAY.

[By N. T. TRUE, M. D.]

Among the notable characters living in North Yarmouth half a century ago, must be recorded the name of Miss OLIVE GRAY. Her father was Capt. John Gray (see page 346, OLD TIMES), who was born Nov. 29, 1732, and died Dec. 27, 1796. He married Sarah Mitchell, who died May 26, 1796, aged 60 years.

Olive, the youngest of a family of twelve children, was born in 1779. What would be rather singular, though a blessing at the present day, is the fact that not one of these twelve children had a double name, nor, so far as we know, ever suffered any inconvenience from the omission.

Miss Gray was socially connected with the most prominent families of the town. Her education was probably considerably in advance of that of her early female associates. Besides her home and common-school training, she attended a boarding-school in Hingham, Mass., when she was twenty years old. This school was kept by a Mrs. ——— Dawes, mother of Mr. ——— Dawes who was well known in North Yarmouth fifty years ago in the employ of William R. Stockbridge. Miss Gray attended this school more or less during the years 1799 and 1800. Whether she had taught school previous to establishing her private school, I have no information; but the first of which I have any notice was taught in the Cutter House, below the Ledge. This was about the year 1816, which she followed almost constantly till 1843. She afterwards had a room in the house of General Edward Russell, but, her school increasing, she removed to the upper part of the Academy, which had been fitted up as a Masonic Hall, but had been abandoned during the Morgan excitement. This was in 1832-3. Afterwards she taught in the house of Mr. Joseph Holmes; then again in Gen. Russell's house, and then in the Masonic Hall, which she occupied several years. Her school soon became popular, and she was patronized by many of the wealthy and aristocratic families of the vicinity. Her last teaching was in the public school in District No. 9.

Probably a more exacting teacher never lived in the town. The lessons were assigned to be studied, and to be recited in such a way as to give entire satisfaction. The young ladies attended to painting, as their principal accomplishment. This was done chiefly, if not entirely, in water-colors, in accordance with the fashion of that day. These were executed by copying from patterns, or theorems. Though her attainments may not have been such as would compare with those now furnished in the more modern female seminary, yet they served a good purpose in refining the tastes of her pupils, and cultivating their perceptive powers.

In her estimation, good manners were as essential a part of an education to both sexes as that acquired from books. Accordingly, the utmost attention was constantly given to this part of her instruction. Boys and girls alike, were required to sit in just such a position, walk with just such a gait, and speak in a medium pitch of voice. An anecdote is related by one of her surviving pupils, of quite a young miss who could not seem naturally to comply with her requirements in these particulars, when, after reproval from her teacher, she went home, and exclaimed, "I do love everything God has made, except Miss Olive Gray."

Although she secured the respect of her pupils in a remarkable manner, yet if her spirit could come forth and meet some of the wicked spirits among the boys who have since become men, we doubt not that they would tremble before her piercing glance. There is no doubt that her humble influence as a teacher was of the greatest value in imparting to her pupils such instruction, intellectual, moral and religious, as served to mould their characters into a noble man and womanhood.

Miss Gray was a perfect model of everything she demanded of others. She was always dressed in the neatest manner possible. She walked with an erect figure and graceful, elastic step, even long beyond the years when this was expected of any one. She might make a cutting remark, but it was never spoken above a medium pitch of the voice. Thus she always maintained the carriage of a lady of the olden school, erect, dignified and precise in appearance and language. It is doubtful if any one of her pupils ever excelled her in this respect. She could tolerate no rudeness in her presence. Her eyes were of a dark hazel, and were very expressive. Her great precision of manner repelled from her the attentions of the other sex. No hero of a hundred battles, who knew her, would have dared to approach her with an offer of marriage. Among her peculiarities was her desire to have the same corner of the tablecloth always placed before her.

She continued to teach till about the year 1843, when greater facilities were given in the common schools and academy, and her increasing years seemed to supersede the necessity of such a school. She however maintained to the letter, through her long life, the same precision of character. No one living at the time seemed to know her age, or dared to ask of her a word upon the subject. She continued to dress like a middle-aged lady, wore a profusion of dark false hair, nicely adjusted, so that in her old age she never looked much older than fifty years. Her teeth were perfect at the time of her death,

She had for many years expressed a desire to die suddenly, so as not to be a burden on any one. Her wish was granted. While returning from a social circle, with which she had long been connected, she was suddenly siezed with pain, but recovered, and died of disease of the heart the next evening, Aug. 24, 1860, at the house of Mr. Gad Hitchcock, with whom she had boarded for the last two years of her life. Her age was 81.

The day after the first illness, she expressed the feeling that she was near death, and remarked, "I think I know in whom I have believed, and He will not fail me." The funeral services were held at the First Parish Church, Aug. 26, 1860, by Prof. A. S. Packard, of Bowdoin College. She left some property, out of the avails of which a family monument was erected in the Old Church Yard, where she was buried.

For several important facts in the above sketch, I am indebted to Capt. Nicholas Drinkwater and Mrs. Mary E. Hitchcock, of Yarmouth, Maine. Capt. Drinkwater's letter is appended :—

YARMOUTH, Dec. 18, 1880.

Dr. N. T. TRUE, Gorham, N. H.

Dear Sir: I have delayed answering yours of the 7th, in order to find a more perfect record of Miss Gray's family than I then possessed.

Capt. John Gray, born Nov. 29, 1732, was the eldest child of Andrew Gray, by his first wife, Phebe Chandler. By this wife, there were four sons and two daughters, as given on page 346, OLD TIMES.

Phebe (Chandler) Gray died Sept. 3, 1744, aged 37 years, and Dec. 19, 1745, Andrew Gray married Zeruah (Standish) Ring. By this marriage there was one son, Ebenezer, born Sept. 23, 1746 and died June 19, 1777. Andrew Gray was drowned in crossing Broad Cove, Dec. 19, 1757, aged 51.

John Gray married Sarah Mitchell, in 1755. Their children were :—

1 Phebe; b. Dec. 11, 1755; d. Jan. 27, 1822; m. Thomas Loring.

2 Andrew; b. July 28, 1758; drowned June 5, 1763.

3 Jane; b. Nov. 23, 1760; d. Oct. 4, 1839; m. Jacob Hayes.

4 Keziah; b. Mar. 29, 1763; d. Mar. 5, 1819; m. Perez Drinkwater.

5 Sarah; b. — — — 1765; d. Feb. 10, 1784.

6 Lot; b. and d. in 1767[?], aged 10 months.

7 Rachel; b. Sept. 20, 1767; d. Aug. 25, 1825; m. Zadoc Whitcomb.

8 Rhoda; b. Oct. 7, 1769; d. Aug. 21, 1831; m., Mar. 27, 1787, by Rev. Tristram Gilman, to Thaddeus Robbins.

9 John; b. Jan. 19, 1772; d. July 23, 1825; m. Joanna Drinkwater.

10 Jacob; b. Dec. 31, 1774; d. at St. Pierre, Martinique, June 10, 1798; m. Alpha Drinkwater.

11 David; b. Mar. 12, 1777; d. at Savannah, Aug. 6, 1819; m. Rachel Drinkwater.

12 Olive; b. May 25, 1779; d. Aug. 24, 1860.

Mother Gray says that Olive first commenced to teach in the Cutter House, below the Ledge, near the Old Meeting-house. My sister, Mrs. Wm. T. Baker, says she attended her school in 1834, in the Hawes House, or Holmes House, and she afterwards taught in General Russell's house. * * * * *

NICHOLAS DRINKWATER.

PARSON GILMAN'S SERMONS.

[Miss PHEBE M. BUXTON.]

A manuscript volume of Rev. Tristram Gilman's sermons is in the possession of one of his namesakes, Dea. T. G. Prince, of Cape Elizabeth. The book is of small size, but contains twenty-one sermons and sketches of discourses, written in a minute but very legible hand, and was undoubtedly intended for the preservation of such compositions as the writer anticipated using more than once. The notes appended to some of these discourses record the various times and places of their delivery, and give an idea of the venerable pastor's preaching circuit.

The second discourse in the volume was preached at the "Annual Thanksgiving, Dec. 12, 1776," from Ps. xxxiv, 1. While enforcing the duty of God's people to bless and praise Him at all times, the preacher indulges in despondent views respecting his country's condition. "I know not how others view ye State of our publick Affairs, but to me they wear a gloomy Aspect. The British Armies already in America have not only gained great Advantages against us, but it seems probable more foreign Troops are contracted for by ye British Court, while we have no certainty of any foreign Assistance at all. Our only Dependence is upon ye Lord our God, and Him we continue to provoke by our Impieties and Immoralities. O it is certainly high Time for us to repent and return to ye Lord, otherwise we may fear He will yet punish us seven Times for our Iniquities."

Another sermon was preached at Raymond, March 27, 1768, and again at Candia, Nov. 6, 1768; with additions at North Yarmouth as a sacramental lecture, Sept. 20. 1770; at New Casco, Aug. 18, 1775; and twice more at North Yarmouth, in 1776 and 1793.

A discourse whose earliest date was Dec., 1769, appears to have been a favorite with preacher or people, judging from its numerous repetitions. Preached first at North Yarmouth on the date mentioned, it reappears "in part" at Kennebunk, Jan., 1770; at North Yarmouth again, March, 1774; at "Harrisicket," Feb., 1777; at Royalsborough, March, 1777; at North Yarmouth the third time, Dec., 1780; at North Yarmouth the fourth time, Mar., 1783; at the "New School House, Walnut Hill," Aug., 1791; and at North Yarmouth for the fifth time, Nov., 1796.

A "Quarterly Lecture" on Jan., 1796, was repeated at New Gloucester, April, 1801; at "Exeter, New Ch.," June, 1801; and at "Gray, when about gathering a church," June, 1803.

From the text in Tim., "Preach the Word," there is a discourse of unusual length to which Mr. Gilman has appended this note: "Pr. ye 2d Sabbath and the first time I pr. after my Ordination."

Dec. 2, 1781, Mr. Gilman preached a sermon at North Yarmouth which he repeated there Feb., 1784. It next appears as a "Lecture at Josiah Skillens," Sept., 1785; then at "Capt. Prince's," Aug., 1791; at "Bakers Town," July, 1793; and afterwards at "Chebeag," Sept., 1804.

Mr. Gilman makes but little use in this manuscript of anything like short-hand,—a few familiar symbols and abbreviations are alone employed. Besides such notes as those above quoted, others are occasionally found relating to the weather or the numbers present at divine service.

BRADBURY FAMILY.

[Dr. CHARLES E. BANKS.]

Assistant-Surgeon, Marine-Hospital Service.

ARMS: Sable, between a chevron ermine, three buckle-tongues argent.

CREST: A dove argent bearing in beak a branch with leaves vert, fructed gules, rising from wicker.

The genealogical fate of this family has been a fortunate one. Its own members and the descendants of collateral branches have been zealous in the preservation and publication of its records from time to time, which may be found scattered through the various periodicals devoted to such material. As yet the full connection of the North Yarmouth twig has not been printed. For this purpose the following sketch has been prepared, and the direct descent of the old settlers epitomized in preference to a reproduction of the full family history. To such as desire consultation of the complete records, they are referred to Historical Magazine. (2d series) Vol. IV. 205; Buxton Centennial, 236; New-England Historical & Genealogical Register, XXIII, from which, with the author's own notes, this is compiled.

He removed to Salisbury, Mass., in 1636, and married that year, Mary, daughter of John and Judith Perkins, of Ipswich. PROPRIETORS' RECORDS, NORTH YARMOUTH, MAINE.

COMMITTEE MEETING,
JULY 27, 1728.

Att a Meeting of the Committee of North Yarmouth, July 27, 1728, at y^e house of M^r John Pitson, in Boston, the Committee haveing heretofore directed Cap^t Jeremiah Moulton & M^r Benjamin Flagg to survey & lay out One Hundred & Three Home Lots of Land on North Yarmouth Neck, and the lands adjoining thereto lying on the west side of Royal's River, a Platt whereof was returned to us & the Lotts drawn for May 18, 1727: But y^e Sub-Committee of Northyarmouth haveing by a writing under their Hands & by word of Mouth represented to us that the said Survey cannot in justice stand good forasmuch as the said

Sub-Committee have lately tryed several of the Lots lying by the Water & find some of them do exceed the Quantity which they was laid out for, viz, Ten Acres, and some other of said Lots fall short of that measure, & that the Lines do not run straight, as they are laid down in the Platt, but y^e Lots interfere with each other, whereby great Ill Conveniences & Differences are likely to arise.

For Prevention thereof, It is Agreed, Voted & Ordered, That a Reform or New Survey [see "Proprietors' Plan," and map, pages 482-4, OLD TIMES] be made of all the Home Lots, being One Hundred & Three in number, beginning at Holman's Point & to run round Yarmouth Neck, taking in all the Lots thereon, home to the Farm formerly Walter Gendall's, & that y^e s^d Farm be reckoned & accounted the One Hundred & Third Lot, & when any of the Lots exceeds the Quantity of Ten Acres there shall be a Reduction made at y^e end of the Lots that lye farthest from the water. And, as the Lot number Twenty Six is now but Seven Acres, It is Agreed, Voted & Ordered, that there shall be an addition made to it of Three Acres of y^e Land adjoining, to make up the said lot to Ten Acres, equal with y^e other Lots, and where any of the other Lots fall short of Ten Acres, they shall be made up that Quantity by an addition of land lying at y^e end of the lots that lye farthest from the water: & that ye Points of Compass on which the lines of all the said Lots run shall be laid down in a Plat, and that the said Sub-Committee take due care that the Survey be done in the best manner that may be, & a fair Plat of the whole be taken & returned to the Committee.

Whereas Samuel Baker, the owner of the Lot number Fifty Two, thro' which there is a stream of water running, belonging to the Town, the situation of the s^d Lot is like to prove a hindrance to the settlement of the Town, & also hurtful to the Interest of y^e s^d Samuel Baker: Wherefore It is Agreed & Voted, That the s^d Lot be new laid out in some other place where the said Baker shall make choice of, on y^e Land not already taken up on Yarmouth Neck, lying between Felt's Falls & the west side of Royal's River, & be numbered Fifty Two, and that upon Return of y^e said Lots being new laid out, the said Baker's Right & Title to the Lot laid by s^d stream shall be disallowed of, made null, void & of none effect, and the new Lot shall be confirmed to him the said Samuel Baker.

ORDER FOR REMOVAL OF LOTS.

Whereas the Sub-Committee of North Yarmouth have represented to us that the Lots numbered Sixty Nine, Seventy, Seventy One, Seventy Two, Seventy Three, Ninety Nine, One Hundred, One Hundred & One and One Hundred & Two, are some of them laid out remote, & others of them Ill convenient, which will retard & hinder the settlement of the Town, and that by a Reform or New Survey. being made there will be a Sufficient Quantity of Land on Yarmouth Neck, between Felt's Falls and the west side of Royal's River, to lay out the said lots better for the interest of the owners of said Lots, and more compact & beneficial for the Town, and y^e Sub-Committee & y^e owners of y^e said Lots desiring & requesting us that y^e situation of the said Home Lots may be removed, and anew laid out on Yarmouth Neck, aforesaid,— Agreed, Voted & Ordered, that y^e aforesaid Lots, each of them containing Ten Acres, be anew laid out on the said Neck of Land, between Felt's Falls and y^e west side of Royal's River, as regular & compact as may be, & numbered with the same numbers as above, & that upon the return of the new Survey, & laying out of the Lots, the other Survey & laying out of the Lots shall be disallowed of, become null, void & of none effect, to all Intents & Purposes.

Voted, that y^e Sum of One Hundred Pounds be paid to y^e Rev^d M^r Samuel Seabury, in Part of his Salary, out of the Three Pounds ordered to be levied on each Lot. The Thirty Pounds which the Committee, on the Twenty Fifth of May, ordered to be paid Him, is to be accounted Part thereof. & that John Smith draw Orders on the Paritcular Proprietors on the Spot, to pay their respective part thereof to Deacon Samuel Seabury, & when the money is received he shall pay the same to The Reverend M^r Samuel Seabury, taking his Receipt for the same, and the remaining part of y^e One Hundred Pounds John Smith is to pay when he hath received it.

At a meeting of the Committee for Re-COMMITTEE MEETING, settling y^e Town of Northyarmouth, in APR. 19, 1729. Casco Bay, April 19th, 1729, Pursuant to the Desire & Request of the Proprietors of Northyarmouth, it is Agreed & Voted that y^e sum of Three Pounds be levied & raised on each of the Home Lots, as well y^e Lots formerly granted as those lately granted by the Committee, throughout the said Township, the Minister's, Ministerial & School Lots only excepted, It being for the Payment of two years' salary which in November next will be due to M^r Samuel Seabury for his work in y^e Ministry in said Town, & each of the Proprietors' Lots are hereby obliged forthwith to pay their respective Parts & Proportions thereof to M^r James Parker, & when he hath received the money shall deduct out what M^r Samuel Seabury hath already received by order of the Committee, & shall pay to him what shall remain due for his salary till November next, taking his receipt for the same, & to give in & settle the account thereof with the Committee.

Whereas the Sub-Committee & Proprietors at Northyarmouth have made choice of M^r Samuel Seabury to be settled & ordained in the Work of the Ministry in that Town, & have voted that y^e sum of Two Hundred Pounds in Province Bills shall be granted & paid to him towards his settlement, one half thereof to be paid in Four Months & the other half Twelve Months after his Ordination there: and have further Voted that the sum of One Hundred & Twenty Pounds salary shall be paid him, one half thereof in April & the other half in October, yearly, & every year that he shall continue in the work of the Ministry in the s^d Town, which the other Proprietors here have consented to.

Wherefore it is agreed & voted that the said votes & terms are approved of & consented to by y^e Committee upon condition that if it shall so happen that M^r Samuel Seabury shall not continue in the work of the ministry in said Town Three Years after his Ordination there, he shall repay back unto the Committee or Selectmen of the Town for the Time Being, the Two Hundred Pounds granted him for his settlement, Extraordinary Providence only excepted.

Whereas the Proprietors at Northyarmouth have appointed M^r James Parker, Deacon Samuel Seabury & M^r Phinehas Jones a Committee to manage the affairs of building a Meeting-House in said Town, & voted that Six Hundred Pounds shall be raised by the Proprietors for the Payment thereof, & that the said Votes may be laid before the General Assembly, the Committee do approve of the building of the said Meeting-House, and it is Agreed & Voted that the aforesaid Vote of the said Proprietors, & also a Platt of the Bounds of the Whole Town, together with the Proceedings & Transactions of the Committee, shall be laid before the Great & General Assembly, at their next Session, for their confirmation, & for their further Advice & Direction relating to the Concerns & Settlement of the said Town. [Signed by the Committee, as on p. 732.]

At a meeting of the Committee for Re-settling the Town of Northyarmouth, in Casco Bay, at the House of M^r Luke Vardy[?], in Boston, July 14, 1729: It is Agreed and Voted that each & every of the Proprietors of the Lots of Land in the Town of North Yarmouth shall pay the sum of Three Pounds on each Lot, being One Half of Six Hundred Pounds mentioned in the votes of the Committee, &c, April 19th, 1729, being for erecting a House of Publick Worship, and the said Proprietors are hereby notified & directed to pay the said sum of Three Hundred Pounds, & also the other Three Hundred Pounds for paying the Rev^d Minister according to contract, all to be paid into the hands of M^r James Parker, Deacon Samuel Seabury & M^r Phinehas Jones, or any one of them that shall be empowered by the other two.

COMMITTEE MEETING

JULY 14, 1729.

Whereas the Committee at their meeting, May 25, 1728, appointed Mes^{rs} Samuel Seabury, James Parker, Jacob Mitchell, Gershom Rice & Phinehas Jones, to be a Sub-Committee to manage the Prudentials of said Town for one year, which time being expired, It is now Agreed & Voted that the said Samuel Seabury, James Parker, Jacob Mitchell, Gershom Rice & Phinehas Jones, be & hereby are appointed a Sub-Committee to reside at North yarmouth, to manage the Prudentials of s^d Town for one year, to be reckoned & accounted from y^e 25th of May last past, they observing the directions which they shall receive from us, and that they keep an exact account of their Proceedings, and that they remit the same to us for our consent and approbation, and that they render unto us an account of the charge of laying out and clearing the Roads and Highways, [and] of their Proceedings the last year.

Whereas it is not yet fully known how much of the Marshes or Meadows in the s^d Town is appropriated, nor what Quantity is still remaining to be divided among the Proprietors, it is therefore Agreed & Voted that the afores^d Sub-Committee cause the said Meadows for this year to be divided and proportioned equally to such Proprietors as shall appear to improve the same.

Whereas there is a considerable Tract of Land in Northyarmouth, which is claimed by Peter Weare and other persons, and they say they originally derive their title from Col^r Bartholomew Gidney, by virtue of an Indian Deed, or Grant, which is greatly injurious & hurtful to the Town, and there being a necessity of disputing their Title in the Law, and Deacon Samuel Seabury & M^r James Parker, in the name of the Proprietors, request that the Committee will take care that the said Title may be tried in the Law, as soon as may be, & in order thereto that a Tax of Twenty Shillings shall be raised and laid on each Lot, for paying and defraying y^e charges of going to Law for s^d Land & for other charges that may attend it. Agreed & Voted that the said Tax of Twenty Shillings be laid and raised on each Lot, as well those formerly granted as those lately granted by the Committee throughout the said Township: the Proprietors in and about Boston to pay their respective Parts and Proportions thereof into y^e hands of M^r John Powell, and the Proprietors in and about Northyarmouth to pay their respective Parts & Proportions thereof into the hands of M^r James Parker, to be paid by him into the hands of the Committee, to be towards the carrying on the needful Lawsuits and Charges for recovering the said Lands.

Whereas Joseph Felt, without Liberty took up and built a house on a piece of Land at Northyarmouth, without having any Right or Title thereto, & was killed upon the Spot, and his Family carried into Captivity, which said Land is since laid out into a Home Lot, N^o 49, which fell to M^r John Powell when the Lots were drawn for, and Sarah Felt, the widow of the said Joseph Felt, being returned from captivity, the Sub-Committee are hereby directed to make some Proposals of Allowance to y^e said Widow, either in Money or Land, in consideration of her Husband being killed there, &c, upon her & her heirs quitting all Pretences to the said Lots & Lands adjoyning to which her said Husband built & settled upon as afores^d, & to remit the same to the Committee, for their consent & approbation. WILLIAM ROYALL—[1639] "One Mr. Ryall having gotten a patent at Sagadahoc out of the grand patent, wrote to our governour and tendered it to our government so as we would send people to possess it. The governour acquainted the general court with it, but nothing was done about it, for we were not ready for such a business, having enough to do at home."

Winthrop's Journal, Savage's ed., 1853, I. 366.

Judge Savage, in his notes on this passage, says he is unable to find any record of this grant to Royal, unless it be identical with that mentioned in Sullivan's Hist. of the Dist. of Maine, 182-4, reprinted on p. 17, OLD TIMES. As to the "grand patent," he thinks the original patent of 18 Jac. I., 3 Nov., usually called the Plymouth Charter, is not intended, but one of much narrower limits, 15 Car. I., 3 Apr., which may be found in Hazard, 442-55. Savage adds: "Royal's letter must have been written immediately after the king's grant, in anticipation of which he, probably, had made his arrangements with Gorges."

It places this pioneer very early (1639) in the region of Old Westcustogo, where he undoubtedly had been for some time previous. (18. 7 7) C. E. B.

VIDETO—Comfort Videto, a former resident of North Yarmouth, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He served two or three enlistments. His discharge from the Army, signed by General Edward Russell, is still in the Groves family. He was the grandfather of Miss Lucy V. Groves, postmistress at Yarmouth. Miss Groves, under date of Nov. 3, 1880, writes that but two of the family are now living.—her aunts, Mrs. Mary Mitchell, aged 82, and Mrs. Olive Brown, aged 79.

The name of Videto appears in OLD TIMES, and papers on file for publication, as follows: On p. 338, where Comfort Videto appears as a private in Capt. ——— Brown's company of Colonel Russell's regiment, age, 19; height, 5 ft. 7 in.; dark complexion, dark eyes and black hair; a resident of No. Yarmouth; enlisted for 3 years; discharged, Jan. 9, 1782. On p. 340, under date of Feb. 5, 1782, having re-enlisted, he engages to deliver himself and other soldiers to the proper officers in Boston. Previous to this, as shown on p. 294, he had served from July 7th to Sept. 12, 1779, in Capt. John Gray's company of Col. Jonathan Mitchell's regiment, in the Penobscot Expedition. Under date of Oct. 11, 1800, his name again appears in the postage-account on p. 10. From other sources it is learned that he was living in the town in 1796, his name appearing in a list of subscribers for the "Baptist Confession of Faith." (gg)

The name of Joseph Videto appears in some old papers under date of 1795, North Yarmouth. (gg)

Lucy and Hannah Videto appear as widows in No. Yarmouth, in 1821, p. 586. On p. 213, under date of Oct. 5, 1840, is the record of burial of "Old Mrs. ——— Videtto."

Will some one of the descendants furnish further information about this family?

YARMOUTH CORNER.

The following sketch of the Corner Village, Yarmouth, Maine, as it was about 1850, has been furnished by an old resident of the town. Additions and corrections are solicited. The names of the original owners of the buildings, with any particulars of extraordinary events connected with the same, will be appreciated and acknowledged.

As an aid in tracing localities of particular houses, the diagram opposite this page will be found useful. No attempt has been made to give the proper proportions, as no measurements were available, but with the diagram and the text it is easy to locate any building then existing in the village.

My starting-point, in describing the village, will be from the junction of the roads which gave this part of the town the well-known appellation of "Corner." The county road from Portland to New-Gloucester, Durham and Pownal, crosses Main Street (which is the broad road from the Falls Village to Walnut Hill) in the heart of the Corner Village, and with this point as a landmark we will begin our walk about the neighborhood.

In the middle of the New-Gloucester road, (or Gooch Lane, as it is called at this point), where it joins Main Street, was a large guide-board, with four arms, mounted on a huge stone post. One arm, pointing down Gooch Lane towards the river, bore on its sides, "New-Gloucester:" "S.-W. Bend, Durham." Another, pointing about south-west, gave "Portland." Another gave "Walnut Hill:" "Gray." The other, pointing down Main Street, bore the word "Freeport," Portland Street—South side.

Starting south-westerly up the Portland road, or Portland Street, the old-fashioned, two-story house on the left-hand corner of the street was known as the "Parsons house," having formerly been owned and occupied by Dr. William Parsons, originally of Gloucester, Mass. (see p. 64, OLD TIMES, and p. 55, 1st Ch. Cat.) After his death, which took place about 1834, the house was occupied by his widow, Judith (Porter) Parsons, (825 1st Ch,) who died Oct. 15, 1857, age 79, and their daughters, Louisa and Elizabeth P. (702, 1st Ch.) Louisa married Rev. Amasa Loring, a Congregationalist minister.

Capt. Miles Standish York, a sea-captain, also lived in the Parsons house. His wife was Susan Byram (see 225, Drinkwater Family, p. 401, OLD TIMES.) They had children Milton, Henry Ashland and Susan Jane York. Other children of theirs are mentioned on pp. 302 and 335.

I think that Nathaniel Haynes, the tin-smith, also lived in the Parsons house several years.

Passing up the left-hand side we come to the hay-scales, about six rods above the end of the Parsons house-lot. Robt. E. Corliss had charge of the scales for many years, receiving a small fee for each load weighed thereon.

The street near the hay-scales was a favorite play-ground for the boys of the village, and here they met for base-ball, and other games, nearly every afternoon in the spring and summer. The boys of the village that I remember about the date given, were: Hezekiah E., Philip S. and Benjamin F. Corliss, sons of John Corliss, the fisherman; Augustus W. Corliss, son of Robert E. Corliss; Payne E. Cleaves, son of David Cleaves, the potter; Charles W. Sawyer, son of Capt. William Sawyer, and grandson of Ebenezer Corliss; Algernon O. Smith, son of William M. Smith (see No. 232, p. 401); Ferdinand I. Storer, son of Ammi Storer; Charles H. Newell, son of Hosea Newell; Jeremiah, George D. and Ansel L. Loring, sons of Jeremiah Loring, the carpenter; Benjamin Woodbury, son of Benjamin Woodbury, the butcher; David W. Blanchard, son of Capt. Sylvanus C. Blanchard; Jacob B. Mitchell, son of Jeremiah Mitchell, the tavern-keeper; Edward G. Storer, son of William C. Storer, the store-keeper; Grenville M. and Benjamin Jefferds, sons of Benjamin F. Jefferds, the harness-maker; William S. McClanning, son of the widow ——— McClanning; Norman N. Pratt, son of Capt. Darius Pratt; Addison G. and John R. Prince, sons of Capt. Rudduck Prince; Gustavus, Charles H. and John H. Storer, sons of Maj. Richmond L. Storer, the shoe-maker; William C. Sweetser, a lame boy, son of Capt. William Sweetser; Walter S. Brown (called "Scott Brown"), son of Thomas J. Brown, the auctioneer, tailor and stable-keeper; Freeman Pratt, son of Thomas Pratt, the mill-man; Sidney H., Josiah, Asa L. and Benjamin H. Lane, sons of Edmund C. Lane, the tanner; George W. and John H. Humphrey, sons of the widow Elizabeth Humphrey (relict of Capt. John H., lost at sea); William T., Amos and James H. Corliss, sons of Amos Corliss, the carpenter and farmer, Sligo road; Jeremiah and Albert O. Baker, sons of Capt. Jeremiah Baker; George Alvah Humphrey (called "Alvah"), son of the widow Ruth, relict of Capt. John Humphrey; Alfred and Charles York, sons of Elliot York, the carpenter; George, James, John and Asa, sons of Asa York, a farmer on the Sligo road; Charles H. and William T. Russell, sons of William Russell, a farmer on the Sligo road; Edward C., Franklin (adopted by the brothers Saml. and Wm. Thomas as Frank P. Thomas), William and Henry (twins), sons of Capt. Timothy Pratt, a sea-captain; Perez C. and Samuel Gooding, sons of Capt. Samuel Gooding who lived just across the Cumberland line; Thomas and Edward Mitchell, sons of Capt. Thomas B. Mitchell; Octavius A. and Andrew J., sons of Capt. James C. Hill; George Sherburn Haven (called "Sherb Haven"), son of Andrew Haven, the blacksmith; Joseph Prince, a half-brother to George S. Haven; Thomas Harvey, son of George Harvey, the shoe-maker; Alonzo K. Grouse, a half-witted son of the widow Sally Grouse; William and John White, sons of John White; Martin F. Noyes, son of Elisha Noyes, the miller; John E. and George W. Brooks, sons of Joel Brooks, the potter; Sidney and Joseph Alvin Gooch (called "Alvin" Gooch), sons of Rufus Gooch; Nathaniel, Benjamin, Charles Austin (called "Austin"), and Sumner T. Gooch, sons of Benjamin Gooch; William Prince, son of Capt. Sylvanus Prince; Asa O. and Jacob Bradford (called "Brad") Lufkin, sons of Jacob B. Lufkin, the butcher and farmer; Milton Standish York, son of Capt. Miles S. York; Henry A. Haynes, son of Nathaniel Haynes, the tin-smith; George Storer, son of Amos Storer; Samuel True, son of widow Mary True; John Russell, son of ——— Russell; Stephen and Rufus T. Twombly, sons of ——— Twombly; Chauncey B. and Henry C. Webster, sons of Capt. Levi Webster.

The next house, just beyond and on the same side as the hay-scales, and nearly opposite the foot of the street headed by the Baptist church, was a small, yellow cottage, owned and occupied by Joseph Greenleaf, a shoemaker. He was buried Dec. 28, 1851, aged 75 (see p. 336.) His family consisted of himself, his wife, sons Amos and Henry C., and daughter Susan Greenleaf. Mr. Greenleaf was the inventor of a clothes-washer. (667)

Next was a double-tenement two-story house, broadside to the street, owned and occupied by David Cleaves, a potter, originally from Saco. His wife, Lydia, was a daughter of Ebenezer Corliss. He had two sons, Robert C. Cleaves, a potter, who married Emma Knight, of Gorham, and Payne E. Cleaves, a sailor, who now lives in Oregon. Mr. Cleaves occupied the western part of the house, with his sons and daughter-in-law. The other side was occupied many years by Ammi Storer and family, and subsequently by David Abbott (see p. 416), a currier who worked for Edmund C. Lane, the tanner.

Next was a large, two-story house, end to the street, exactly opposite David Cleaves' pottery, owned and occupied by Capt. Sylvanus C. Blanchard, a sea-captain, and extensively engaged in ship-building. He had one son, David W. Blanchard, who is now (1881) commander of the good ship Commodore.

Next above was the huge barn of Benjamin Woodbury, standing about four rods back from the street, and back of, and just above the barn, was his low, black, old-fashioned cottage, facing down on Woodbury's Lane. The old house had an unusually large chimney and very small windows. Mr. Woodbury was a butcher and farmer. He had one son, Benjamin Woodbury (buried May 6, 1865, see p. 415), and one daughter, Theresa Woodbury. Others of their children are mentioned on pp. 214, 257, 258 and 336. A boy named John Reed, a relative, also lived in the family at one time. This house and lot was a part of the old John Reed farm. The house was once owned by Dr. Ammi R. Mitchell. Husking-parties every fall filled this roomy old barn with jolly people, and the well-spread table and plethoric black bottle (of Maine Law extract) of Uncle Ben received devoted attention from the hungry and thirsty crowd. Mrs. Woodbury was a model farmer's wife, and her bright tin milk-pans, nice milk and yellow butter were famous all around the neighborhood.

Next above the Woodbury place was the large, two-story house of Jeremiah Loring, a house-carpenter. He had a son Jeremiah, a sailor, Ansel L., the well-known merchant and mill-owner who married Lucy Ellen Haven, daughter of Andrew Haven, the blacksmith, and George D. Loring, who now lives at Princeton, Minn.

Next was the cottage of Reuben Byram, a mason, who resided there with his wife and daughter Louisa. His son Denis Byram, also a mason, married Huldah, daughter of Ammi M. Loring, the sexton of the Baptist church.

Next was the cottage of Capt. Charles Small. Capt. Small died Sept. 10, 1875, aged 59 (p. 474.) His wife was Mary L. Mitchell (1286, 1st Ch.) Two of their children are mentioned on p. 335. For an account of the distinguished bravery of Capt. S. see pp. 688-693, OLD TIMES.

Next, and near the corner of the street running towards the railroad, was the cottage of Patten Jackson. Mr. Jackson was buried Oct. 16, 1852, aged 73 (see p. 336.) His wife was buried Dec. 26, 1847 (see p. 302.) A daughter, Sarah, was buried Oct. 28, 1840 (see p. 213.) Two daughters, Mary Ann and Amanda, lived here for many years. They both worked in the Biddeford and Saco cotton-factories, and, afterwards, in the one at the Falls Village. Amanda was buried Oct. 4, 1863, aged 58 (see p. 414.) Mary Ann, the last of the family, was buried from the almshouse, Feb. —, 1867, aged 67 (see p. 416.)

The Jackson house was the last one on this side of the street until about 1850, when Mr. Hosea Newell built his two-story mansion out beyond where South Street enters Portland Street. Mr. Newell was a member of the firm of Newell & Fogg, Main St. merchants. His family consisted of his wife (Esther (Marean), 1063, 1st Ch.), son Charles H. and daughters Esther W. and Ellen. Mr. Newell came to Yarmouth from Powual, about 1847. He was buried Mar. 19, 1855, aged 47 (see p. 367.) His wife and children moved to Portland about 1863.

Out near the Cumberland line, where the branch of the county road turns off to the Falls Village, lived a negro family by the name of Carter. John Carter, the father, (861, 1st Ch.) was a farmer and day-laborer. His first wife, Nancy, (862, 1st Ch.), died Feb. 19, 1835, aged 35. His second wife was buried Nov. 1, 1868, aged 87 (see p. 417.) His son, John Carter, was employed for many years as a hostler in Thos. J. Brown's stables.

Portland Street—North side.

On the corner, facing on both Main and Portland Streets, was the house now owned and occupied by Joseph Chenery, which was then owned by Jeremiah Mitchell (No. 68, p. 253), and was kept by him as a tavern and stage-station. After the railroad came to the town, which soon broke up the principal stage-lines, there was not much custom for the old tavern, but it struggled along a few years ere it became a private residence. The last years of its career as a tavern its sign read, "Temperance House, J. Mitchell." Mr. Mitchell had sons John M., Richmond and Jacob B., and daughters Susan W. and Hannah B. Miss Hannah B. Mitchell taught a private school several years, in the upper part of the old house, on Main street, occupied by "Granny Pierce." A very tall old gentleman, named ——— March, a relative of Mrs. M., lived in the family for a long time. Mr. March possessed an ample fund of stories, and his entertaining anecdotes made him a great favorite among the boys, who also gave him reverence as a direct descendant of "Joe Weare, the Indian-killer." The daily stages to and from Portland stopped at this house, and attached to it was a large barn, extending up Portland Street, to accommodate the stage-horses. As the walls of this barn faced southerly, and were usually warm and sunny, the location was always a favorite "loafing-place," especially during the base-ball season.

Next above the Mitchell tavern were the extensive barns and out-buildings of Ebenezer Corliss; but as his house belongs on Baptist Street they will be taken up when we visit that locality.

On the north-west corner of the two streets stood the large, two-story, hip-roofed house of Richmond L. Cutter (who died Apr. 15, 1857, aged 62 (see p. 368.) Mr. Cutter was a merchant, on Main Street. His family consisted of his wife, Sarah E. (Leeds) Cutter, and daughters, Hephzibah D. B., who married Willard W. True, of Yarmouth, Elizabeth L., who married Enos Chandler, of Yarmouth, lost at sea, in 1864, and Sarah L., who married David M. Lawrence.

Just above the Cutter house stood a low-studded, old-fashioned red cottage, with a huge chimney, called the "old Corliss house." It is now one of the oldest houses at the Corner Village. This house was owned by Ebenezer Corliss, and was occupied by him when he first came to North Yarmouth. Here David Cleaves lived many years, until his house opposite was completed, when he was succeeded by Hosea Newell, of Newell & Fogg. It is now occupied by Lewis M. Corliss. I think this house was built by Jonathan Byram (No. 218, Drinkwater Family, p. 401.) Another authority states that it was built by Jotham Byram (see p. 174.)

The next building was Cleaves' pottery, owned by Ebenezer Corliss. This was the most extensive manufactory of earthenware in the town. It was carried on about 1806, by Ebenezer Corliss and George Bruce. It was, at the date of this article, in the hands of David Cleaves (see No. 69, Corliss Family, p. 288) and his son, Robert C. Cleaves. A very large amount of ware was made here every summer, and in the fall and winter it was "burned" in the large kiln above the pottery. "Uncle David's" shop was always a favorite resort for the boys, although he at times made it very lively for them with the stout hoop used by the potters for carrying their ware from the wheel to the drying-board. It is my impression that the editor of OLD TIMES has often been "fanned" with that hoop by his worthy uncle for his mischief among the pots and pans. The boys used to be paid one cent to sit upon the sweep of the clay-mill and keep the horse going while the clay was being ground, which took about an hour. Pieces of well-ground clay were in active demand among the little urchins, on account of its adaptability as a missile when flung from the end of a switch. The clay for the potteries was obtained near where Masonic Hall now stands. During the burning of the ware, it being necessary to keep up the fire several days and nights, it was the custom for the young men to collect there every night and play "old sledge," "raffle" for turkeys or "hustle" for coppers. When the ware was ready for market, it was shipped along the coast in small vessels, sometimes as far as Eastport, or peddled through the country in wagons or "pungs." Back of the pottery was an excellent, never-failing well of water, which was used by many of the neighbors.

The next building above Cleaves' pottery was an old two-story black house, just below the Universalist Chapel, owned by Ebenezer Corliss, and occupied by his son, Ebenezer Washington Corliss, called "Washington Corliss," a farmer and laborer. The family consisted of a son, Nathaniel G., and daughters Nancy and Julia (see p. 289.) Ebenezer W. Corliss died at Norway, Maine, Jan. 17, 1879, aged 77.

The next building was the Universalist Chapel, built in 1834 (see p. 56), which still stands unchanged. Among the pastors of this society I call to mind Revs. Zenas Thompson, B. R. Tasker, George W. Quinby (now publisher of the Gospel Banner), James Whittier, Henry R. Walworth and George G. Hamilton, the last-named being the one now in charge.

The next building, a fine, large, two-story house was occupied by Dr. G. P. Thompson, who died Oct. 30, 1880, aged 84 years, 4 mos. and 5 days. He was a homeopathic physician. He had a son Henry, who left home when a young man, and, I think, went to some city to learn the printing business. Another child of Dr. Thompson, aged 6 years, is mentioned on p. 336. Dr. Thompson married, 2d, Apr. 11, 1877, Louisa, daughter of Reuben Byram.

A short distance above Dr. Thompson's house a new street was laid out, connecting Portland Street with Cumberland road, but there were no houses on it at this time.

Some forty rods above Dr. Thompson's house, just below a little bridged gully, stood the slaughter-house of Benjamin Woodbury, in what was called "Reed's field." Above this was a large tract of uncleared land, called "Reed's pasture." At the top of the hill, in Reed's pasture, stood a small house that was occupied for many years by Patten Jackson. This was the last house on the Portland road.

Back of the old Jackson house, towards the Cumberland road, in the pasture, stood several shanties occupied by Irishmen who were employed on the A. & St. L. Railroad when it was being built through the town. Some of them afterwards settled here, among them being Patrick McGuire and Timothy Mahoney. A son of Mahoney, also named Timothy, served in the Union Army during the Rebellion of 1861-5 (see p. 155.)

COMMITTEE'S DEED TO JOHN SMITH,
1729.

This Indenture, made the Nineteenth Day of January. Anno Domini One Thousand Seven Hundred & Twenty Nine, and in the Third Year of the Reign of our Soverign Lord, George the Second, King over

Great Britain, &c., Between John Smith, of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England, Merchant, on the one Party, and the Honorable William Tailer, Elisha Cooke & William Dudley, Esq^{rs}, and John Powell, Merchant, of y^e County & Province afores^d, (who with the said John Smith are) a Committee appointed by the Great & General Court or Assembly of the said Province, for the carrying on the perfecting the Resettling of the Township of Northyarmouth, in Casco Bay, in County of York and Province afores^d, of the other part :

Witneseth, That whereas George Felt, formerly of Northyarmouth aforesaid, decea^d, (in his Life Time) sold & convey'd to Walter Gendall, formerly of Northyarmouth, also deceased, One Hundred Acres of Land situate at a place called Broad Cove, in y^e Township of North Yarmouth aforesaid, particularly bounded & described in the deed thereof bearing date June the Twenty Third, Sixteen Hundred & Eighty, also two acres of Salt Marsh, at Broad Cove aforesaid, and four acres of Fresh Meadow at some distance from the said Felt's house, as by the s^d deed or record thereof, reference thereto being had, may more fully appear.

And whereas the former Committee of Northyarmouth, aforesaid, on the Thirteenth of July, Sixteen Hundred & Eighty One, and on the Tenth of April, Sixteen Hundred & Eighty Two [see page 486, OLD TIMES], allowed, laid out, granted & conveyed & confirmed to the said Walter Gendall, in his Life Time, a Plantation & also a Farm lying together, at or near Broad Cove, afores^d, within the said Township of Northyarmouth, containing both together about Two Hundred & Thirty Nine Acres, more or less, butted & bounded as is particularly expressed in the records of the said Town, all which lands the said Walter Gendall possessed & improved until he was killed by the Indians, about the year Sixteen Hundred & Eighty Eight. [4-89]

And whereas it doth appear to the aforementioned Committee that the s^d Walter Gendall had a just claim & title to the upper Clayboard Island, containing by estimation about forty acres, be the same more or less, lying over against & near unto the said farm, in Northyarmouth, which upper Clayboard Island the said Walter Gendall improved by cutting wood, clearing & planting part of the same, until the Indians killed him, as aforementioned.

And whereas Theodosius More, Administrator of the Estate of the s^d Walter Gendall, in pursuance of y^e authority granted him by the Superior Court of Judicature, held at York, within and for the County of York, the Tenth of May, Seventeen Hundred & Twenty One, for a valuable consideration, sold & conveyed the aforesaid upper Clayboard Island, and all the aforesaid Farm & Lands, with the Rights & Priviledges & Appurtenances thereunto in anywise belonging, unto the said John Smith, to enable him, y^e said Theodosius More, to pay y^e just due Debts of the s^d Walter Gendall, as in & by the deeds of the same may more fully appear. And whereas the Committee aforesaid, in consideration that the Land at Broad Cove, aforesaid, is commodiously situated for laying out Home Lots thereon in a regular & defensible manner for the Town's Use & Benefit, have agreed with the said John Smith to grant and confirm unto him an equivalent for One Hundred & Ten Acres of the said Land by him purchased, as aforesaid, lying together & bounded as followeth:—

Viz^t: Beginning at a three forked Black Oak Tree, about eighty rods westward of the place where the sⁱ Felt's old house stood, & so down to Broad Cove, & then running along by s^d Cove to a Red Oak Tree, formerly the bounds of Gendall's Farm, and from the said Red Oak Tree to run to the north-easterly side of the second eastermost gully, formerly called Gendall's Gully, or Freshitt, & so up into the woods until the said One Hundred & Ten Acres be completed, being bounded northerly by land formerly y^e said Felt's, easterly by Broad Cove afores^d, southwesterly by s^d gully and land of the s^d John Smith, & northwesterly by vacant land, or however otherwise bounded or reputed to be bounded.

Now this Indenture further witnesseth, that the said John Smith, hath & by these Presents doth reserve unto himself, his heirs & assigns, forever, the aforementioned Two Acres of Salt Marsh and Four Acres of Meadow, and the Residue & Remainder of the afores^d Farm, be the same more or less, which now is & hereafter shall be reckoned & accounted Lot Number One Hundred & Three, & is to draw & have one full Right & Share of Commons & After Divisions of Upland & Meadow Rights, Profits & Priviledges, either on the Main Land or on the Islands, in full proportion to & equal with the other Home Lots throughout the said Township of North Yarmouth.

Besides the same Farm, according to the Agreement & Confirmation of the Committee, dated March 23, 1726-7, the said John Smith doth further reserve to himself, his heirs & assigns forever, the aforesaid Upper Clayboard Island, be the same more or less, and further, the sⁱ John Smith, in pursuance y^e s^d agreement, & for the Promotion & Incouraging the Resettlement of the said Township, and for the sum of Five Shillings paid him by the Committee abovenamed, but more especially for the equivalent land, considerations & allowances hereafter expressed, Hath, and by these Presents doth, grant, bargain, sell, convey & confirm unto the said William Tailer, Elisla Cooke, William Dudley and John Powell, Committee as aforesaid, and all the aforesaid, One Hundred & Ten Acres of Land, be the same more or less, butted & bounded as before exprest, with y^e Profits, Priviledges & Appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

RUSSWARM FAMILY—The controversy at Back Cove, Deering, respecting the title to the cemetery lot on George street, and the investigation showing the ownership of the Russwarm family in the land in 1812, will bring to the remembrance of some of the older citizens of Portland interesting recollections of that family.

John R. Russwarm, the elder, came to Portland from the French West India Islands, previous to 1812. He was a merchant in Portland, and purchased the farm at Back Cove where he resided a number of years. His son, who was with him when he came to Portland, John B. Russwarm, was a mulatto of fine personal appearance and manners, was a great favorite of his father, and a young man who was highly respected and esteemed in this community. He was educated at and graduated from Bowdoin College. He removed to Baltimore, and afterwards was Governor of Liberia, where I think he died. He left a daughter Angelina, who in 1863 was living in Louisiana, married,—by the name of Barnes. The elder John R. Russwarm, after being at Back Cove for some time, removed to North Yarmouth, lived at the lower village some years, was married there and died. He had other children, among them a son, Francis E. Russwarm, who lived at Yarmouth and afterwards moved to California. Part of the Russwarm estate in Yarmouth was conveyed to Angelina, daughter of the Governor, and afterwards sold by her to parties in Yarmouth.

CORLISS—CUNNINGHAM—Married, at Phaenix, Maricopa, Co., Arizona Territory, March 25th, 1878, by Rev. G. M. F. Herrett, Capt. Augustus W. Corliss, 8th Infantry, U. S. Army, stationed at Camp McDowell, Arizona, and Miss Eliza Crawford Cunningham, daughter of Nathaniel Fleming Cunningham, of Terre Haute, Indiana, born July 25th, 1854. Born to the above, Feb. 3d, 1879, at Camp McDermit, Humboldt Co., Nevada, Robert Cunningham Corliss. Born at Angel Island, (one of the defences of San Francisco Bay), Marin Co., California, March 11th, 1881, Margaret Haynes Corliss.

YARMOUTH TAXES—The town of Yarmouth is fortunate in having a long list of heavy tax-payers. This is probably accounted for by the fact that the rate of taxation is but $10.70 on the $1000.

The following is a list of persons who pay a tax of over $100 :

P. G. Blanchard, $788.04 ; C. F. Sargent, 325.78 ; S. S. Thomas, 289.75 ; P. N. Blanchard, 281.92 ; E. R. York, 234.05 ; Calvin R. Humphrey, 196.88 ; Richard Harding, 143.20 ; E. D. Lane, 148.65 ; L. Williams, 135.51 ; A. L. Loring, 103.71 ; George S. Loring, 103.42 ; David C. Loring, 120.84 ; Estate of Joshua Winslow, 368.35 ; Estate of Reuben Merrill, 124.85 ; Estate of E. Burbank, 256.64 ; Forest Paper Company, 313.51 ; Royal River Manufacturing Company, 182.44. (P1111 88-S)

Press, Aug. 16, 1877.

VIDETO—The discharge of Comfort Videto, referred to on page 736, OLD TIMES, was signed by Major-General Knox, as will be seen below :

“By the Honourable Major General Knox, Commanding the American Forces on Hudson’s River. Comfort Videto, in the First Massachusetts Regiment, being inlisted for Three Years, is hereby honourably Discharged from the Service of the United States.

Given in the State of New York, the 20th Day of December, 1783.

By the General’s Command,

KNOX, M.Gen’l.

Registered in the Books of the Regiment, Ralph H. Bowles, Cap’l. & Adjutant.”

Miss Lucy Videto Groves writes Mar. 23, 1881, in relation to the family, as follows :—

Her Aunt Mary Mitchell, who was in her eighth year at the death of her father, says that she does not know where the family came from. She has been told that her Grandmother Videto lived in the house next to the Larrabee Tavern, and that it was afterwards owned and occupied by Samuel Warren. The house was very old ; it was torn down in 1849 or 1850.

There were three brothers, James, Joseph and Comfort Videto. Nothing is known of James. Joseph was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, serving until its close. He was pensioned by the government. He died in Lisbon, Maine.

Comfort married for his first wife, Peggy Young, of North Yarmouth. Their children were, Betsey, Ebenezer, John and Ammi. John and Ammi were soldiers in the 1812-15 War. John married Hannah Hall, of North Yarmouth, who is probably the “Widow Hannah Videto” mentioned on pages 586 and 736.

The second wife of Comfort Videto was Elizabeth Young, of North Yarmouth. His third wife was Lucy Bates, of North Yarmouth, sister of Capt. Lazarus Bates who died in this town at the advanced age of 95 (see Nov. 25, 1867, p. 416); she died in 1840, aged 69, and is the "Old Mrs. Videto" referred to in the list of burials of that year (see pages 213, 736.) Their children were Mary, Adaline, Hannah, Olive and Jane. My grandfather (Comfort Videto) was lost at sea, in 1806.

N. T. T.

TURNER—Melzar Turner came from England to Falmouth, Me., where he first settled. He married Susannah Loring. Afterwards he cleared up the farm subsequently owned by Capt. Joseph York, in Pownal, and now owned and occupied by Andrew Hodgson. Mr. Turner was the son of Sir John Turner, of Yorkshire, Eng.

The following copy of a paper in the possession of Mrs. Mary H. True, of Pownal, is of interest, describing the family coat-of-arms:—"He beareth vaire, argent and gules, on a pale or, three roses proper, leaved vert, by the name of Turner. Also on another coat, sable, on a cross argent, five fer-de-molines, pierced of the field. and was granted to John Turner, of Yorkshire, Sergeant-at-Law, elder brother to Sir William Turner of the City of London, Knight, and Alderman and late Lord Mayor of the City of Boston, 15th Aug. 1797." "A true copy from the Records of Heraldry, attest, Jno. Coles, Heraldry Painter." [i i i] Melzar Turner was remembered by the older settlers of the town for his peculiarities. He planted an immense orchard, and was very careful to set a long row of trees by the roadside, that travellers might partake of the fruit. It was noticed by a subsequent generation that these trees bore fruit remarkable only for being very sour.

Melzar Turner's children were, James, who m. Nancy Thombs and settled at Rock River, Ill.; Hannah, who m. Thos. Worthley and settled at Phillips, Me.; Rachel, who m. ——— Nickerson and settled in Lansing, Mich.; Deborah, who m. ——— Osgood; Ruth, who m., 1st, Nathaniel True [see No. 34, p. 29], and, 2d, Timothy Worthley; Sarah, who m. Capt. Thomas Thombs, of Pownal, who removed, about 1830, to Buffalo, N. Y., or vicinity, where they died; Loring, killed by the bursting of a gun, July 4, ———; Melzar. I am unable to give the order of their ages. So far as I know, none of his descendants are now living within the limits of old North Yarmouth, excepting Mary H., wife of Lyman C. True, and her children, L——— B. and Irving True, of Yarmouth, Maine.

WORTHLEY—The name of Worthley became quite prominent in the history of North Yarmouth, Maine, from 1750 till about 1820, when the sons of John Worthley, with the exception of Justin Worthley, removed from the town.

John Worthley is recorded as coming from "Haletown." Tradition says that his name was originally "Wortley," and that he was connected with prominent families in England. His neighbors called him "Worthley," and being of an easy disposition, he ultimately wrote it so. His wife was Martha Bailey, from Wearetown, [Ware?], Mass., [294, 1st Ch. Cat.; d. June 14, 1817, aged 77.] [He was 293, 1st Ch. Cat.; d. June 7, 1810, aged 75.] They were married Nov. 9, 1758.

that vicinity, who was a man of great business capacity; he acquired a large property, and was of a noble and generous spirit.

10 Martha; b. in North Yarmouth; d. in Freeport, Me.; m. Samuel Griffin, and resided in Freeport.

This family of ten children were all members of the Congregationalist Church. They were not remarkable for financial ability, but were attentive to their religious duties, and left large families, except Justin, who, I believe, had no children.

YARMOUTH CORNER, 1850.

Baptist Street—East side.

The first house on the right was a very large, yellow, two-story residence, owned and occupied by Ebenezer Corliss. "Uncle Eben," as he was called, was one of the most industrious, frugal and well-to-do farmers in the town. He came to North Yarmouth from South Weare, New Hampshire, about 1795, and was one of the few merchants established here in 1796. He was for many years a member of the board of Selectmen, and was always active in school, church, district and town matters. In personal appearance he was tall, straight and stern-looking, but no better-hearted man ever lived. His daughter, Mrs. Esther S. Sawyer, widow of Capt. William Sawyer, of Gloucester, Mass., and her children, Lydia Ann, Charles William and Hannah Morgan Sawyer, lived with him several years. His wife, Lydia Elwell, of New-Gloucester, daughter of Payne Elwell, survived him several years. She was short in stature, very dark-complexioned, with small black eyes and jet-black hair. She was a provident and thoughtful house-keeper and a kind and affectionate neighbor. Her ample store of "goodies," herbs and medicines were ever at the service of the sick or needy. Her industry was proverbial. Her skill at the old-fashioned hand-loom and spinning-wheel is set forth on p. 98, OLD TIMES. After the death of her husband, Feb. 19, 1853, Mrs. Corliss lived with her son, Robert E. Corliss, across the lane, and her house was occupied by Capt. ——— Brown, and family, and Asa Winslow, son of Solomon Winslow. In August, 1856, a terrible accident occurred in the lower river by the upsetting of a boat owned by Ammi Storer, by which Capt. Brown's wife and two children, Asa Winslow and his wife and two children, and Emma J. Baker, daughter of Amasa T. and Betsey Jane Baker, were all drowned (see p. 368, OLD TIMES.) For the family of Ebenezer Corliss see p. 287.

The next house, across Corliss Lane, was a large, two-story, hip-roofed, double-tenement house, owned by Elliot York, a carpenter, who came from New-Gloucester, and Robert E. Corliss. This house was built about 1814. It was owned by Isaac H. Bailey, son of Libbeus Bailey, and, at his death (about 1824), was bought of his administrator (Edward Russell) by Asenath (Field) Corliss, wife of Robert E. Corliss. Isaac H. Bailey, Jr., who is a prominent public man of New-York City, is a merchant at No. 17 Spruce Street, New-York. He writes for one of the Portland papers, signing himself "Yarmouth." Mr. York's half of the house faced on Baptist Street; Mr. Corliss' part faced toward Main Street, but was entered from Corliss Lane. Mr. York's family consisted of his wife, Salome (Raymond) (841, 1st Ch.) who died Feb. 11, 1866, aged 77 (p. 416), a daughter Lucretia, who married William Eveleth of New-Gloucester, a son Charles E., a potter, who worked at Woolwich, a son Alford (who shot himself accidentally, in 1844, see p. 257) and daughters Julia E. and Clarissa B. York. The family of Mr. Corliss is given in full on pp. 288-289. The part of the house owned by Mr. Corliss has been occupied at various times by John D. Safford (son of Nathan, the latter, see pp. 73, 214, 367, 450), ——— Quinby, a tinsmith from Boston, ——— Gray (who had a son George W., a printer in Portland, a daughter Mary and niece Rachel W. Gray in his family) who afterwards kept a hotel on India Street, Portland, Asa Winslow and George L. Corliss. Ammi M. Loring, sexton, lived several years in Mr. York's part of the house.

The next building was the cottage of Edward B. Humphrey, a carpenter, who married Lucy I. Lawrence. His family is given on page 703.

The next house, on the corner of the Cumberland Road where it passes down over Meeting-house Hill, was the large, two-story structure known as the "old John Corliss house." He was a brother of Ebenezer Corliss. It was sometimes called the Baptist Parsonage. Among the occupants at various times I remember Samuel W. Fogg, of Newell & Fogg, Ammi M. Loring, sexton of the Baptist church, and Dennis Byram.

Across the head of the street, stood, and still stands unchanged, the Baptist Church, built in 1796 (see pp. 429-430.) The bell was put up in 1805. Among the pastors have been Dr. Thomas Green, 1797; Sylvanus Boardman, 1810; Otis Briggs, 1816; Stephen Chapin, 1819; (Shepley, in the 1st Ch. Cat., gives Rev. Solomon Peck next, but a pamphlet published recently by the society does not mention him); Alonzo King, 1826; John Butler, 1831; Zabdiel Bradford, 1837; Charles W. Reding, 1845; Wm. B. Jacobs, 1848; L—— B. Allen, 1850; William G. Hoben, 1857; George B. Illsley.

Baptist Street—West side.

Returning to the foot of the street and starting again, the first house on the left-hand corner was that of Richmond L. Cutter, already noted as we went up Portland Street.

The next house (originally Rev. Thomas Green's) was owned and occupied by Nathaniel Foster, (d. 1854, see p. 367), potter and merchant. His wife Rebecca, by whom he had twelve children, died Apr. 5, 1875, aged 90 years and 3 months. His sons Benjamin (who m. Cordelia Kingsley, daughter of Azel), and William Henry (always known as Henry; he d. Feb. 5, 1879, aged 56), a widowed daughter Abby (Foster) Jones (whose daughter, Abby Maria Jones m. ——— Lancaster, of Bowdoinham), and daughter Rebecca (who d. Mar. 30, 1876, aged 66), lived with him. His daughter Nancy married Rev. Edwin Quinby (he d. in Norway, and was bur. in Yar. Jan. 4, 1853, see p. 337) brother of Rev. George W. Quinby. Nancy was a teacher in the summer terms in the "old red school-house," before her marriage. William Henry Foster married Almira ———, of Norway Me., by whom he had several children (one bur. Oct. 25, 1847, see p. 302), three surviving him. Mrs. Abby Jones had one child buried Sept. 23, 1840, (see p. 213.)

A few rods above the Foster house Baker Street leads off to the westward. This street was laid out about 1848 by Ebenezer and Robert E. Corliss, Nathaniel Foster, Benjamin Woodbury and Capt. Samuel Baker, passing through land owned by them.

The first house above Baker Street was the cottage owned and occupied by William R. Humphrey, a tinsmith. His two sons, William F. and Henry S. are mentioned on page 138, and the family record given on p. 703.

The next house, two-story, was that called the Prince, or Priscilla Lovell, house, now owned by Mrs. Julia Lang, widow of Charles. It was occupied at one time by Rev. Stephen Chapin, for whom it was built, and Rev. Zabdiel Bradford, another pastor of the Baptist church, also lived here. Sylvanus B. Humphrey (No. 79, p. 703) lived here at the date referred to. In the yard was a very deep well of excellent water. A noble Balm-of-Gilead tree stood in the road near the south-eastern corner of the house. Azel Kingsley, a pensioner, lived here later. He died Sept. 6, 1876, aged 90 years, 9 months and 1 day. He had a son, Cyrus, and daughters Cornelia, Laura, Eliza A. and Maria A. Kingsley. Cornelia married Benjamin Foster, son of Nathaniel; Eliza A. married, 1st, Augustus F. Cushman, a cotton-factory man, and, 2d, Sylvanus B. Humphrey (see No. 211, p. 703); Maria A. married Perez C. Gooding, son of Capt. Samuel Gooding of Cumberland. Mr. Kingsley at one time kept the cotton-factory boarding-house at the Falls Village.

Just above this house the Cumberland Road turns off to the west, past the Baptist graveyard.

Cumberland Road—North side.

The grave-yard of the Baptist church is on the right-hand side of the road, just west of the church. The south-easterly corner of the yard was bounded by the horse-sheds, (since taken away), where those of the congregation who rode to church left their carriages during the services. These sheds extended from the main gate on the Cumberland road around to nearly opposite the north-west corner of the church. Another row of sheds extended from opposite the north-easterly corner of the church, along the south line of the yard, to the south-easterly corner. There were a few sheds on the side of the Lang lot, opposite the main gate.

The land originally included in the grave-yard was only half of that now enclosed. About 1847, I think, the north line of the fence was moved back from the brow of the hill to the present boundary. In the north-westerly corner of the yard as it was first laid out, next to John White's line, stood the Town Powder-House, a small wooden building where the town's stock of war-material was stored. In the south-west corner, next to the road, was the hearse-house.

Next beyond the grave-yard was the house and pasture of John White, farmer and laborer. His family consisted of his wife, sons William and John, both laborers, and daughter Mary, who married Joseph Chenery.

Just above the house of John White, partially inside of the road but the greater portion in White's pasture, was a pond, covering about one-half an acre, called the "Frog Pond." This was always a favorite place for the boys to wade, stone frogs, sail boats &c.

This body of water found vent to the north and east through Tan-Yard Brook to the river.

The farm and hay-field (no house) of Rufus Gooch was next to White's, and then came ——— Rich's pasture and Ebenezer Corliss' farm and pasture, which last-named extended to the Cumberland line, which was marked by a stone post beside the road where Mr. Corliss' land cornered on ——— Blanchard's land, the latter being in Cumberland.

There was no house on this side of the road beyond White's. There had been a house on the Corliss farm, near the road, about two-thirds way from White's house to the Cumberland line, the cellar being still visible. It was occupied by Joseph Davis, who was called "Crazy Joe." It was burned previous to 1799. (16-2)

Cumberland Road—South side.

The only house on the left-hand side of the road was a small cottage, just above and opposite John White's, occupied by the widow Sally Grouse (buried Oct. 8, 1849, see p. 303) and her half-witted son Alonzo K. Grouse (buried Aug. 13, 1848, see p. 302; also see p. 41.) This house stood on a portion of the Reed, or Woodbury, farm.

The Reed farm and pasture extended to the pasture of Ebenezer Corliss (who also owned one on this side of the road), and embraced all the land between the Portland and Cumberland roads above Dr. Thompson's and Capt. Samuel Baker's land. Ebenezer Corliss' pasture, above the Reed farm, extended about half way to the Portland road, and westward to the Cumberland line. (17)

THE STOCKBRIDGE FAMILY.

[By Rev. JOSEPH STOCKBRIDGE, U. S. Navy.]

The ancestor of the North Yarmouth (Maine) branch of this family was John Stockbridge, a native of England, who came to New-England in June, 1635, bringing with him his wife Anne, and son Charles, aged one year. He took oath of fidelity in 1638, at Scituate, and was one of the Conihasset partners in 1646. He was an extensive land-owner, and built the Stockbridge mansion-house, which was a garrison in King Philip's War. He died in 1657, leaving a large estate.

Charles Stockbridge, born in England, in 1634, was a wheelwright, and lived in Boston and Charlestown, and finally on his father's place in Scituate. He built and owned mills in Plymouth County. He was the father of ten children, the eighth child being Joseph.

Joseph Stockbridge was born June 28, 1672, and was a man of note. For many years he was a deacon of the "Church of Christ, in Hanover," and it is on record that, Oct. 30, 1768, he presented for the communion-table four silver cups, each cup costing twenty-four pounds, old tenor. He was the father of seven children. He died Mar. 11, 1773, in the hundred and first year of his age.

David Stockbridge, the seventh son of Joseph, lived in Hanover, Mass., which town he represented in the Legislature several years. For a long time he was a Justice of the Peace under King George, and his records are still in existence. He was a large owner of real estate. He had six children. He died in 1788.

William Stockbridge, fourth son of Joseph, was born Dec. 20, 1752. He was the father of the North Yarmouth Stockbridges. He married Ruth Bailey, the sister of Lebbeus, the clock-maker, who moved to North Yarmouth, and whose sons, Henry and Joseph, were the well-known auctioneers of Portland. He was the father of eleven children. He died in 1841.

Joseph Stockbridge, who established the mercantile house in North Yarmouth, which continued for more than half a century, was the eldest son of William. He was born Oct. 1, 1775, and went to North Yarmouth in the last years of the eighteenth century and erected a large house, near the lower falls, half of which was a store. Oct. 6, 1800, he was commissioned "Captain of a company of volunteer Cavalry in the Provisional Army, who have associated at North Yarmouth & towns adjacent." The commission is signed by Samuel Dexter, Secretary of War, and John Adams, President. The career of Capt. Stockbridge was short. He died Apr. 13 1804, and his brother, William R., took his place. Calvin, a younger brother, was Joseph's clerk; and now was formed the firm of W. R. & C. Stockbridge, which continued so many years.

William R. Stockbridge was born Jan. 29, 1782. He married Olive True, of North Yarmouth, Oct. 3, 1805. Besides carrying on trade in merchandise, he was a manufacturer of paper and the builder and owner of vessels. For very many years he was the treasurer of the town and of the academy. He was a careful business man, and his name was honored in any bank within fifty miles of North Yarmouth. He died Jan. 3, 1850 [see p. 335.]

The children of William R. and Olive (True) Stockbridge [see p. 28] were as follows:—

1 Maria; born Aug. 1, 1806. She married Dr. Nelson H. Cary, Sept. 13, 1829 [see p. 101.] Their children were, William H., born Aug. 24, 1830; Joseph S., born May 16, 1832, married Flora E. Harlow, of Boston, and died, Apr. 25, 1877, without issue; Marcia A., born May 23, 1834, married J. C. Merrill, of the custom service, of Portland, and has children, Maria, S., teacher in Young Ladies' Seminary, at Andover, Mass., Sarah J., and Harry H., who died in 1863. Ellen M., the second daughter of Maria, was born Oct. 11, 1837; married John Q. Warren, a merchant of Durham, who died Apr. 26, 1863. He was the father of Fred M., who is a graduate of Amherst College and a tutor in that institution, and William C., who died in 1862. Her second husband was Rev. W. H. Haskell, pastor of West Falmouth Cong. church, and has children Nelson C., Pearl T., William S., Harris H. and Edward K. Samuel E. Cary was born Dec. 25, 1839, and married, Apr. 11, 1871, Catherine Lanning, of Boston, Mass., and resides in East Orange, New-Jersey. He received a mercantile education in Boston, and is now in the employ of an extensive woollen house, in New-York. They have one child, Annie Louise, born May 12, 1872. Annie Louise Cary was born Oct. 22, 1841. Gifted with a fine voice, rugged health and excellent mental powers, she went to Italy to study music, and after a few years of intense application and hard work, she took high rank as a singer, and is now the leading contralto of America. Her home is in Portland, Me. The three Cary brothers were members of the 13th Regiment of Mass. Volunteers during the war for the Union. Samuel was taken prisoner at the battle of Gettysburg, and had twenty-one months experience of rebel prisons, beginning with Libby. His shoulder-straps saved him from being starved to death.

2 Marcia; born Aug. 16, 1808. Oct. 16, 1850, she married Col. Andrew Ring, of Lubec [see No. 7, p. 784.] She died Jan. 1, 1859.

3 Joseph; born July 14, 1811. In 1822, he entered Capt. Partidges Military Academy, at Norwich Vt. At the end of a year he began to fit for college, and entered Bowdoin and graduated in the class of 1830. He studied law in Portland, and at the Law School of Harvard University, and was admitted to the bar of Somerset County in the June term, 1833. In 1840, he entered the Theological Seminary at Newton, Mass., and in Sept., 1841, was appointed Chaplain in the United States Navy. In 1866, the Western University of Pennsylvania conferred on him the honorary degree of S.T.D. May 26, 1845, he married Julia E. Everett, a native of Portland, Maine. Their children were: Charles H., born in New-York, Aug. 19, 1846; appointed Midshipman in the Navy, Nov. 25, 1862; saw some service in the war, in the yacht America; left the service on account of ill-health, and died in Paris, France, Feb. 13, 1869. Elizabeth, born in Brooklyn, N. Y., June 27, 1850; died in Paris, France, Dec. 29, 1868. William, born in Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 7, 1853; died Sept. 6, 1854. John O., born in Plainfield, N. 4 William; born Nov. 17, 1813; died Oct. 2, 1853. He fitted for college at North Yarmouth Academy; graduated from Waterville College and took the degree of M.D., at the Berkshire Medical College, in Mass. He settled in West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana, and died there, of yellow fever. As a physician he was highly esteemed by the people of the Parish. He fell a victim to his devotion to his patients during the prevalence of the yellow fever in the autumn of 1853.

5 Olive; born Apr. 27, 1821. Lives in Wakefield, Mass.

6 Samuel C.; born Oct. 19, 1823. Received a mercantile education in Boston, Mass., and at the death of his father was clerk in his store. He died in Bath, Me., Jan. 16, 1854 [see p. 367.]

Calvin Stockbridge, brother and partner of William R. Stockbridge, was born in Hanover, Mass., Sept. 19, 1784. He married Rachel W. Rogers, Oct. 30, 1815. His religious character was strong and prominent, and his interest in missions, at home and abroad, was unlimited. He and his brother William R. were the mainstay of the Baptist cause in North Yarmouth for many years. His children were as follows :—

1 William C. ; born Apr. 6, 1817 ; died Feb. 22, 1826.

2 John Calvin ; born June 14, 1818. Married, Nov. 14, 1844, Mary T. Mauran, of Warren, R. I. He fitted for college at North Yarmouth Academy, and graduated at Brown University in 1838. TOWN OF GRAY—Nathaniel Wilson, land-surveyor, of Falmouth, made a survey of the Town of Gray, in 1795, of which I have a copy. Can any person inform me if the note-book of that survey is in existence? In what part of the town did Wilson live?

THE SOULE FAMILY.

[MAINE BRANCH.]

[DR. CHARLES E. BANKS.]

Assistant-Surgeon, U. S. Marine-Hospital Service.

The Soule Family of this country, with unimportant exceptions, are the descendants of (1) George Soule, one of the Mayflower Pilgrims, and the thirty-fifth signer of that famous social compact. The name is an English surname, and was early written in the Colonial records, Soul, Sole, Soal and Sowl, while the modern orthography, with the final vowel, is an instance of additional lettering quite uncommon in the mutations of surnames.

George Soule came to this country a minor, for we find him entered in the list of passengers as an apprentice of Gov. Edward Winslow, living in his family. It is quite probable that he came in common with others of that religious band from the quarter of England which is to-day recognized as the cradle of the Dissenters,—the point of junction of the three counties of York, Lincoln and Nottingham. From here three towns, or parishes, may be seen,—Scrooby, Bawtry and Austerfield. Elder Brewster came from the first, Gov. Bradford from the last, and “the name of Soule was common about Bawtry” (Palfrey's Hist. of N. E., 1, p. 160, note.) It is however maintained by some that the name may be of French origin, with an accent on the final vowel making it a word of two syllables. Upon this theory it is suggested that he belonged to a Huguenot family and joined the Pilgrims in Holland. This view is not entertained by the author.

How long these relations of apprenticeship to the Governor continued is not known, but as early as 1623 he was granted in his own right one acre of land “on the south side of the brooke to the baywards” (Plymouth Col. Rec., XII, 4.); and in 1627, in the division of cattle, was allotted “one of the 4 black Heyfers that came in the Jacob, caled the smoothe horned Heyfer, and two shee goats” (Ibid, 9.) In 1633 he became a freeman of the Colony, and was taxed that year 9s for his share in the current expenses of their simple government. He had by that time married, and built a house, as his wife, (2) Mary Beckett, was one of the passengers in the Ann and her consorts of 1621, in company with Barbara Standish, Patience and Fear Brewster.

The date of their marriage was not much earlier than 1623, and perhaps may not have been till some time later. His house and lot was near Eel River at first, but at sundry times he had subsequent grants at Powder Point and "y^e watering place," but these possessions were sold in 1638, when, with Myles Standish and others, he removed across the bay to Duxbury, to found that town. This place then became his permanent residence, and, besides acting as one of the earliest selectmen, and often re-elected, he represented the town in the General Court of Plymouth Colony in 1642, '45, '46, '50, '51, '53, and '54, having for colleagues, Alden, Southworth, Pabodie and Starr. When Bridgewater was set off from Duxbury he was one of the original proprietors of the town, but soon disposed of his rights and subsequently became one of the earliest purchasers of Dartmouth and Middleboro. The former property descended to his sons (5) George and (8) Nathaniel, who are the ancestors of a large and respectable family in the vicinity of New-Bedford; the latter estate he bequeathed to his two daughters, (4) Mary and (9) Elizabeth, which has descended to other names. He thus became an original proprietor in the foundation of four new settlements, an evidence of his enterprise and thrift, which were his most distinguishing traits.

During the trouble with the Pequot Indians (1637) he was a volunteer, and five years later, when the plot of Miantonomoh was discovered, he was put on the committee "for offensive and defensive warr," showing his readiness to fight as well as pray for the success of their struggles in the wilderness.

He was not a litigious man, for in a long life we find but one record of his appearance in court as a party to an action, and then it was to convince the jury of the righteousness of his case, and he obtained a verdict. This was in January, 1637, when he sued and was sued by Nathaniel Thomas to obtain control of some heifers. On Mar. 1, 1658-9, Goodwife Mary Soule was indicted for absence from church; but that was a common charge against the saints of those times, and means nothing.

Without enumerating the various minor offices which he filled, it will be sufficient to refer to one important duty to which he was assigned in company with Governors Prince, Winslow and Constant Southworth,—the revision of the Colony laws, which must have been a work requiring more than ordinary ability.

Winsor, (History of Duxbury, p. 64,) says of him,—“Though not a man distinguished in the government of the colony, yet he was of essential service in his town, holding office to which he could not have been elevated had he not been a man of integrity and probity.” The History of Plymouth Colony, p. 36, article Duxbury, says,—“among the earlier settlers of this town were some of the ablest men in the colony, including John Alden, William Brewster, Governor Thomas Prince and George Soule," and, to the same effect, an article on the "Standish House," in Duxbury, Harper's Monthly, 1876, thus discourses,—“In this house on Captain's Hill, Standish removed after his second marriage, and here he drew around him a devoted class of friends, among whom were Elder Brewster, John Alden, George Soule," and others.

He had eight children, at least, whose names have come down to us, born before 1650, for in Bradford's History of Plymouth Plantations, p. 447, of that date, it is stated that,—“Georg Sowle is still living and hath 8 childre[n.]” The order of their births is not known. His wife Mary died in 1677, and his death occurred in 1680, being “very aged,” as the Colony records state. He outlived nearly all of the Mayflower Pilgrims, his old friend and companion, John Alden, surviving him more than seven years. A gourd belonging to him may be seen among the relics in Memorial Hall, Plymouth.

Children :

SOULE.

- 3 i Zachariah² ; prob. eldest, born ante 1627, and perished in the Canada expedition, about 1663, leaving no issue by wife Margaret. Freeman, 7 June 1653 ; Surveyor of Highways, 1655 ; Grand Jury, 1658. He lived (or owned land) at the Gurnet Meadows, which right fell to (7) John². Two rocks in Plymouth Bay, near Powder Point, are known as “Zachary's Rocks.” They probably received their name from Zachary Soule, son of the Pilgrim (p. 27, Winsor's Hist. Duxbury.)
- 4 ii Mary² ; bound out, 1 Jan. 1652, to John Winslow, of Plymouth, for seven years, “and in case the said Mary sole do not change her condition by marriage, she is to dwell with him the full term of eight years” (Plym. Col. Rec., II (i), 27.) She married John Peterson.
- 5 iii George² ; granted land, 1662, “being one of y^e fyrst born childre[n]” Plym. Col. Rec., IV, 19.) Removed to Dartmouth, in which vicinity descendants still live.
- 6 iv Susanna².
- 7 v John² ; of whom hereafter.
- 8 vi Nathaniel² ; removed to Dartmouth, with George, Jr., and descendants still live in that vicinity. While in Duxbury he figured in court with an unsavory reputation. In 1667, he was fined £20 for publicly scandalizing his minister, Rev. John Holmes, and he acknowledged his maliciousness in so doing. He escaped the stocks through the request of Mr. Holmes. He was fined £5 and publicly whipped, in 1671, for "telling seuerall lyes which tended greatly to the hurt of the collonie (Plym. Col. Rec., V, 61), and, in 1674, was again whipped "for adultery with an Indian woman," and ordered to pay "ten bushells of Indian corne towards the keeping of the child."

- 9 vii Elizabeth²; also fell from grace, in 1662, committing fornication with Nathaniel Church, for which both were fined £5. It seems that the act was repeated, and both were publicly whipped, but she was led to this indiscretion through promise of marriage. Failing to fulfil his word, she sued him for breach of promise, placing damages at £200. The jury awarded her £10 and cost of suit. She afterward married Francis Walker, before 1668.
- 10 viii Benjamin²; killed by Indians, before Pawtucket, 26 Mar. 1676, leaving no issue, as far as known.

(7) JOHN² SOULE (*George*¹) was born about 1632, and in the will of his father (Hist. Duxbury, p. 310) is called "eldest son. who hath in my extreme old age and weaknes ben tender and careful to mee and very healpful to mee." Freeman, in 1653, in which year he became involved in a quarrel with Keneelm Winslow "for speakeing falsly of and scandalicing his daughter in carying diuers falce reports betwixt Josias Standish and her." After various devices of delay he was fined, 8 June 1654, £10 and costs in a suit of defamation for £200 (Plym. Col. Rec., VII, 70.) During the excitement against the Quakers he was fined, 2 Oct. 1660, for attending their meetings. Surveyor of highways, 1672, 1694; grand juryman. 1675-6-7-8, '83-4; arbitrator between Marshfield and Duxbury, and Plymouth and Duxbury, 1698, involving land disputes; witness to the Indian deed of Bridgewater, dated 23 Dec. 1686; joined in a remonstrance, 1687, against increasing the salary of Rev. Ichabod Wiswell; administrator of estate of Samuel Chandler, 1683, and chosen guardian, and same year chosen guardian for John Simmons and Samuel Sampson, minors.

He married (11) Hester, probably daughter of Philip and Hester (Dewsbury) De la Noye, the French Protestant who joined the Pilgrims in Holland. Philip De la Noye (modernized, Delano) was the son of Jean and Marie (de Launey) De la Noye, and was baptized in the church at Leyden, 7 Dec. 1603. He married

Hester Dewsbury, 19 Dec. 1634, and the evidence that John Soule married his daughter rests on the fact that no other person of her name was born in Duxbury who could have been his wife. She was born in 1638, and died 12 Sept. 1733, surviving her husband many years. He died in 1707, aged 75 years. His sons received their portion of the estate during his life-time; the daughters on petition. 5 Mar. 1707-8, were awarded in equal divisions five lots of land situated in Middleboro, which were appraised at £17, 5, 0. His personal property was valued at £24, 12, 12 (Plym. Prob. Rec., II, 91.) Among the items we find a library mentioned, a rare thing in those times, except those of ministers, and it shows him to have been a man of literary tastes and undoubtedly of a cultivated mind.

(17) MOSES³ SOULE (*John*², *George*¹.) Resided in Duxbury, near Island Creek, a little stream taking its rise in a pond of the same name. Winsor (Duxbury, 31) describes Island Creek Pond as a "fine sheet situate in the east central part of the town." But little is known of Moses, and long search has failed to reveal the name of his wife. He died in 1751, quite wealthy for that period, his personal estate being appraised at £736, 16, 5 (Plym. Prob. Rec., XI, 506), besides which he was a large landed proprietor in several towns.

In Winsor's Hist. of Duxbury many anecdotes of this person are related which show him to have been an eccentric individual, but not "crazy," as he is there designated. The following story is characteristic and is too good to be omitted. It certainly is not the repartee of a crazy person,—else many are similarly insane. "The Rev. Samuel Veazie was frequently visited by Gideon Soule, a crazy person, whom he generally put in the attic to lodge, where he spent the night in boisterous preaching. On coming down one morning, Mr. Veazie said to him in a passion, "Gideon, I wont have it! You must not disturb me so over my head with your eternal preaching! I cannot sleep a wink all night for your bawling and clatter!" "Preaching, Brother Veasie," returned Gideon, "you can't sleep a wink all night for my preaching? Well, I can sleep soundly all day in spite of yours!"
- 28 viii Deborah⁴ ; m. John Hunt, probably, and received 14 acres of upland from her father's estate.

BURNING OF FALMOUTH.

(Contributed by S. P. MAYBERRY.)

NORTH YARMOUTH, Oct^r 24, 1775.

To the HONOURABLE COUNCIL and to the HONOURABLE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES of the COLONY OF MASSACHUSETTS BAY:—

May it please your Honours: Last evening came to this Town from the Halifax armed Schooner belonging to a Fleet, viz., Can- ceaux, the Semistre and the Spitfire, lying in Hog Island Roads under the command of Cap^t Mowat, Three men Deserters from said Schooner from a watering Place in Hog Island where they with one man more under the command of a Midshipman just on shore to take in Water.

They came & Delivered themselves up to some of our Militia who were at work erecting a Battery on the shore, and gave us the following intelligence, that on Monday the 16th current the s^d Fleet arrived in Casco Bay. That the same Day their Orders were read to them, which were to burn sink & Destroy everything to the Eastward of Boston that they could not conveniently carry off with them. That Tuesday the Fleet went up to Falmouth and came too in a Line before the Town. That Wednesday morning about 9 o'clock they began to fire upon the Town, and about 2 Hours after the Fire began Boats were sent ashore to fire the Houses by hand, that the men went on shore unarmed and to their apprehension not more than 20 were on Shore at any one time.

Further they say that the greater part of the Buildings that were burnt were fired by hand. The mens' names are Charles Stuart, Quartermaster, John Elliot & Daniel Streetland, Foremastmen, the two first taken out a vessell which they took and are now detained in Boston Harbour, the last impressed out of a Schooner at Halifax. The men gave a fair and honest Acc^t of themselves and agree very well in their Relations of the aforementioned truths.

We have sent them to the Committee at Scarborough to be forwarded to the General Court at Watertown, where when they arrive Your Honours will have Opportunity for further Examination as may be thought proper. The Yawl in which they made their Escape is now in our keeping and should be glad to receive orders what shall be Done with her.

I am your Honours most obedient Servant,

JERE. POWELL,

(18. 9 9)

Chairman of the Committee of Safety.

EDITOR of OLD TIMES—The letter of Mr. Powell indicates the spirit that animated the citizens of North Yarmouth in the Revolutionary War. It aids the historian by noting that the Militia were not only soldiers but builders of means of defence. That the men who were chosen "Committee of Safety" were honest instead of following out the principles which many of the present day are inclined to do,—the retaining of the yawl and asking instructions relative to her disposal.

REV. GEORGE WHITEFIELD.

[By REV. AMASA LORING.]

It is to be regretted that none of the biographers of Mr. Whitefield have noticed the event of his visit to North Yarmouth, interesting as it is to the inhabitants of that town. The Journal of Rev. Thomas Smith establishes the fact of such visit, and also indicates other significant items of interest which deserve to be emphasized.

In 1740, during Mr. Whitefield's first visit to New-England, he came to York, Me., to visit the venerable and devout Father Moody. Again, in 1744, he landed in York, when returning to this country, and was welcomed by that oft-quoted speech of Father Moody. From York he went to Boston, and other places in Mass., but in the early spring of 1745, turned eastward and entered the District of Maine. He came as far as Dunstan (now Scarboro Corner), intending to come farther; but there learning that some of Rev. Mr. Smith's people were opposed to his coming to Falmouth, he resolved to proceed no further. When this became known to the clergymen in the vicinity of Falmouth, Rev. Nicholas Loring, of North Yarmouth, and Rev. Benjamin Allen, of Cape Elizabeth, mounted their horses and rode to Dunstan, to persuade Mr. Whitefield to carry out his previous intention. And they succeeded. Mr. Whitefield came on with them, stopped in Falmouth and preached in Mr. Smith's pulpit, Saturday afternoon, and then rode to North Yarmouth.

On Sunday, Mar. 24, 1745 [see p. 184, OLD TIMES], Mr. Whitefield preached in Mr. Loring's pulpit, in the "Old Meeting-House below the Ledge,"—much to the delight of the people. The next day he returned to Falmouth, and preached again there, and thence went on westward, never again extending his preaching tours so far into the District of Maine.

It seems that some religious interest attended Mr. Whitefield's labors in North Yarmouth. More than the usual average united with the church there, during that year, though not as many as in some other years of Mr. Loring's ministry.

Parson Smith notes in his Journal that he was highly gratified with Mr. Whitefield's preaching, and that he afterwards preached with so much animation that some of his hearers affirmed that he was trying to imitate the renowned pulpit-orator. He also stated that nearly all who were opposed to Mr. Whitefield's coming, were out of town, and so no trouble arose from it. It is also apparent, that, at that early day, under the labors of the pious and evangelical Parson Smith, there were discordant elements in that ancient church; persons who feared to hear the direct and pungent appeals of the earnest revivalist. Yet Mr. Smith was decidedly orthodox, and preached the true gospel, but it may have been in a gentle, rather than in a searching, pointed manner.

This narrative also shows the evangelical position of Revs. Loring and Allen, who interested themselves so much to secure this visit. They, and all the Congregational pastors then in Maine, were in sympathy with Mr. Whitefield's sentiments and rejoiced in his success, though they disapproved of some measures that he had pursued, but which he afterwards abandoned.

I would add that the above items were drawn from the first edition of Smith & Deane's Journal, as prepared by Samuel Freeman, Esq., but in the second edition were slightly modified by Mr. Willis, who revised the former work. (18, & 2)

WILLIAM PARSONS, M. D.

[By REV. AMASA LORING.]

Dr. William Parsons, of North Yarmouth, Maine, was the son of Rev. Obadiah Parsons, of Gloucester, Massachusetts. After obtaining his literary and professional education, he entered the Navy as a surgeon. He was on board the frigate which Commodore Decatur commanded in a cruise along our southern coast and in the West Indies. It was about the year 1798, when Touissant, the renowned African, was triumphant in San Domingo, and when our nation was having trouble with France.

In 1800, he married Miss Judith Porter, daughter of James Porter, Esq., of Gloucester, and moved to North Yarmouth, where he practised as a physician. He was gentlemanly in his deportment, kind to the poor, and popular in his profession.

Dr. Parsons died suddenly, March —, 1811, aged 34, leaving a widow and three young children. His son, Augustus Parsons, married Hannah Haskins, but as he has no children, the family name will cease with him. His younger daughter, Lydia Louisa [808, 1st Ch. Cat.], married Rev. Amasa Loring, and had four children, two of whom are still living,—Lincoln Ripley Loring, now a resident of Portland, and Rev. Herbert A. Loring, recently of Foxcroft,—both of whom will be noticed in the Loring Genealogy soon to be published in OLD TIMES.

At the time of Dr. Parson's death, in 1811, he was living at the "Falls Village," in a house afterwards occupied by Dr. Gad Hitchcock and subsequently, by Samuel Sweetser, Esq. Some five years later, his family removed to the "Corner Village," and about 1822, entered the "Parson's house," which they afterwards purchased, and have ever since owned. Rev. Abraham Cummings, and various other tenants have dwelt in it with them; among them were Richmond L. Storer, Ammi Storer, Capt. Myles Standish York and Mr. ——— Lawrence. This house was built by Ebenezer Corliss, about the year 1790, and he was its earliest occupant [see p. 754.] (18, 1238:2)

CAPT. JAMES PARKER.

The subject of this brief sketch seems to deserve an obituary notice, if nothing more, for he was a prominent person in that re-settlement (1718-1722), the history of which is irrevocably lost in the destroyed volume of records mentioned by Parson Shepley [see p. 47, First Ch. Cat.]

Whether a native, or an inhabitant of Lynn temporarily, he hailed from that place when he came to North Yarmouth and settled on the point (previously called "Mann's Point") which has since borne his name. This was in 1719, or thereabouts. The Selectmen of the town, Peter Weare, William Scales and Joseph Fellows, granted to him, 18 July 1721, "sixty acres of land lying on a point called Mann's Point," on condition that "he fulfills the articles which he hath subscribed for the settleing the town" (York Deeds, XI, 225.)

On this property he built a house, which served as a tavern for the young settlement, and, in the absence of other claims, may be considered the first hostelry in North Yarmouth. In the Proprietors' Records he is always called "inn-holder," and it was at his house that the committee on the re-settlement of the town (appointed 27 June 1722) always held their sessions when in North Yarmouth.

With others of the owners of property in the town, he had joined in the petition, dated 30 May 1722, to the General Court of Massachusetts, for an authoritative disposition of the question of re-settlement, which on the strength of that document was finally accomplished. He was appointed one of the committee, 21 Oct. 1726, to prevent settlers from despoiling the lots of the timber, for which services he was granted by the Proprietors' Committee, 2 Dec. 1726. Lot No. 25, "upon his . . . surrendering up to the Committee for use of the said town, the Lott he is in Possession of." This probably alludes to the sixty acres spoken of before, the retention of which by him interfered with the new scheme of apportionment.

He was appointed with Samuel Seabury and Phineas Jones, 19 Apr. 1728, to superintend the erection of the new meeting-house, and, May 25th, following, was chosen a member of the "prudential committee" (Selectmen), to which he was re-elected, 14 July 1729 and Dec. 10, of the same year.

He was chosen, 19 Apr. 1729, to collect and receive the levy on the lots for the minister's salary, and, July 14th, following, with Samuel Seabury, was charged with the defence of the town in the lawsuits inaugurated by the holders of Indian deeds.

He married, probably, Sarah Ireson, of Lynn, (intentions published 4 Dec. 1714), by whom he had eight children, the first two being born in Lynn:—

PRINCE—The Rev. Thomas Prince, in the Preface to his Ordination Sermons, states that he left New England for Old England, Apr. 1, 1709, and returned, July 20, 1717, having been absent eight years. While there, he received calls to the churches of Batterford and Combs, Co. Suffolk. 29 Jan. 1713-14, and Winden, Co. Essex, 31 Oct. 1714, both of which he declined. The dates of his visit, as given in the opening paragraphs of the Prince Family, page 563, OLD TIMES, will have to be altered to tally with the above figures.

STOCKBRIDGE—A birthday party was given at the residence of A. L. Van Blockain, of Fruit Vale, Cal., in honor of Rev. Dr. Joseph Stockbridge, of the U. S. Navy, who has been thirty-nine in the service. When the dessert was served, there was placed, directly in front of the guest of the evening, a cake, which was beautifully decorated with pansies, which grow to such perfection in California. Around it were placed sixty-nine small wax candles of every color, throwing a subdued light over all. While the dessert and creams were being served, congratulatory telegrams were pouring in. They were from Gens. Grant, Garfield, Hancock, Mr. Tilden, and others. A few days later Dr. and Mrs. Stockbridge left for Monterey, where they were at last accounts.

MASON—From the communications of Miss Ellen Mason which have already appeared in your pages, [175-191], I infer that doubts exist whether any of the male descendants of Dea. Jonas Mason [33, 1st Ch.] still survive. The following statements will remove them;—

Ebenezer Mason, [195, 1st Ch.] son of Dea. Jonas Mason, settled in New-Gloucester previous to 1765, and there reared a family. Willard Mason, son of Ebenezer Mason, settled in Turner, Me., and the the Turner branch of the Mason family still living are quite numerous. Willard Mason and some of his sons, were pump-makers.

Willard Mason had several sons,—Lewis, Ira, Willard, Ezekiel, and Luther W., and also daughters. Several of these men left sons, who are still living. Lewis Mason's sons are, Albert, Charles, Arington and Lewis Carroll, now dwelling in Buckfield, or vicinity.

Ira Mason left two sons, perhaps more, now living in Turner, or thereabouts.

Luther W. Mason has recently gone to Japan, to teach music in the public schools of that empire, and has been successful in the undertaking.

Mrs. Deering Farrar, of North Turner, is a daughter of Willard Mason, and can give further information of that branch of the family.

(1) William Hawes, when he married Elizabeth Leeds (2), was a merchant in Boston, Mass. After she died, he went to Brunswick, Me., and was agent of a factory there.

(1) William Hawes second wife, Susan Waterman (Goold) (Blanchard,) (Russwurm) was born in Weymouth, Mass., Dec. 18, 1788. She was married, Aug. 4, 1806, to James Humphrey Blanchard (32), of Weymouth, who died in Montreal, Canada, Feb. 9, 1812, aged 28 years.

35 James H. ; b. May —, 1811.

(15) Mrs. Susan W. Blanchard was married to her second husband John R. Russwurm (36), (not a colored man) Mar. 4, 1813. They had one son, Francis Edward Russwurm (37), born — 1814. I never heard that John R. Russwurm ever lived in North Yarmouth, or that he owned property there, and I never heard of this Angelina that you mention in your memoranda [see p. 782, OLD TIMES], and think it is a mistake. After Mrs. Blanchard married Mr. Russwurm they lived with the three Blanchard children on the farm at Back Cove, where Mr. Russwurm died, Apr. 3, 1815. I have heard mother say, that, to hold property in the West Indies, Mr. Russwurm (36) had married a colored woman, and a son, John Brown Russwurm (38), was the issue.

(37) Francis Edward Russwurm lived in my father's family some years, then went to California and died, — —, 1862, at Campo —.

(38) John Brown Russwurm graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine. He was highly respected and esteemed by all who knew him. He married — Paul, daughter of Rev. — Paul, of Boston, Mass., and went to Baltimore, Md., and thence to Liberia, and was Governor there for some years, and died there. After some years, two of his sons, George and Frank, were sent to Yarmouth and attended school under Prof. George Woods, boarding in mother's family. They afterwards went to Baltimore, Md.

In your memoranda (p. 782), you state that John R. Russwurm after being at Back Cove some time, removed to North Yarmouth, living at the Falls Village, married and died there. I never heard this story before.

When William Hawes (1) married Susan W. Russwurm (15), she owned the farm at Back Cove, and other property left her by John R. Russwurm (36.) After some years, my father moved his family from North Yarmouth to the farm at Back Cove, and there Clarissa Hawes (17) was born. He carried on the paper-making business in North Yarmouth with George and Henry Cox, of or from Dorchester, Mass., afterwards under the firm of Wm. R. & C. Stockbridge. The foundation of the mill still stands on the banks of Royall's River, above the cotton-factory.

When William Hawes (1) married Susan W. Russwurm (15) he had two children (3, 4) and she had four (33-36), three Blanchard children, one a son, and one by Mr. Russwurm, also a son, and Mr. Hawes a son and daughter by his first marriage, making six children at his second marriage. They had seven children (16-22), as you will see by the record. There were four families, and four sons, none of them own brothers, and all were only sons by different father or mother. All lived as one family, pleasantly with each other. I never knew my father or mother to strike one of the children; a mild reproof was the only punishment.

Sometimes people would ask Mr. Hawes how many children he had in his family. He would reply, I have nine, and my wife has eleven, and but thirteen all counted. It was quite a riddle for people to solve.

Another member of the family says: Mr. John R. Russwurm, who married mother, was born in Virginia, educated in England, went to Jamaica, and was a planter. He went to Portland, Me., for his health and settled at Westbrook, where he died. He never lived in North Yarmouth. John Brown Russwurm was his son by a colored woman, and, of course, was a mulatto. He was educated in Canada and at Brunswick, Maine, and then went to Africa under the patronage of the Colonization Society, and died there. He left three sons and one daughter, Angelina; she was never in this country since she was a small child, but is married and lives in Liberia. Mother's husband has many relatives in Tennessee who are among the first families there. We have a fine painted picture of Mr. Russwurm; he was a very handsome man.

Brother James' [35?] wife was Miss Eliza Wood, of Jefferson Co., Mississippi; he left five daughters and one son, who live at Crystal Springs, Miss. (18. 8 : 2 TIS)

The Family Record now closed, has been compiled from Genealogies prepared by Mr. John Tucker Prince, of Boston, Mass., the late Capt. Cushing Prince, of Yarmouth, Maine, and Doctor Charles Edward Banks, of San Francisco, California.

Many omissions, and, probably, some mistakes will be noticed; but it is hoped that members of the Family may furnish such additions and corrections as will pave the way for a thorough and speedy revision.

MARY GRAY PRINCE.

EARLY CONVEYANCES OF LAND IN NORTH YARMOUTH, MAINE.

Book 12; p. 65; 2 June 1719. Samson Salter to William Scales, of Casco Bay, all the land I bought of William Thomas, 249 acres, excepting 60 acres I sold to James Buxton.

Ibid; p. 17; 25 Aug. 1727. "John Lane, aged about seventy, testifieth that Thomas Reding, formerly of Falmouth, in Casco Bay, dec'd, lived on and was the reputed owner of a certain tract of land lying to the westward of a creek called Reding's Creek, also salt marsh lying on Cousens his river, & lived on said land many years, & died siezed thereof more than fifty years ago."

Book 14; p. 258; 26 June 1730. John Lane, son of James Lane, of Gloucester, to Samuel Wait, Joseph Lampson & Josiah Nichols, of Malden, a tract of land in North Yarmouth, bounded east by Capt. Thomas' farm, south by the sea, west by Redding's Creek, & to head of said creek. Also, second, a neck of salt marsh on Cousins [River?], also first neck on south side of said river, also Lane's Island, 30 acres, more or less, and first bounded premises, more or less. Also another tract, in two parts, containing an island called Arnold's or Moshier's Island. Also a neck on Chusquiask River, 3 acres, more or less. Also a tract on north side of Sannder's Creek and north-west by Cousins' River, alias Little River, and running up northerly to creek joining Henry Daniel's land, 60 acres more or less. Also tract called Redding's Island, on east [side?] of Mare Point Neck, together with land on said Neck formerly owned by Nicholas White, called Sandy Point, and running from thence to the falls & so over to Mecoit Bay, formerly belonging to Thomas Redding, containing 60 acres" (see below, p. 273.)

Ibid; p. 272; 11 Feb. 1732. Gershom Rice, of Worcester, to John Sweetser, of North Yarmouth, Lot 43, 10 acres in No. Y.

Ibid; p. 273; Nov. 19, 1731. Joseph Lampson & Josiah Nichols, of Malden, to Samuel Newhall, of Malden, (one-third of lands above described, p. 258.)

Ibid; p. 276; Apr. 23, 1730. John Watts, of Swansey, to John Smith, of Boston, the land he bought of Thomas Blashford, 1706, 60 acres, near Broad Cove, & 4 acres marsh.

Ibid ; p. 277 ; 9 Aug. 1706. Thomas Blashfield, and Abigail his wife, of Beverly, to John Watts, of Salem, 60 acres, in North Yarmouth, bounded east by Harris', west by a gully that parts said Blashfield from Ephenni[?] Marbell's land, also 4 acres of marsh on the river.

Ibid ; p. 59. The Deposition of Moses Felt, of full age, testifieth & saith that he very well remembers that M^r John Cussons possessed a neck of land in North Yarmouth, in Casco Bay, lying between a creek called Redding's Creek & Royall's [River?], & that he, the s^d John Cussons, had a house & barn upon the s^d neck of land for 16 or 18 years, w^{ch} he peaceably enjoyed until he was driven off by the Indians, which is neare 45 years since that the s^d Cussons was driven off by the Indians. Deposition dated Dec. 29, 1726, 'his mark.'

Book 16 ; p. 75 ; Nov. 28, 1733. The Deposition of Moses Felt, of about 82 years of age, testifieth & saith that about 60 years ago M^r Bartho^w Gidney, of Salem, did build one dwelling house, one saw mill & one grist mill, then a building on the first falls in Royall's River, commonly called the First Falls in Royall's River, in the ancient town of North Yarmouth, & that the lands, falls & river where s^d Barth^o Gidney then built his house and mills is the same place where the saw mill now stands, and that I saw the saw [same?] mill about 14 years past, and also the land, river and first falls on both sides of the river from the first falls was always reputed to be s^d Barth^o Gidney's, & the ancient town of North Yarmouth never disputed his title to s^d lands, & further this Deponent saith that he hath had boards sawed at the s^d mill. Lynn, Nov. 28, 1733, before Thos Burrell & Jno. Walcott.

Ibid ; p. 76 ; Nov. 28, 1733. The Deposition of Isaac Larrabee [of Lynn], aged about 70 years, testiyeth and saith that he well remembers that M^r Bart. Gydney, of Salem, had a saw mill on Royall's River, in North Yarmouth, at the first falls, which he possessed & enjoyed in his own right for some time, and then he sold the same to Cap^t Walter Gendall, & the s^d mill with the stream on which it stood was always reputed to be the property of the said Gidney, & the Deponent was a near dweller to the s^d mill for some years.

Ibid ; p. 103 ; Aug. 11, 1733. Isaac Larrabee [as above] testifieth that he formerly lived in North Yarmouth, and well remembers John Mosure for 60 years past to improve & possess that tract of land commonly called Mosure's Neck on the west side of Arrasakett River to the second gut or gully, so called, joyning to Lane's land, & further sayeth that he knew two Islands to the south-east of s^d Neck, down the river about a mile from s^d Neck, which Islands were reputed to be Mosure's land, & s^d Mosure used to improve the same by feeding sheep, &c., & this Deponent further sayeth he never knew any person except said Mosure to lay any claim to either y^e Neck or Islands above mentioned.

Ibid; p. 104; Sept. 12, 1733. Moses Felt, belonging in Boston, aged about 88 years, who formerly lived in what is now called North Yarmouth, confirms the above statement of Larrabee.

Book 3; p. —; 4 Mar. 1713. Moses Felt, aged about 63, testifieth that my brother, George Felt, late of Casco Bay, dec^d by the Indian War, had and quietly possessed a tract of land lying near Muscle Cove, in Casco Bay, butted and bounded: Beginning near the place called the "Three Brothers," by the sea, by a deep gully in Muscle Cove, and a marsh near James Andrew's, on the north-east side of Pusumpskut River, and another marsh on the south-east side of the mouth of Skidergussett Creek, & also an Island that lays a mile or thereabouts from my brother's house, called Clapboard Island, all which my brother Felt quietly possessed this fifty years, unless it was by the Indian war driving them away.

Oliver Elkins, aged 63, testifieth to the truth of the above.

Book 13; p. 13; 8 Mar. 1728. Moses Felt, of Boston, to Phinehas Jones, of North Yarmouth, 10 acres, south-westerly on Broad Cove, north-easterly by George Felt's and by land originally [——] Stanford's.

The Committee for re-settling the town of North Yarmouth admitted said Felt to be a proprietor and settler, to have a home lot and equal division with others, subject to certain conditions.

Book 10; p. 89; 1 Nov. 1703. John Bracey, Senior, aged 65 years, or thereabouts, testifieth that, to my certain knowledge, Richard Potts did possess and enjoy and improve & build upon a neck of land called Potts' Neck, which joyns to Merriconeage in Casco Bay, in y^e Province of Maine, for above 30 years ago, and ever since till y^e Indians in y^e time of s^d Edmond Audros, Governor, captured him to draw off, and that no Englishman ever subdued or built upon y^e s^d Neck or ever lived thereon except Rich^d. Potts, afores^d, or his family, in any remembrance which if any had[?] within 50 years past I should have known of it: and an Island on y^e west of y^e south end of s^d Neck, called now [New?] Damerus Cove, which s^d Potts dried fish on, having some years 3 boats and some years 2 boats, and that Rich^d Potts, afore^sd, held or improved y^e s^d Neck or s^d Island as his own, without any molestation or interruption that ever I heard of during y^e time afore^sd. Recorded, Jan. 13, 1720. [Richard Potts married Margaret, widow of William Davis, of Negwassit (near Bath), and they sold Davis' house to ——— Clarke and ——— Lake, 1661.]

Book 16; p. 154; 25 June 1687. Joseph Nash, and Grace his wife, of Boston, to Enoch Wiswell, of Dorchester, all their land in Casco Bay which said Nash purchased of John Mosure, running by the side of Arisecket River, containing 300 acres. Also three parcels more on the side of the upper part of the river, containing 30 acres, with a dwelling-house & frame of a barn thereon. [He empowers John Royal, of Casco Bay, to deliver the premises.]

Book 22 : p. 96 ; 3 Feb. 1740. Isaac Royall, of Boston, Mass., to Henry Gibbs, of Boston, a lot of land in Casco Bay, called Merriconege Neck, being southeast prong of said Neck, 200 acres. Joseph Royall, Rebecca Kennedy [witnesses?] [A plan of the Neck is recorded with this.]

and removed to North Yarmouth, Maine, about 1726, where he resided until his death. He soon became prominent in town affairs, being largely interested in land speculation. In the Registry of Deeds of York County, Maine, no less than thirty transfers occur in as many years to which he was a party, and probably that does not represent all of his business. In the division of property rights, 1727, he drew Lot No. 48, which consisted of 38 acres of upland, including the islands Middle Brother, Upper Brother and Sow & Pigs. This lot gave him Pew No. 19 in the First Church, of which he was a member, having been received therein 9 May 1731. He was the first Assessor of the town, 1733, Constable in 1734, and Selectman many times. In 1735, he joined with Peter Weare, Stephen Larrabee, et als, in opposing the church call to Rev. Ephraim Keith. When Rev. Nicholas Loring was ordained, he, with Andrew Ring, furnished the entertainment, for which the town reimbursed them to the extent of £20 : 17 : 9.

In 1742, he acted as a messenger for Governor Shirley in transporting some official letters from Boston to the eastern frontier. His journal of the trip, preserved in the Massachusetts Archives (Vol. XXXVIII), is worthy of production in full, and is given herewith :—

He was the first Representative of the town to the General

Court of Massachusetts. He was Captain of Co. "F" 6th Mass. Volunteers (Col. Sylvester Richmond) in the siege of Louisburg and the Expedition against the French, in 1745. About 1732, he married Mrs. (30) Hannah Scales, widow of William Scales who had been killed by the Indians some years previous. She was received into the church, Aug. 8, 1731, from the church in Falmouth. She died 19 May 1762. He died without issue, and was buried in the old graveyard at North Yarmouth Foreside. An old slate slab, moss-grown and worn, has this inscription:—"This perpetuates the memory of CAPT. CORNELIUS SOULE who departed this life Oct. y^e 20, 1755, in the 52nd year of his age."

His will, dated 3 Sept. 1755, on file in the York Registry, is given below:—

"In the name of God. Amen. The third day of September, Anno Domini 1755. I, Cornelius Soul of North Yarmouth in the County of York & Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, Gent., being sick and weak of body but of perfect mind and memory, Thanks be unto God therefore, calling to mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last will and testament, viz:—

Principally and first of all I recommend my soul into the hands of God who gave it, and my body I recommend to the earth to be buried in a decent manner, nothing doubting but at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God.

And as touching such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me with in this life, I give, demise and dispose of the same in the following manner:—

Impr^s: I give and bequeath to Susannah, my beloved wife, the improvement of all my estate both real and personal during her natural live, and at her decease I give and bequeath y^e same to her son Thomas Scales (whom I also make, constitute and appoint my Sole executor of this my last will & Testam^t) and to Cornelius Sole, son of my brother Barnabas Soul, to be equally divided between them. And I do declare this and no other to be my last will and testament.

In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above written.

CORNELIUS SOUL. { L.S. }

Signed, sealed, published, pronounced and declared by Cornelius Soul as his last will and testament in the presence of us witnesses.

JONAS MASON. JAMES TUTTLE. GILBERT WINSLOW, Jr.

At a Court of Probate held at York, Jan. 15, 1756. The within written instrument was presented by Thomas Scales Soul, Sole Executor therein named, etc. (York County Registry of Probate, Book IX, p. 135.)"

(22) BARNABAS⁴ SOULE (Moses³ John² George¹) the ancestor of a large branch of the family in the old town and its offshoots, was born in 1705, and came to North Yarmouth about 1742. All the rest of the name in Freeport, Yarmouth, Pownal, and other towns in Maine, not tracing their lineage to him, are descendants of his younger brother, (29) Jedediah⁴, whose genealogy will appear in a later number of this magazine. In the early part of 1745, he bought a homestead of his elder brother, (42) Cornelius.

He married about 1737, (31) Jane, the posthumous daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Stockman) Bradbury, (see p. 720), of Salisbury, Mass., who was born 1718 and baptized 4 Aug. of that year. She was the youngest sister of Mrs. Dorothy the wife of Rev. Ammi Ruhamah Cutter, and great-grand-daughter of the noted divine, Rev. John Wheelwright. Barnabas and his wife were received into the First Church 30 Aug. 1742, by public profession, and on 5 Sept. following he brought his two sons to baptism. He died 8 Apr. 1780, aged 75 years, and lies buried in the old burying-ground that overlooks the town and gives a glimpse of the blue waters of Casco Bay in the distance.

(44) MOSES⁶ SOULE (Moses⁵ Barnabas⁴ Moses³ John² George¹.) b. 28 Dec. 1769. Married Martha, daughter of Gideon and Mary (Babson) Lane, who was born 22 Dec. 1772 and died 20 Dec. 1837. He died 4 Oct. 1851. I subjoin the following sketch of him, furnished by a descendant :—

“Physically he stood a little short of six feet ; erect, well-proportioned and powerful. He was a handsome man, with a countenance as firm as Plymouth Rock. He was a caulker by trade, and was sought, far and near, to lead the crew, on account of his skill. His word was his bond. His religious opinions were decided, and allowed no wavering of faith. For many years he was a deacon in the Congregational Church, and he continued such, I suppose, to the end of his life, excused from service, for his last few years, on account of infirmity and distance. He regarded the Sabbath, and made it a matter of conscience to be early at the place of worship on that day, with such of his family as could properly attend.

He was very diffident, but had a clear and strong understanding. For his times and surroundings, he was a scholar ; very observing, and of an investigating turn of mind. He was often employed as school-teacher in those new settlements. He was frequently chosen to the Board of Selectmen of the town, and his judgment was sought in council. He highly esteemed education, and strove hard to give his children the best advantages for learning.

He loved his family, and provided for them well. He played with his little children, but, in his house, his nod or the tap of his foot uttered undisputed command. He was of a very military turn, and, in early life, served as first-lieutenant of artillery. He lived to the age of eighty-two years, having enjoyed great respect as a christian citizen and neighbor. His descendants have been pre-eminently a race of literary men and educators, as will be noted in the subjoined record."

(56) REV. CHARLES⁷ SOULE, A.M., (Moses⁶ Moses⁵ Barnabas⁴ Moses³ John² George¹), b. 29 Aug. 1794. Married Mrs. Phebe (Bartol) Veazie, widow of Rev. Samuel Veazie, daughter of George and Jane (Soule), Bartol, 1 Sept. 1824, by Rev. Enos Merrill. She was born 14 Apr. 1784 and died 25 Jan. 1876. He died 31 May 1869.

He graduated at Bowdoin College in 1821, and at Andover Theological Seminary in 1823. He was first called to the Congregational Church at Belfast, Maine, Mar. 8, 1824, on a salary of $200 per annum. This sum was afterwards increased to $400 "in order that Mr. Soule," who had accepted the call, "may be free from worldly cares and avocations." His ordination took place 30 June 1824. The services were held in the Unitarian Church. On account of ill-health, he asked and received a dismissal at the close of his second year's ministry in Belfast. He then assumed charge of Bridgeton Academy, and afterwards was settled over the church in that town. He next went to East Machias, as Principal of Washington Academy, and from thence to Norway, in 1835, where he remained in the pastorate eleven years.

He then removed to Portland, and entered the service of the Maine Missionary Society, supplying the little churches at Patten, Amherst and Aurora, in Penobscot County. He then was called to the church in Gorham, and later to Standish, finally removing to Portland, his last residence." (Minutes of Maine General Conference, 1869, p. 58.)

He was a fine writer, both in prose and poetry, and left behind him many unpublished specimens of each.

In the Christian Mirror of July 13, 1869, appeared the following obituary notice by Rev. Dr. William Warren, of Gorham:—

"I am forced to speak affectionately of CHARLES SOULE. He was my teacher; afterwards my parishioner. He was a complete man in outward form, dignity and grace of manner, and in mental and moral culture. His tastes were fine; his style clear and sententious, his discriminations nice, and his logic, when he assumed to argue, was severe. His inquisitive mind gave him a fondness for scientific as well as literary knowledge. In these he made commendable attainments. He had the modesty that connects itself with genius and rare excellence.

It will be asked, why one with such gifts, was so little known? There was a tendency in Bro. Soule to shrink from responsibility and observation. He did not like to come in conflict with others. He seldom cared to measure his strength with that of opponents. His capability went far beyond his consciousness of it. He had not the toughness of nerve to encounter opposition. He retired before a foe. If what we call "brass" had equalled in his composition the brain-power, he would have stood with the first. He was somewhat wanting in the element or faculty of will. He had, however, uncommon serenity of mind, real wealth of thought and beauty of character. I feel that his record is not written on earth, and it is with a loving heart that I raise this poor memorial at his death." Their children:

Martha⁸, b. 23 Apr. 1826, d. 10 Aug. 1847; Ellen⁸, b. 28 Sept. 1828, m. Edward Prince, son of Dr. Elias and Lucretia (Prince) Banks, 25 Sept. 1854, who have three children living, the eldest of whom, Dr. Charles E. Banks⁹, Assistant-Surgeon U. S. Marine-Hospital Service, is joint author of this genealogy.

(57) GIDEON⁷ SOULE, L.L.D., (Moses⁶ Moses⁵ Barnabas⁴ Moses³ John² George¹), b. 25 July 1796. He married Elizabeth Phillips, daughter of Noah Emery, of Exeter, 26 Aug. 1822. She was born 15 Aug. 1794, and still survives. He entered Bowdoin College as a Junior and graduated in 1818. He then went to the Phillips Exeter Academy, remaining little more than a year. He returned in 1822, and was instructor till 1838 when he was elected

Principal. He was connected with that institution for over fifty years, and was Principal from 1833 to 1873, when he resigned. He was the second Principal of the Academy. Dr. Abbott, who preceded him, filling that position just half a century from its commencement, from 1788 to 1838. The great success of Phillips Exeter Academy is largely due to his efforts. He was one of the noted instructors of his day, and his character has been portrayed in a short biographical sketch, "The Teacher," written by Rev. John H. Morrison. Children:

Charles Emery⁸, b. 3 July 1823 (Bowd. 1842);
 Nicholas Emery⁸, b. 13 June 1825 (Harv. 1845);
 Augustus Lord⁸, b. 19 Apr. 1827 (Harv. 1846);
 Mary⁸, b. 8 Mar. 1829, d. 11 Jan. 1833; Martha⁸,
 b. 8 Aug. 1831, d. 5 Nov. 1831.

(61) MOSES⁷ SOULE, A.M., (Moses⁶ Moses⁵ Barnabas⁴ Moses³ John² George¹), b. 18 Mar. 1805. He married Mrs. Eliza (Chetwood) Sheppard, widow of Clementine B. Sheppard and daughter of William and Sarah (Paul) Chetwood, of Philadelphia, 17 Nov. 1836. She was a grand-daughter of Chief-Justice Chetwood, of New-Jersey, and was born 27 Aug. 1796 and died 27 Sept. 1875. He married for his second wife, Mrs. Mary (Bull) Downs, of Hilton, Huntingtongshire, England, daughter of John and Ann (Downs) Bull, 19 Oct. 1876. She was born 9 Aug. 1820. No children by second wife.

He received his preparatory education at Phillips Exeter Academy, and from there entered Bowdoin as Sophomore in 1826, graduated in 1829. He then entered the law-office of Esq. Belcher, but soon accepted a call to the Germantown (Penn.) Academy in the spring of 1830. He opened a Classical School in Philadelphia, where he remained till 1839, having in the meantime married. Returning to the old homestead at Freeport, which he bought in 1841, he tilled the soil for awhile, but was induced to remove to and take charge of Gould's Academy, at Bethel, Maine. There he had for students, and trained to be men, Governor Lafayette Grover, of Oregon, Gen. Cuvier Grover, U. S. Army, and Dexter A. Hawkins, the great Wall-Street lawyer. Their remembrance of him had not faded in forty years, when his seventy-fifth birthday occurred, for two of them sent substantial checks to aid in the celebration.

In September, 1843, he was elected Principal of Bridgeton Academy, at North Bridgeton, Maine. He left Bridgeton in the summer of 1849, for Terre Haute, Indiana, where, with Joseph Miller, a Presbyterian elder, he built, and for several years run, a fine flouring-mill and linseed-oil mill combined. He finally sold out to his partner, and converted his funds and attention to the purchase and editing of the old Whig paper, the Wabash Express, (now Terre Haute Express), which was pushed with much labor for nearly two years. The country was just on the pivot of change from Whig to Republican, into the latter of which the Express immediately wheeled. He afterward edited the Western Star, a campaign paper in the interest of John C. Fremont.

In 1851, he first joined the Presbyterian church, under the excellent William M. Cheever, and was subsequently ordained by him, Ruling Elder. He opened a school in the county seminary building, but was, in 1859, elected Superintendent of the Public High-School in Belvidere, Illinois. From there he took charge of the Literary Department of the Clinton Military School, 1860, and the next year the same position in the Fulton Military Institute. He removed to Lyons, Iowa, and, after teaching in the Northern Illinois College, again he settled down in his home (Lyons) as a private tutor, where he now lives, having been a teacher for nearly half a century. Martha⁸, b. 16 Aug. 1837, d. 18 Aug. 1837.

(66) JOHN BABSON LANE⁷ SOULE, D.D. Ph.D., (*Moses*⁶ *Moses*⁵ *Barnabas*⁴ *Moses*³ *John*² *George*¹) born 4 Apr. 1815. He married, 3 Sept. 1840, Mary L., daughter of Rev. Ethan and Mary Stevens, of Hallowell, Maine. She died 19 June 1848. He married for his second wife, 1 Aug. 1849, Caroline E. daughter of Seymour and Fidelia (Loomis) Gookins, of Terre Haute, Indiana, who is still living.

After the usual time spent on the homestead-farm in his youthful years, he prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, under Dr. Benjamin Abbott, and was publicly pronounced by him the best classical scholar that came under his tuition during the fifty years of his Principalship, a compliment of which he may justly boast. He was graduated at Bowdoin College in 1840, and then began to study law in the office of Judge Emmons, of Hallowell, Maine. He was Preceptor of Hampton Academy, N. H., two years, and then removed to Indiana, in 1845, where, in 1848, he was appointed Professor of Greek and Belles Lettres in the Collegiate Institute of Terre Haute. He was editor of the Charles-town (Illinois) Courier, and afterwards of the Terre Haute Daily Express. He was afterwards ordained to the ministry, and had charge of some churches in Wisconsin and Indiana for some years.

He was elected Professor of Ancient Languages in Blackburn University, Illinois, in 1865, in which position he served with great success for eleven years. He is now pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Highland Park, Illinois, and Moderator of the Chicago Presbytery. He has received the honorary degree of Ph. D. (Highland Hall College, 1879), and D.D. (Blackburn University, 1880.) He is a man of fine literary abilities, pleasing as a writer of prose or poetry, and many of his short sketches and poems have been widely copied. These fugitive verses will soon be collected and published in book-form to gratify the urgent demands of the admirers of his writings. Their children :

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE
LORING FAMILY:

THOSE WHO WERE EARLY RESIDENTS OF NORTH YARMOUTH, MAINE.

[By REV. AMASA LORING.]

This family made its entrance into North Yarmouth, and probably into Maine, by the advent of Rev. Nicholas Loring, in 1736. Soon after, two of his brothers and his sister Rachel also came, and the descendants of these we shall attempt to give.

The record of their American ancestors was left by Rev. Nicholas Loring, which the writer saw and fortunately copied, thirty years since,—fortunately, for it has since been lost.

About the same time, Deacon Jeremiah Mitchell, an aged grand-son of Mr. Loring, gave me an account of his earlier descendants. The early church records, and especially the "First Church Catalogue," have confirmed this, and greatly aided me.

According to a reasonable tradition, the family originated in France, and went to England about the time of the Norman Conquest. It had a coat-of-arms, a copy of which is found in the "Registry of Heraldry," but I am not able to re-produce it. It is unpretentious, savoring strongly of that puritanism once so regnant in the family.

I. (1) DEACON THOMAS LORING was the first found in New-England. He came from Axminster, now a manufacturing town on the river Ax, Devonshire, England, to Dorchester, Mass., Dec. 22, 1634. He brought a wife and two sons, the younger four years old. He moved to Hingham, and then settled upon a farm in Hull, where he died, in 1661.

II. Gen. 2 Thomas, Jr.; 3 John, b. in England; 4 Josiah; 5 Benjamin, b. in America. Thomas, Jr., John and Benjamin settled in Hull, Josiah in Hingham. John married Mary Baker, who bore him eleven children. After her death, he married the widow Rachel Buckley, of Braintree, and had four more. Josiah married Elizabeth, daughter of John Prince, the first of the Prince family who came to America.

III. Gen. Children of John 3 : 6 John ; 7 Joseph ; 8 Thomas ; 9 Isaac ; 10 Nathaniel ; 11 David ; 12 Jacob ; 13 Israel ; 14 Sarah ; 15 Mary ; 16 Rachel. John 6, Sarah 14 and Israel 13, died young. By his second wife : 17 John ; 18 Israel ; 19 Caleb ; and a dau. who died young. Joseph 7, Thomas 8 and Jacob 12, settled in Hingham ; John 17, Caleb 19 and Mary, wife of Thomas Jones, in Hull ; Isaac 9, Nathaniel 10 and Daniel 11, in Boston. Rachel 16, married Caleb Hobart and then Matthew Butler.

Hannah, a daughter of Thomas 8, married Rev. Jeremiah Cushing, of Scituate, June 1, 1685. One of their sons, Colonel Ezekiel Cushing, was an early settler of Cape Elizabeth, Maine, a smart business man, commander of the fort in Falmouth and an officer in the Indian wars. He died May 7, 1765, leaving a large and well-educated family. Hon. John Cushing, a relative of Rev. Jeremiah, who was a Judge of the Superior Court in Plymouth Colony, married Deborah Loring, of Hull. Hon. Wm. Cushing, L.L.D., and brothers, early settlers of Pownalboro, Maine, and connected with the courts in Lincoln County, were their sons. William was Probate Judge, then appointed successor of his father, and, in 1789, was appointed by President Washington an Associate Judge of the United States Supreme Court. He died in 1810, unmarried.

Rev. Israel Loring 18, was born in Hull, Apr. 6, 1682. He graduated from Harvard in 1701, began to preach in 1703, went to Sudbury, Sept. 1705, was ordained there, Nov. 20, 1706, and died there, Mar. 9, 1772, having preached to the same people 66 years without a colleague. He preached twice Mar. 1st, only ten days before his death: He left a manuscript Journal of 6720 pages. He was chosen to preach the Election Sermon in 1737 and the Convention Sermon in 1742, and also preached the ordination sermon of Rev. Gideon Richardson, at Wells, Me., Feb. 27, 1754, which with nine others of his discourses were published. He has been honorably mentioned as a pious, faithful and successful minister of the gospel, and an earnest defender of sound doctrines and as earnest an opponent of all error. In Rev. George Whitefield's first visit to New-England, he preached in the pulpit of Mr. Loring ; but afterwards he took exceptions to some of Mr. Whitefield's measures. Notices of him can be found in Allen's Biographical Dictionary, and in the American Quarterly Register, vol. 11, p. 186, and vol. 14, p. 262. He left two sons and four daughters.

IV. Gen. Children of John, Jr., 17, and Jane Baker : 20 John, b. Jan. 15, 1708 ; 21 Jane, b. Oct. 7, 1709 ; 22 Nicholas, b. Sept. 1, 1711 ; 23 Thomas, b. Aug. 30, 1713 ; 24 Solomon, b. Jan. 12, 1715, and 25 Rachel, b. Oct. 17, 1717. John 17, died in Hull, in 1720. Two of his children died in infancy.

John 20 (3d), first occupied the ancestral home in Hull, and then removed to North Yarmouth, Maine. Jane 21, married Ephraim Andrews, of Hingham ; both died early, leaving one son, Joseph. Thomas 23, was a hatter, in Hingham. Solomon 24, learned the blacksmith's trade, in Pembroke, and came to North Yarmouth soon after his brother's settlement. Rachel 25, married Deacon John White, of Weymouth, and eventually moved to No. Yarmouth ; he was chosen deacon of the First Church ; he died 1 Nov. 1747 ; had three sons, one of which, John, grew to manhood, and he settled on Arrowsic Island and left a large family. Dea. White's widow married Maj. Samuel Denny, of Georgetown (now Arrowsic), as his second wife, but she died in less than two years, leaving one daughter, Rachel, who eventually became the wife of Gen. Samuel McCobb, of Georgetown, and left a large family. Deacon John White bequeathed £30, old tenor, to the church, which was expended for a church library. Maj. Denny and wife, and Gen. McCobb and wife were all interred in the churchyard of the old meeting-house on Arrowsic, and there the monumental stones of each are still standing.

REV. NICHOLAS LORING 22, settled in North Yarmouth, Maine, as the second pastor of the First Church. He was but nine years old when his father died, so that for much of his training and success in life he must have been indebted to his mother.

At the age of twenty-one, he graduated from Harvard University, in the class of 1732. From a pocket journal which he left, we learn that, in Feb. 1735, he commenced preaching in various places in the vicinity of his early home. In May, 1736, he was directed to North Yarmouth by Rev. Ephraim, Keith, of Bridgewater, a college classmate, who had supplied there a few sabbaths, and had been invited to settle, but declined, on account of feeble health.

Mr. Loring made a good impression, and was invited to become their pastor. In October, he returned an affirmative answer, in which he expressed an earnest desire to be spiritually useful to them. A council was called, and, Nov. 17, 1736, he was ordained by the following public exercises : Introductory prayer, by Rev. Thomas Prentice, of Arundel ; sermon, from ii Cor. xii and xv verses, "And I will very gladly spend and be spent for you ; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved," by Rev. Thomas Smith, of Falmouth ; ordaining prayer and charge to the pastor, by Rev. Samuel Moody, of York; right hand of fellowship, by Rev. William Thompson, of Scarborough; closing psalm and benediction by the pastor.

As was usual in those times, Mr. Loring was settled by the town, which then embraced the present towns of Cumberland, Yarmouth, North Yarmouth, Pownal, Freeport and Harpswell. From this wide range, his hearers gathered in the old meeting-house "below the ledge," and over it he extended his pastoral labors. About ten years before his death, Harpswell was set off as a distinct church and parish; and since that time six other churches have been formed from this "North Yarmouth First Church." Though Harpswell colonized, the meeting-house needed enlarging, and twenty-eight pews were added near the close of his ministry.

For his pecuniary support, the town voted a settlement of £250. and an annual salary of £150. As the currency then fluctuated, it is not easy to understand what its value was at that time. Some years later, the salary was £550, old tenor (two shillings, eight pence, lawful money, was one pound old tenor.) As this was reckoned, it would equal £244. On one occasion, the town voted to reduce it to £150. old tenor, without consulting him. He remonstrated against this, in an earnest tone and with effective logic, and a town-meeting was called as soon as possible, and the salary restored to its former rate. Since that date, a prompt and liberal support of the ministry has ever characterized that people.

Feb. 17, 1737, Mr. Loring married Mary Richmond, of Tiverton, R. I. She was from a wealthy family, brought up in affluence; and, as a part of her marriage-portion, received "Billinder," a young colored woman, for her household-servant. She served her mistress faithfully, survived her and her husband, and was supported in her old age by their heirs, according to the provisions of Mr. Loring's will. Mrs. Loring was precise in dress, dignified in deportment, and by her good sense embalmed the name of "Madame Loring" in the memory of that people.

They had ten children, all of which lived to adult years. These were trained to habits of industry and economy, so as to be examples to those of his flock. In warm weather they went to meeting "bare-footed," that those who could not have shoes might not stay away.

In his person, Mr. Loring was tall and slim, of a spare countenance, and rather feeble in strength. He ever found it necessary to eat a few raisins, while the choir was singing, to strengthen him for the delivery of his discourse.

During his ministry, the Indians frequently attacked the place, once from behind "the Ledge," near the meeting-house, June 20, 1748, when three men were fired upon, and one, Ebenezer Eaton, was killed, the others escaped. The men in the neighborhood at once seized their guns and gave chase, in which Mr. Loring joined. The savages dropped a tomahawk, which their pursuers picked up and gave to the minister as a reward for his valor. It was long preserved in the family as a relic of those days of blood, but went the way of all that is earthly, before a more appreciative generation got hold of it.

He was faithful in administering discipline, kind and affectionate in spirit, and dwelt in great harmony with his people through his whole ministry of twenty-seven years, dying July 21, 1763, aged 52 years.

Of his Christian experience and theological soundness, there is no room for doubts. His long stay with a people who dismissed his predecessor, and successor too, through their dissatisfaction with them on these points, shows that he satisfied them. His answer to their call, breathed forth a spirit of true spiritual life. The stand he took in regard to the "Great Awakening," and his eagerness to introduce Rev. George Whitefield to his people, treated of in another place in this magazine [p. 825], are indicative of his decided position in that day.

A good degree of success attended his ministry. One hundred and fifty-eight members were received into the church, and the congregation steadily increased.

Nothing is now known of his last sickness. He evidently departed while enjoying the respect and affectionate esteem of his people, as the following extract will show. In a town-meeting called for that purpose, Aug. 1, 1763, it was voted, "That Col. Jeremiah Powell, Deas. Jonas Mason and David Mitchell be a Committee for providing such things as the town may order for the Rev. Mr. Loring's funeral. That Fans, Gloves, Shoes, Ribbons, Buckles, Buttons, Vails and Hoods for the four daughters; Hatbands, Buckles and Gloves for the three eldest sons; and a Fan, Gloves and Handkerchief for Bezaleel Loring's wife be provided by the Committee at the expense of the town. Voted, that the widow Loring be put in decent mourning, at the discretion of the Committee. Voted, that the Committee provide four crape gowns for the four daughters of Rev. Mr. Loring. Voted, that the three youngest sons be clothed in mourning, at the discretion of the Committee. Voted, that Rings and Gloves be provided for the six pall-bearers, and Gloves for the porters, or under-bearers. Voted, that the Committee provide what other things are necessary for the funeral, at their discretion."

The following note should follow the above: "The widow Loring returns many thanks to the town for their last piece of respect showed to the remains of her late husband, in the interment of him in so decent and honorable a manner; as well as for their generosity to her and her poor fatherless children in putting them in mourning; and, as the expense is already large, she will not put them to any more than is necessary, and will omit taking up anything for her three small sons, which the town was so good as to order. Sept. 27, 1763."

Rev. Thomas Smith, who preached his ordination sermon, also preached at his funeral. It is evident that a strong attachment existed between them. Mrs. Loring survived her husband forty years,—expiring Sept. 15, 1803, aged ninety years.

V. Gen. Children of Rev. Nicholas 22, and Mary (Richmond) Loring: Richmond, 26; Bezaleel, 27; Levi, 28; Lucretia, 29; Mary, 30; Elizabeth, 31; Rachel, 32; Thomas, 33; Nicholas, 34; Jeremiah, 35.

Richmond 26, b. Mar. 29, 1738, m. Lucinda Bucknam, by whom he had seven sons and three daughters, six of whom grew to mature life. When a young man, he addressed himself to industrious pursuits, and with his earnings bought wild lands, which were sold for taxes. These, in time, paid a large profit, and he became wealthy. He lived upon a farm below the ledge, and was also a ship-owner. In 1770, he and his wife professed religion and united with the First Church. He died Mar. 10, 1814. His wife died Aug. 27, 1820.

Bezaleel 27, b. Apr. 13, 1739, m. Elizabeth, daughter of Dea. Jonas Mason, who, in colonial times, was a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. Mr. Loring lived a few years on Cousin's Island, and afterwards, about 1776, moved to New-Gloucester. He was a farmer and house-carpenter. They united with the First Church in Sept., 1764. His wife died Oct. 24, 1810. She is remembered as "a great lover of history." In 1807, they returned to North-Yarmouth and lived with their son Richmond, where he died, June 27, 1822.

Levi 28, b. Dec. 3, 1740, was twice married, and had thirteen children. He lived on a farm near the Dr. Osgood school-house. He followed sea-faring to some extent.

Lucretia 29, b. Jan. 3, 1742, m. Dea. David Mitchell, of North Yarmouth. Mr. Mitchell was liberally educated, and preached for a short season. He then followed teaching. He held the office of town-clerk thirty years. After the Revolutionary War, he was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and deacon of the First Church. He died Mar. 13, 1796, aged 67. Mrs Mitchell united with the church before her father's death, Nov. 11, 1761. She died Jan. 6, 1809.

Mary 30, b. Nov. 22, 1744, m. Joseph Gray, a sea-captain, and lived near Prince's Point. They had ten children, only five of whom married. Mrs. Gray joined the First Church in Nov. 1791, and died Nov. 7, 1796. He died July 17, 1792.

Elizabeth 31, b. Feb. 22, 1746, m. Humphrey Chase, a farmer and house-joiner, and lived near the old meeting-house. They had ten children. Dea. Thomas Chase was the only one I ever knew. They both united with the First Church June 16, 1771. He died Aug. 27, 1818, but she was living in 1820.

Rachel 32, b. Nov. 2, 1748, m. Jotham Mitchell, a farmer, who lived near the "Ledge." They had nine children, five of whom had families. She united with the First Church in 1800. Dea. Jeremiah Mitchell was her son.

Thomas 33, b. June 6, 1751, m. Phebe Gray, and settled at Walnut Hill, as a farmer. They had eleven children, six of whom married and left families. Mr. Loring and wife were subjects of the great revival in 1791, uniting with the First Church June 5, of that year.

Nicholas 34, b. June 23, 1755, d. unmarried. When a young man, he went to Portsmouth, N. H., shipped on a privateer and sailed, but neither he or the vessel were ever heard from.

Jeremiah 35, b. Apr. 12, 1758, m. Jane Hayes. They had eight children, five of whom left families. Mr. Loring and wife joined the First Church in July, 1791. He lived at Walnut Hill, above Dr. Osgood's, and his son Jeremiah occupied the same place, and now Edward B. Loring retains it.

It appears that one of Rev. Mr. Loring's children, Mrs. David Mitchell, professed religion during his ministry, and four of his sons and three of his daughters after it closed. Only four of them were of adult years at the time of his death, the youngest about five years old.

Joseph 49, became hopefully pious in his youth, and united with the First Church when fourteen years of age, and cherished a desire to enter the ministry. At North Yarmouth Academy, he fitted for, and, probably, entered Bowdoin College; but, previous to his father's sickness and death, he was withdrawn from it, but after re-entered and graduated in the class of 1828. He entered Andover Seminary, and graduated in 1833. His first labors in the ministry, were in Ohio. Returning to Maine, he settled in Lebanon, in 1836, and remained till 1854, satisfying an intelligent audience, through that period, with able and instructive discourses. The next four years, he was pastor of the church in Pownal; then, after a few years of missionary labors, became stated supply in Edgecomb for nine years. He then retired from the active duties of the ministry, and took up his abode in Otisfield, where he still resides. He married Susan Hancock, of Franklin, N. H. They have buried two young children, and have three sons and four daughters living. Samuel is married and lives in Minnesota; Harriet and Edward are unmarried; Susan, now the widow Knights, has three children; Persis, Richmond and Rebecca are married, (the latter having seven children).

Charles 41, the youngest son of Richmond 26, when a young man, was wild and dashing. After years of waywardness, he studied medicine, and left these parts. He obtained a position in the U. S. Navy, as Surgeon, and died of cholera, on ship-board, in 1832. It is understood that he married in New-Jersey, but nothing reliable is known here of his wife or children.

Richmond Loring 37, died Feb. 25, 1851. His wife died June 5, 1828.

Mr. Loring lived in Freeport, and followed the sea. In returning from the West Indies, with three of his sons in his crew, they all were attacked with yellow fever, and two of them, John and Nathaniel, died. The grief-stricken father closed their eyes with his own hands, and committed their lifeless forms to the deep. Towards the close of his wife's days, she was insane; and after her death, he was depressed in spirits and kept his bed for several years. They both died in Freeport, she in 1834, and he Jan. 15, 1839. They were both members of the Cong. church.

Bezaleel 55, b. Aug. 28, 1770, m. Lydia Haskell, a sister of his brother Asa's wife, and lived in New-Gloucester until 1814. He then moved to the present town of Guilford, when the country was new, and encountered many hardships and privations, which were intensified by the cold season which soon ensued. He and his wife were members of the Cong. church in New-Gloucester, and transferred their relation to the one in Garland, sixteen miles from their home, and often rode there, on horseback, to attend communion, over rough and miry roads. At length they found membership in Foxcroft, and then in Sangerville; in the last place he served as deacon. They had nine children, all born in New-Gloucester, except the last two. They were, Lydia, d. young; Clarina 74; John Haskell 75; Catharine 76; Charles 77; Lydia 78; Amasa 79; Henry Sewall 80; Levi 81. Dea. He lived for a season in the Walnut Hill neighborhood, thence moved to Portland. He was a good scholar, excelled in school-teaching, and was thus employed for several years in Portland. He was hopefully converted in the great revival of 1791, and united with the First Church. He died Oct. 22, 1823, aged 50.

Richmond 57, son of Bezaleel, b. Feb. 1, 1775, was three times married, and had twelve children. His first wife was Dolly True, who died July 11, 1811, aged 34. His children by her were, Almira E. 86; Mary Ann B. 87; Sarah M., Phebe and Dolly. Sarah M. and Dolly died unmarried. He next married Lucinda Jones, and had, Elizabeth 89; Francis Jones 90, lost at sea; Joseph Baker 91, lost at sea; Levi 92, lives in Kentucky; George 93, lost at sea; Horace 94; Harriet Maria 95, who m. Bradbury True, Jr., and died, leaving a son, who still lives. Mrs. Loring died Aug. 10, 1833, aged 48. He then married the widow Sarah Ring, formerly Sarah Davis, who outlived him. He lived at No. Yarmouth Corner, and spent most of his life in the coasting business. He united with the First Church Dec. 1, 1805, and all of his wives were members of it. He died May 12, 1857, aged 82.

Elizabeth 58, b. Dec. 27, 1776, m. Dea. Joseph Cobb, and had nine children: Jerusha 96; Eben 97; Otis 98; Celia 99; Elizabeth 100; Lucy 101; Joseph 102; Levi 103; Moody Sewall, d. young. They first settled in Hebron, but afterwards in Livermore. At the time of their deaths, they were members of the Cong. Church in Sumner. Mrs. Cobb died June 10, 1830, aged 54.

Perez 59, b. June 20, 1779, m. Celia Cobb, who bore one child, Alice, and both mother and child soon after died. He next m. Hannah Stinchfield, sister of Elder Ephraim Stinchfield, of New-Gloucester, and had five children: Samuel 104; Sarah, d. unm.; Mary 105; John 106; Nicholas 107. He was a farmer, first in Hebron, and then in Leeds. After the death of his second wife, he m. ———, of Poland, and died there. He was a member of the Cong. church.

Lucretia 60, b. July 17, 1781, m. Enos Storer, of North Yarmouth, and had five children: Richmond 108; Amos 109; Beza-leel L. 110; Edward 111, and Ann Maria, who d. unmarried. Mrs. Storer united with the First Church Mar. 3, 1822, and remained a member till her death, June 5, 1853.

Rev. Levi Loring 61, b. Sept. 29, 1783, m. Sophia Bosworth, of North Yarmouth, and had nine children: Albert 112, d. unm.; Samuel Veazie 113; Elizabeth 114; Isaac 115; Ann 116; Henry 117; Levi 118; Mary 119; Frederick. Mr. Loring, in his youth, worked at shoe-making; but soon after his marriage, engaged in school-teaching as his profession. He taught in Freeport, North-Yarmouth, Portland and Saco. It is not known when or where he professed religion, but when in Freeport, from 1805 to 1810, he was an active member of the Congregational church. He also became a member of the First Church in North Yarmouth, and afterwards of the Chapel Church in Portland. While in Saco, he studied theology with Rev. Jonathan Cogswell, in connection with his school-teaching, and soon received a license to preach from the York and Cumberland Association. He was soon employed to supply Dr. Paul Coffin's pulpit, in Buxton. The notorious Jacob Cochran was then polluting the vicinity with his vile fanaticism, and some of Dr. Coffin's people were drawn away by the prevailing excitement.

This induced the venerable pastor to receive Mr. Loring as a colleague, and he was ordained as such, Oct. 22, 1817. For five years the Mass. Home Missionary Society aided in his support. June 6, 1821, Dr. Coffin died, and left him sole pastor. He labored successfully until Aug. 31, 1835, when he was dismissed at his own request. During his pastorate of eighteen years, eighty-four had joined the church by profession and twenty-seven by letter.

He next spent eleven years in missionary labors in Somerset County, chiefly in Anson and Athens. After two years spent in Massachusetts, he preached one year in Shapleigh, and then five years in "Lower Biddeford." He then returned to Athens and resided upon a farm with his son, but continued to preach in destitute places till within a few days of his death. He died of paralysis, Jan. 16, 1860, aged 76 years and 4 months.

Mr. Loring possessed a strong and well-balanced common-sense, which marked all his mental developments. His sermons were methodically arranged, and freighted with weighty evangelical truths. A genial, conversational tone, made him a desirable companion, and his personal attachments to his early friends were unusually tenacious. His temperament was a fair medium between the fiery and the frosty ; restraining him from furious partisanship and from timid inaction.

Evenness, rather than violent outbursts, characterized his religious emotions ; while decision and firmness appeared in all his theological developments. In the Association that licensed him, and in the Council that ordained him, there was a minority of Unitarian tendencies, but the decidedly Orthodox were in the ascendant and were anxious to bring him into their Association. He understood the polity and usages of his denomination, and his counsel was often sought and highly valued.

As a Christian minister he was prompt and energetic at the place and hour expected, and prepared for the occasion. The destitute churches in his vicinity shared his interest and found in him a ready helper. He took an active part in starting the old Christian Mirror, and assisted in securing its early circulation.

He was one of the projectors of the County Conference, now so highly prized, and the first one organized in this State was formed in his house of worship in Buxton, Oct. 1, 1822. In this, all the essential features, now tested by long practice, were inaugurated, showing that this system meets the wants of our churches.

He was a decided and active worker in the temperance reform, and a generous supporter of all the benevolent enterprises of his day. A sermon preached at the dedication of the meeting-house at Buxton Corner, a temperance address, and other works of his were published. A brief obituary of him was published in the Congregationalist Quarterly, vol. ii, p. 341, and also another in the Evangelist by Rev. George W. Hathaway, a neighbor and especial friend of the departed.

It appears that these seven brothers and three sisters who lived to mature years, all professed religion and united with Congregational churches and died in connection with them. None of them were rich ; none decidedly poor. Fifty years was the shortest life of those who attained maturity, and only two lived to exceed eighty years.

MEMORANDA.

BAKER—On page 751, under date of May 12, 1771, is, "Amasa, son of Amasa & Eleanor Baker." This should read, "son of Samuel & Eleanor Baker." 18.7: 6 L. V. G.

STOCKBRIDGE—Rev. Joseph Stockbridge, June 17, 1881, writes from Vantror, Isle of Wight, England, that in his article on pp. 806-809, "Stockbridge Family," in the next to the last paragraph on page 809. second line from the bottom of the paragraph, it should read thus : After "1865", insert a period. Then, before "received," insert, "Wales R. Stockbridge, Senior, received" &c.

ALDEN—Rev. Edmund Kimball Alden, (10th pastor 1st Ch.), ordained to the Congregational ministry in 1850, and for twenty-six years pastor at Yarmouth, Maine, South Lenox and South Boston, Mass., is now one of the Secretaries of the American Board. He is the second son of Dr. Ebenezer Alden, of Randolph, Mass., and Anne (Kimball) Alden. [Grad. Amherst Col., 1844; ord. pastor 1st Ch. Yarmouth, Me. Jan. 2, 1850; resigned Feb. 1, 1854.] 562

TURNER-WORTHLEY—Mrs. M. H. True, Pownal, Maine, May 17, 1881, referring to the articles on pp. 785-786, writes, that the words on p. 785, "occupied by Andrew Hodgson", should read, "occupied by Charles H. Hodgson, (son of Andrew Hodgson), who lives on the homestead-farm. Andrew Hodgson built a house on land disconnected by the highway."

In the last line on p. 785, read, "Irving F. True." On p. 786, top line, after "Maine," add, "one daughter, Nettie M. True, lives with her parents, in Pownal." She also states relative to Ruth, widow of Nathaniel True, who is given on p. 786 as the 2d wife of Thomas Worthley, that she married Timothy Worthley, (No. 5), and that Thomas had but one wife. 557

NORTH YARMOUTH—Rev. Amasa Loring, Yarmouth, Maine, June 18, 1881, writes that Robert Corliss Cleaves informs him that his grandfather, Ebenezer Corliss, moved to No. Yarmouth when he was twenty-one years old,—in 1785 (see pp. 754, 827.) Mr. Cleaves think the Parsons house was built in 1788.

Mr. Loring asks if Lydia Elwell, wife of Ebenezer Corliss, was not of Gloucester, Mass., instead of New-Gloucester, Maine, as given on page 287. Mr. ——— Sargent, who married another of Payne Elwell's daughters, came with his bride in the same vessel with Dr. William Parsons and wife when they came to North Yarmouth from Cape Ann,—so Mrs. Parsons told him. 559

OLD SCHOOL-HOUSE—The old school-house that once stood on Main Street, Yarmouth, at the foot of Baptist meeting-house hill, was first moved down on the right-hand side of Gooch's Lane and used as a store by James C. Hill and William Thomas, (Hill & Thomas.) It was afterwards hauled down to Baker's Mill Lane and located on the right-hand side, next to the Atlantic & Saint Lawrence Railroad, opposite Henry Caswell's blacksmith-shop, and used as a tinsmith's shop. It was torn down a few years ago. The bell that used to swing in its belfry is now attached to the gable of the old brick school-house near the old town-house. 3-551

BARNEVILLE—Information is desired of the history of Edward Barneville who was living in North Yarmouth, Maine, in 1795 as a shoe-maker. His name appears on page 10, under date of 1800, as "Edward Barnwell." His name is attached to a petition dated Mar. 13, 1786, which shows that he was probably then a resident of New-Gloucester, although a year or two later he was taxed as a non-resident. The county records show that he was a resident of North Yarmouth and that he was a mariner. He was living in 1809, and granted power-of-attorney to "Edward Barne-vill, Jr."

This completes the descendants of the Rev. Nicholas Loring.

Contrary to my original plan, I now take up the families of John, 20, and Solomon, 24, brothers of Rev. Nicholas; both of whom settled in North-Yarmouth. In the accounts of John's family, inaccuracies were unavoidable, as but few records of them were available. After occupying the homestead of his father and grandfather, in Hull, he came to North-Yarmouth previous to 1750, some of his family being already grown up, and took up the "Great Gully" wild lot, now the Lamoine Blake farm, built between the railroad and the brook, and there resided till his death, in 1784. His wife died in 1778. His name appears among those of the selectmen of the town. He and his wife were members of the church in Hull, and both joined the 1st Church in N. Yarmouth in June, 1750.

Here we close this long list of names and appended sketches; so long that some now in the early periods of life are omitted. These we consign to future chroniclers,—hoping that they may deserve a record in the histories, and win a flattering notice in the genealogical tables of future periods. The memory of some of the worthy and venerable names in this long list of departed ones, deserve to be embalmed by the respect of the surviving, and made a stimulant to nobler lives and more worthy attainments. So let it be, and these labors will find their desired reward.

COL. SAMUEL TRUE.

[By N. T. TRUE, M. D.]

Col. Samuel True, son of Winthrop True, was born in North-Yarmouth, Maine, June 25, 1800, and died June 1, 1881. He married ———, born in Portland, Nov. 28, 1800, died Feb. 9, 1874. Children: Mary E. Lufkin, Edward P. W., Sarah J. Tuttle, Caroline, Samuel. He married second, widow Deborah A. (Rowe) Nash.

Col. True was among the last of the old-school gentlemen. He always reminded me in his general deportment of Gen. George Washington. Grave in demeanor; dignified, yet courteous; never indulging in an audible laugh; of a tall, well-developed frame and military bearing when in middle life, he commanded the respect of all with whom he had any acquaintance.

My first remembrance of him was at the Centennial Celebration of North-Yarmouth [May 14, 1833; see pp. 103, 186], when he sung a bass solo with powerful effect. For many years he was a distinguished bass singer in that vicinity, and for many years was President of the Cumberland County Musical Association.

He early rose from the ranks as a private in the militia through the different grades of military rank to that of Colonel [see p. 271.] I well remember his appearance at the General Muster, at North-Yarmouth, I think, the last time he served in that capacity. The militia system had become very unpopular, which he felt very severely, and, drawing up his regiment in a hollow square, he made a farewell speech, pointing out in a forcible manner the necessity of military service in a country like ours. The whole scene was a very impressive one, and the address was listened to with the highest degree of respect.

He was Colonel of the Regiment two terms, eight years; Secretary and Treasurer of the Town Fire-Insurance Company twenty-three years; Town Collector of Taxes ten years; Parish Collector of Taxes eleven years; Justice of the Peace forty-two years; Postmaster at Cumberland Centre thirty years; member of the Congregational Church fifty years and a resident of the town fifty-four years. It is said that he made with his own hand, when a young blacksmith in Portland, the first grate ever used for burning anthracite coal in the city.

Few men have passed through a life of fourscore years with so few blemishes and with as many manly and virtuous qualities as Colonel Samuel True.

DR. JOHN ANGIER HYDE.

[CHARLES E. BANKS, M. D.]

The younger generations have heard their grandparents speak with affectionate remembrance of this famous physician of the old school, and the interesting article by Dr. N. T. True, on p. 494, will be a welcome addition to the hitherto floating stock of knowledge about him. If genius, talent and ability are legacies from our ancestors; certainly Dr. Hyde was but the natural sequence of a long line of worthy and distinguished progenitors. We all know well the tendency of transmitted traits in the criminal classes, and equally confident should we look for the opposite extreme in the virtuous. The facts bears us out in this case. We are not able to speak of the paternal ancestors of the beloved physician, but his mother's family is one of which we should well be proud, and of itself might be responsible for all the culture, manliness and nobility that were so eminently his.

Mary Angier, his mother, the daughter of Rev. John and Mary (Bourne) Angier, of Rehoboth, Mass., was born in 1740 and died in 1788, when the Doctor was a boy of seventeen years. Rev. John Angier was born 1 July 1701, graduated at Harvard College in 1724, and died 14 Apr. 1787. Through his grandmother, Mary Bourne, he descends from the Rev. John Prince, Rector of East Shefford, Berkshire, England, and is of the same family as the celebrated divine, Thomas Prince the chronologist.

Rev. John Angier, his grandfather, was the son of Rev. Samuel and Hannah (Oakes) Angier, who were married 2 Sept. 1680. She was the only daughter of Rev. Urian Oakes, President of Harvard College, and died 15 Aug. 1714, aged 55 years [see No. 8, p. 636.] He was born 17 Mar. 1655, graduated at Harvard College in 1673, and died 24 Jan. 1719.

Rev. Samuel Angier, his great-grandfather, was the son of Edmund and Ruth (Ames) Angier, of Cambridge, who was a son of "John Angier a person of good account and property at Dedham," Co. Essex, England Mass. Hist. Collections, XXX. 166. Edmund Angier was born about 1612, emigrated to Cambridge about 1636, was a woolen-draper, and died 4 Mar. 1691-2, aged 80 years. His wife Ruth, who was the daughter of "that famous light" Rev. William Ames, the celebrated Franconian professor, died 3 July 1656, in Cambridge.

Rev. Ephraim Hyde, father of the Doctor, was born in Pomfret, Conn., graduated at Yale College in 1758, ordained minister at Rehoboth, Mass., 14 May 1766, married the next year, and died 11 Oct. 1783, aged forty-five years.

YARMOUTH CORNER, 1850.

Main Street—East Side.

Starting northerly from the guide-board towards Walnut Hill, the first house on the right, at the corner of Gooch's Lane, was the little cottage of Benjamin Gooch (bur. May 22, 1858, aged 74; p. 369), a farmer, and part owner of a saw-mill on the river. His family consisted of Nathaniel (d. May 12, 1875), Benjamin, Charles Austin, Sumner T., Betsey Jane, Matilda and Margaret Ellen. Betsey Jane married Jonas Baldwin Smith (No. 230, p. 401); Matilda married William C. Storer; Margaret Ellen married Ammi B. Loring, son of Ammi M. Loring, and, 2d, — Hanson, of Alton, Illinois.

The next house, once owned by Samuel Drinkwater (see p. 389), opposite the foot of Corliss Lane, was the two-story yellow house of Capt. Sylvanus Prince (No. 366, p. 849,) which was presented to his wife by her grandfather, Capt. Joseph Drinkwater. A curious matter in connection with this house is given in the Portland (Me.) Price-Current, June 16, 1877, which reads as follows: "ANCIENT PAINTING.—On removing the paper from the walls of an old house in Yarmouth recently, which had been on the room for twenty-eight years, a beautiful painting of a full line-of-battle-ship was revealed on the plastered wall. The painting is in oil, in a variety of colors, and covers the entire end of the room. The ship is represented as afloat in a narrow bay, flanked on either side by trees and foliage, behind which are houses of unique and varied architecture. No one knows how long ago, or by whom the painting was executed. The house is over a century old, and was for many years occupied by old Capt. Sylvanus Prince." His family is given on pp. 793-4, Nos. 256-60. His daughter Frances Maria (No. 1091, 1st Ch.) (bur. Apr. 25, 1854, p. 367), married David O. Richards, once a merchant in the town, who moved to Lewiston in 1854, and who now (1875) resides in Auburn. For the Richards children see pp. 337, 367. Capt. Prince's sister Olive, a nurse for the sick, lived with him.

The next building was the large, white, hip-roofed house of Capt. James C. Hill (bur. May 29, 1864, see p. 414), merchant and auctioneer, and a leading man in all public affairs. Capt. Hill lived in the south half of his house with his wife (who was a sister of James Stockin, I think) (bur. Dec. 16, 1853, p. 337), and sons James Decatur (his ch. bur. Oct. 19, 1865, p. 415), Alexander Greenwood (bur. May 17, 1848, p. 302), Octavius A. (who now lives in Deering), and Andrew Jackson (who now lives in Camden, Arkansas.) Their daughter Olive Ringe, died Aug. 18, 1830 (p. 102.) Another daughter, Mary Margaret, (bur. Apr. 16, 1853, p. 337), married Cyrus Foss Sargent and moved to the South and had children Cyrus, and Grace Greenwood (died Sept. 29, 1870, aged 28 years. Elizabeth Alice, another daughter of Cyrus F. Sargent, married, June 13, 1877, Dr. Henry N. Reed, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Sargent afterwards built a very fine residence just below the house of Capt. John Davis, and died there May 22, 1880, aged 65 years 7 months and 23 days. Mr. Sargent married, 2d. (Harriet Hayes 1007, 1st Ch.) daughter of Reuben Hayes and widow of Henry B. Wright, of Portland, (see No. 201, p. 790.) The northerly half of Capt. Hill's house was occupied by James Stockin, a cloth-dresser, with his wife Rachel (d. 1878) and son Samuel (bur. June 13, 1846, p. 259.)

Next was a large, two-story, yellow house owned and occupied by Capt. Rudduck Prince (No. 345, p. 849) a retired sea-captain. His family is given in full on p. 850.

Next above was a little cottage occupied by William Thomas. This house was nearly opposite the foot of meeting-house hill. He had a son George (p. 41.)

Next above, and at the foot of the hill, was the "old red school-house." For its history see p. 911, also see pp. 40-41.

The next dwelling-house, formerly the residence of Matthias Storer, was the cottage of Edward Storer, a tanner who carried on that business at Tan-yard Brook, just above. He died in 1864, aged 49 (p. 415), (1098, 1st Ch.) His wife was Louisa Stockin (1099, 1st Ch.) They had a daughter Emma L. (1194, 1st Ch.) who married George W. Baker and lives in Portland.

About ten rods above was a large, two-story white house which was occupied for many years by Barnabas Freeman, the lawyer.

Next above was a two-story building, broadside to the street. In 1849, I think, it was occupied by Cyrus Smith and family, who afterwards moved out of town.

The next dwelling was the residence of Capt. Jas. J. Humphrey (No. 110, p. 838) before he built his new house below. This house was once owned by Thomas Gooch. It is now occupied by the widow Martha Ring.

Just above, and across Tan-yard Brook, were a portion of the buildings and the most of the vats, &c. of Edward Storer's large tannery. This establishment has since been broken up.

At a point just above the tannery, where Main Street makes a sharp turn to the left, stood the very large, old-fashioned house once owned and occupied by Deacon Jacob Mitchell, and, after his death, which occurred Feb. 4, 1848, at the age of 84 (see p. 251), was bought by Octavius A. Hill, son of Capt. Jas. C. Hill, who lived in it some years. Deacon Mitchell's widow and an unmarried daughter, Mary Elizabeth Mitchell, lived a few years in a part of Capt. William Sweetser's house further down on Main Street, and then moved to Tennessee. This was one of the best houses in town. It is now occupied by H—— Barbour. Here Main Street ends and the Walnut Hill road begins.

Just above the Mitchell house the Sligo road turns off to the right, and across this road and on the right-hand side of the road to Walnut Hill, stood the old Town-House, a large, ill-kept and gloomy-looking old building that was always a disgrace to the town. This building was first used for town-meetings Mar. 25, 1833 (p. 103.) Here, on town-meeting days, assembled most of male population of the town,—the voters to electioneer and vote for their favorites, and the younger portion to see the sights and exchange gossip. Here, too, on "May Training" and general muster days the different companies usually rendezvoused to take their departure for the "tented field."

Next above the town-house was the brick school-house of the number four school-district. This was erected about 1847, and was among the first of the new edifices to take the place of the pioneer school-houses. The bell on the front was taken from the belfry of the "old red school-house. Among the teachers who have been employed in this house, I remember Edwin F. Quinby Spencer Wells, Benjamin G. Snow (now a missionary in Micronesia), Charles G. Came (afterwards a prominent journalist in Boston, who died in 1879), and Elbridge G. Wagg, the latter a prominent citizen of the town at this time.

Just above the school-house was the "Sand Hill," where most of the sand required in the village for building purposes, grading and repairing roads. &c., was obtained.

Just above the Sand Hill stood the large, old-fashioned, yellow farm-house of Meanbec Loring. His apple-orchard was very convenient for the school-boys, and was well patronized by them in the proper season for raids. Opposite the house, across the road, was a fine well of water, supplied with the old-style "sweep" and bucket. This house was once owned and occupied by John Cutter.

Next above was a little cottage owned and occupied by Ruth S. Humphrey (No. 107, p. 838), widow of Capt. John Humphrey, and her son George Alvah Humphrey. The children of her son Daniel Rice Humphrey, Lucy Gage and Augustine Humphrey (Nos. 274 and 276, p. 892), also lived with her.

Next stood the little cottage occupied at one time by Martin Ring and afterwards by Artemus Rich. His family is given on p. 917, Nos. 92 to 97. A Twombly family lived in this house at a later date, and among the children were Rufus P., Stephen (for both see p. 204) and Eliza.

A short distance above was the "Pound," a small piece of land enclosed by a high stone wall. were cattle found running at large were kept in custody.

Far above the Pound was the farm of Samuel Hayes. He had two sons, David Munger and Jacob, who attended school at the new brick school-house. David M. was, I think, in the Navy in the War of 1861-5, and is supposed to have been drowned in the river at New Orleans, by walking overboard at night.

Main Street—West Side.

On the corner of Portland road and Main Street stood the old Jeremiah Mitchell tavern, already noticed on p. 758. The latter shop of Nathan Safford once stood on this lot at the corner of the street and Corliss Lane. On Main Street, at the south-east corner of Corliss Lane, was a drinking-trough for cattle, which was supplied with water from the aqueduct of hollow logs which extended down street and furnished many houses with water.

Next above the Mitchell tavern, across Corliss Lane, stood a little one-story black cottage occupied by John Corliss, carpenter and fisherman. His family is given on pp. 331-332, Nos. 267-274. This house was afterwards occupied by David Field, whose family is given on p. 450. The carpenter-shop of Hezekiah Corliss (No. 41, p. 287), once stood at the street corner of this lot. The fine residence of Capt. James J. Humphrey now stands on the site of the old house. Capt. Humphrey is a retired sea-captain, one of the best known and most respected of our citizens.

Next above was the residence of Capt. Charles Humphrey, whose family is given on p. 890, Nos. 231, 236. As Captain of the old Light Infantry, Justice of the Peace, &c., Capt. Humphrey has always been a prominent man in the town. On the site of Capt. Humphrey's cottage there formerly stood the residence of Thomas Wentworth No. 405, p. 900.

Next above was the large, two-story, yellow house of Robert White. This house was afterwards moved up on the Sligo road and converted into a shoe-factory by ——— Bearce and ——— Eades. Robert White's family was composed of his wife, sons Ammi, Frederick (wf. bur. May 15, 1846, p. 259), Hathherly (bur. Oct. 22, 1844, p. 258), Robert (bur. July 14, 1843, p. 257), and daughter Margaret (p. 41.)

Just above the Robert White house the Cumberland road came down to Main Street over "Meeting-house Hill." Next above this road was a little white cottage which was occupied many years by Ammi Mitchell Loring (No. 272, p. 932; family on p. 933), for many years sexton of the Baptist church. It was afterwards occupied by Adam P. Baker, Dennis Byram and ——— Crocker.

Next stood a large, two-story, yellow house which was at one time the residence of Rev. George W. Quinby, then pastor of the Universalist Society. For his family see p. 290, Nos. 99-108. This house was afterwards, and for many years, occupied by Thomas J. Brown, tailor, auctioneer and stable-keeper. He had sons Walter Scott, Augustus B. and Thomas F. Brown.

Next was the cottage of Capt. Timothy Pratt, a sea-captain. His family consisted of his sons Augustus, Edward C., Franklin (adopted by William and Samuel Thomas and called Franklin Pratt Thomas), William and Henry, twins, and daughter Jane A. Pratt. Edward C. and Henry were in the Navy during the late war (see p. 156.) Edward C. finally became insane and was confined in the Insane Asylum at Augusta, but he escaped from it in 1879 and is supposed to have drowned himself. This cottage was destroyed by fire many years ago.

Next above, and a little retired from the street, stood a pottery (removed to this spot from the site of Joseph Greenleaf's house) established in 1791 by John Thomas (bur. July 24, 1843, aged 88 years, 10 months and 22 days, see p. 256), a native of Gloucester, Mass. (p. 54, 1st Ch. Cat.), and for many years afterwards carried on there by Joel Brooks. In the same enclosure stood the cottage of William Thomas (wf. Mercy bur. Sept. 11, 1860, aged 77, p. 370), which was at this time occupied by his sons William (bur. Feb. 21, 1848, p. 302) (Mrs. Wm. Thomas bur. Apr. 26, 1847, p. 301), and Samuel, sea-captains, and his daughters Sally, Isabella and Catharine (the latter married Nathl. son of Benj. Gooch.) Franklin Pratt Thomas, adopted by the Thomas brothers, lived in Reno, Cal., in 1876, in Benton, Mono Co., Cal., in 1877, and now resides in Oakland, Cal. The cottage is now occupied by Capt. Joseph Bucknam.

Next above stood a large, yellow, hip-roofed house, owned and occupied by Capt. Richmond Loring (bur. May 14, 1857, aged 82 years, p. 368; No. 528, 1st Ch. Cat.) familiarly known as "Uncle Scanty Loring." For family see Nos. 86-95, p. 928. This house was once the residence of Enos Storer.

Next above, and back from the street about ten rods, stood a little cottage occupied by Enos Byram (bur. Aug. 31, 1867, aged 82, p. 416), brother of Reuben, a mason by trade. "Uncle Enos" as he was called, was a genius in his way, and his queer and often humorous remarks made him a welcome addition to the circle of gossips around the stoves of the village stores in the long winter evenings. He was always followed by a little yellow dog, whose wonderful intelligence and great deeds were often the subjects of the old man's funny stories. A young girl named Mary Elizabeth Ross, a relative of his wife, lived with them for many years, working in the cotton-factory.

Next, standing close upon the street, was a large, two-story, black house, occupied for a long time by David Field and Capt. George B. Mitchell and their families (see p. 450.) This house was afterwards the residence of Hiram Welch who died Feb. 25, 1880, aged 52 years and 10 months), a cotton-factory man, and his wife and her sisters Elizabeth and Lucinda A. Gray. This was originally the home of Hezekiah Corliss, brother of Ebenezer. Oliver Jordan, who married one of the Blaisdell girls, daughter of Jeremiah up on North road, now lives here.

About four rods above was "Tan-yard Brook" and Pond, and above the brook were the buildings of Edward Storer's tannery. Just at the point where Main Street turns to the left stood a large building where his leather was curried and finished.

Next above stood the small cottage of Reuben Hayes (bur. 7 Sept. 1862, aged 70 years and 10 months, p. 371), father of Miss Harriet Hayes (1007, 1st Ch.) who married Henry B. Wright, of Portland, and, 2d, Cyrus B. Sargent, of Yarmouth, (see No. 125, p. 761, No. 201, p. 790, also p. 947.)

About ten rods above, and directly opposite the schoolhouse, was the cottage of Capt. Samuel Thompson (No. 415, p. 901), master of a coasting-vessel. His wife was buried May 31, 1845 (p. 258), and a child May 10, 1844 (p. 257.) He had a son Edward F. (with a crippled hand) and a daughter Celia.

A short distance above was the residence of Jacob B. Lufkin, a farmer and butcher. A child of his was buried July 12, 1851, aged 7 years (p. 336), and he had sons Asa O. and Jacob Bradford and a daughter Sarah W. This house is now owned by Sylvanus B. Humphrey (p. 889.)

Far above, and opposite the Pound, stood the farm-house of Benjamin Rowe Gooch. This was the last house before crossing the North Yarmouth line. This is now the residence of Joseph Humphrey (p. 889.)

ROYAL—An aged man. * * * I visited a man on our poor farm yesterday, by the name of Peter Poyal, who is said to be one hundred and eight years old. He still has a great share of vitality, and talks as sensibly as many much younger men. J. T. CARR.

An old resident of Maine. The Augusta (Me.) Journal says: "There lives in the town of Lee a gentleman by the name of Peter Royal, who is 110 years old. He has a daughter who is 84, and two sons—one 82 and one 80. He used tobacco constantly until he arrived to the dignity of a centenarian, when he reformed and discarded the weed, as it might affect his health. He also discarded tea and coffee at the same tender age. His hair, which has been white, is now turning to a jet black; health good, and all that could be desired. Indeed, the old gentleman is so full of youthful buoyancy and so well preserved that he thinks seriously of getting married again."

He was a resident of Waldoborough, Maine, after 1807, having been dismissed from the First Church in North Yarmouth March 16th of that year. HEATH.—In the First Church Catalogue, Parson David Shepley, usually accurate, has fallen into an error about No. 36, Joseph Heath. This person was received as therein stated, 26 March 1732, but the "manner of removal" was not by death "before 1736," as he has added to the entry. It would seem that Joseph Heath did not fancy the outlook at North Yarmouth for a home, for we read in Roxbury Church Records, nine months from the date of his joining our church, the following entry among those admitted to fellowship: "Dec^r 3, [1732], Joseph Heathe, dismissed from y^e church at North Yarmouth." On August 20th preceding, is the entry of "Anna Heathe," whom we understand to be his wife.

Edward Shove was from Bristol, thence to North Yarmouth, where he had a share and drew Lot 55 in the division of lands in 1727. One Thomas Haskell testified that about 1733 he laid out and surveyed land for him at Amoscoggin.
